McGeer Solid Favorite To Head B.C. Liberals

YOUNGEST DELEGATE at the B.C. Liberal convention in Penticton, Gina Janik, 12, caused an uproar and a vote on the floor of the convention when she presented her credentials Friday. An attempt to have her ousted was nullified when delegates voted, 216 to 209, not to restrict delegates to persons over the age of 16. Gina, a Grade 8 Tsawwassen student, has signed up 19 adults to membership since she became a member eight months ago. She was the first delegate selected by the Delta group.

Northern Justice Attacked

PENTICTON (CP) — A Prince George lawyer told a British Columbia Liberal party convention Friday that administration of justice in northern parts of the province "stinks."

Delegate Alan Bate, who said he practises criminal law, was speaking during a convention session on human rights.

"The administration of justice in many areas of this province stinks," said Mr. Bate. "I can tell you I would not like to be an Indian person living in parts of B.C."

Mr. Bate said he has the greatest respect for the majority of policemen, but they tend to take sides when it comes to legal or criminal problems involving the Indian population.

JUST SOCIETY

"I'm afraid we'll content ourselves with phrases such as the just society instead of reality," said the lawyer. "I'm afraid there really is no just society in matters such as this."

Mr. Bate said appointment of full-time county prosecutors across the province would go a long way to resolving injustices. He said no one but fully qualified persons should be allowed to handle prosecutions on serious criminal charges.

Another lawyer, John Bouck of Vancouver, said the same general principles should apply in civil law as in criminal. He said archaic court procedures bog down the courts with "traps, difficulties and pitfalls."

He said one of the most obvious inequalities in civil law is the fact that in British Columbia, the crown in the person of the provincial government cannot be sued by private citizens.

Lawyer John Caldwell of Campbell River, said now that the government has enacted medicare, it should give serious consideration to "elgicare" — legal aid services.

MPs Seek End To Bloodbath

UMUAHIA — Two Canadian members of Parliament are preparing to leave this beleaguered town and fly back to Canada to report on what they consider is the desperate situation confronting besieged Biafra.

"I now feel that our (Canadian) major effort should be in the international field to bring about a ceasefire and see that codes of international behavior are observed," said Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto-Greenwood).

Mr. Brewin and David MacDonald (PC — Egmont) arrived here this week on a personal fact-finding mission to see whether Canada can make a greater contribution to the precarious flow of relief supplies (mainly food and medicine) that comes in every night to the Biafrans' single remaining makeshift airstrip.

But after talks with senior Biafran leaders and officials and a tour of refugee camps and the food distribution centres, they feel the situation is so desperate that there should be immediate international action to stop the fighting.

Direct Report

They said they will report directly to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

As Biafran troops fight a stubborn holding action against advancing Nigerian forces, the government of Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu is making a desperate appeal to the world community to stop what he calls acts of genocide.

Canada is one of the key nations on which the Biafrans are counting for help. In a statement published here Friday, the Biafra international friendship committee said: "We salute the governments of Canada, France and Zambia for their recent move to take the matter to the United Nations."

Support Lacking

(Canadian delegates at the UN have been trying to have the Nigerian-Biafran situation brought before the General Assembly but External Affairs Minister Sharp told the Commons recently that it is hard to find countries to support the proposal.

(The problem, he said, hinged on finding a way to discuss the humanitarian aspects of the civil war without intervening in political affairs. Canada sent Maj.-Gen. W. A. Milroy to serve on a four-man international team investigating Biafran charges of genocide.)

Morale remains remarkably high in this capital, the only major town that remains in Biafran hands. But there is sharp fighting at Okigwi, about 30 miles to the northeast, and Ikot Ekpene, to the south, as the Nigerians press their "final offensive" in an attempt to cut Biafra in two.

There is no doubt that the Biafrans are prepared to fight to the last man. If Umuahia falls, the Biafrans will take to the bush and harass the PENTICTON—Vancouver MLA Dr. Pat McGeer held a commanding lead here this afternoon as delegates cast ballots to select a new leader for the B.C. Liberal party.

Dr. McGeer's supporters gave their 41-year-old choice a likely 70 per cent win over fellow Vancouver MLA Garde Gardom, 44, his only opponent.

McGEER
. . . wide margin

Both candidates represent urban-rich Vancouver-Point Grey in the legislature but they stand at the fore of a party with a total of only six seats—behind the 32 Socreds and 17 New Democrats.

But whoever wins will carry with him a new party constitution that the provincial executive hopes will democratize the party and give it a healthier chance when Premier Bennett decides to take another fling at the polls.

1,500 AT MEETING

Lawrence Jolivet, outgoing provincial president, said today the 1,500 delegates, guests and spectators at the convention are evidence of the new and vital spirit the new leader will have behind him.

Mr. Jolivet said the convention is "the largest the Liberals have had since British Columbian entered Confederation."

He declined to comment on who he thought would succeed 42-year-old Ray Perrault in the leadership. Mr. Perrault resigned after sweeping national NDP leader T. C. Douglas out of the federal Burnaby-Seymour riding in June.

A McGeer campaigner said "We're extremely confident. We've detected some slippage during the last 24 hours, but we expected this since we went into the convention with a pretty substantial majority of delegates behind us."

STILL HOPEFUL

But a spokesman for Mr. Gardom, a lawyer who upset former Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the 1966 provincial election, was still hopeful, predicting the winning majority would be 52 to 55 per cent — for Mr. Gardom.

One of the province's leading Liberals confided that while it "certainly" looks like Dr. McGeer would win, "it is a real race."

"Gardom has been working very, very hard," he said and added indications that Mr. Gardom had entered the race merely as token competition were "simply not true."

Dr. McGeer, director of the Kinsmen Laboratory of Neurological Research at UBC, was first elected to the legislature in a 1962 byelection.

CROWD 'SIGNIFICANT'

Allan Cox, winner of the Oak Bay byelection this summer, enthused in the turnout at the convention. "The fact that there are overflow delegations from all areas — not just Vancouver

Laing To Go In Shakeup?

OTTAWA (CP) — Rumors of a spring cabinet shakeup are circulating on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be dissatisfied with the performance of some of his ministers and, informants said Friday, is already canvassing means of bringing some new faces into his administration.

A cabinet shuffle could be started by the departure of two veteran ministers—Solicitor-General George McIlraith and Works Minister Arthur Laing.

Canada Requests France To Team Up in Space Work

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp Friday made specific proposals to Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France for Canadian-French co-operation in space research.

Sharp, speaking later to reporters, said this co-operation could include space communications, among other things.

MAY SHARE RESEARCH

"We have facilities which we could use in common and we could share our experiences in technological research," said Sharp, who said Debre had taken the Canadian proposal under consideration.

The ministers also discussed, in general terms, the prospects for cultural co-operation, the most appropriate course for the West to take on the Czechoslovakian problem, and the efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

The General Assembly heard a plea from Czechoslovakia's acting foreign minister to let his country's future be determined within the Soviet-dominated Eastern European Communist bloc.

Vaclav Pleskot appealed for understanding of Czechoslovakia's situation. The 125-member assembly was asked to "do nothing that would be in conflict with the wish of the government of Czechoslovakia looking toward a settlement of the present situation on the basis of the Moscow talks."

Full airing of the Czechoslovak situation at the UN is not likely to be stopped by Pleskot's appeal.

WIRE BRIEFS

Second Prison Riot

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Prison guards used tear gas to quell an uprising by 300 convicts and then marched the inmates back to their cells. The rebellion lasted about two hours. It was the second outburst in four days at South Carolina's main penitentiary.

Violence Flares

NEW YORK (UPI) — New violence flared in New York's embattled schools Friday and there was a threat of a renewal of the teachers' strike which closed down classes for the first three weeks of the fall term.

'Liberation' Force Threatens Mexico

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Gunfighting in Mexico City took two more lives Friday—a passerby and then the sniper who shot him—and a letter signed by a group calling itself the "Army of Liberation" threatened a "large military operation" against the government.

Police meanwhile announced that four persons, one of them a Canadian, were arrested as being among "foreign elements" and local guerrillas who supported students in their fight against the government.

A Canadian embassy spokesman Friday night confirmed that a Canadian had been detained for questioning, but declined to identify him. Police identified him as Otto Hans Zoeller, 32, but gave no hometown.

The embassy spokesman said no charges had been laid against him.

In Friday night's incident, the sniper, firing from an apartment building across from the foreign ministry headquarters, killed a 35-year-old passerby with a shot in the head and wounded a 21-year-old man in the arm. Witnesses said the sniper apparently was aiming at a soldier.

Army marksmen returned the fire and a few minutes later the sniper was carried out dead.

The statement of the Liberation Army was distributed Friday, but was dated Sept. 28, four days before the big gunfight Wednesday between troops and snipers that left at least 29 persons dead.

Referring to the Olympic Games scheduled to open in the Mexican capital next Saturday, it said:

"We decline all responsibility for what could happen to those who come to a country that, in fact, finds itself in full civil war."

It recommended that "the foreign public not come to the Olympics because, although under no circumstances will athletes be attacked, it will be necessary to carry out a large military operation against the government in the inaugural act and others later."

Oil Firm Takeover Hinted by Junta

LIMA (AP)—The military leaders who overthrew the Peruvian government nullified Friday night a disputed contract with a United States oil firm and said government officials responsible for it would be "brought to justice."

The U.S. diplomatic mission remained in the country, but a state department spokesman in Washington said the uncertainty brought about by the coup had caused a suspension of U.S.-Peru diplomatic relations. He said the suspension was not the same as a formal break in relations.

The military leaders did not name the officials it considered responsible for the contract with International Petroleum Corp., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Ousted President Fernando Belaunde Terry helped draw up the agreement which gave back to the government oil fields in northern Peru that had been operated by IPC since 1924.

SEE DOLLAR LEAK

He was criticized by opposition members of parliament who said the contract made no provision for hundreds of millions of dollars IPC had taken from the country in resources.

The military leaders used the oil dispute as a pretext for taking power Thursday. Observers believe Gen. Juan Velasco, the army chief of staff who heads the "revolutionary government," is considering a complete takeover of the firm's assets.

In New York, a spokesman for Standard Oil said a satisfactory contract had been reached with the Belaunde government and no money was owed outside the contract.

Belaunde, in exile in Buenos Aires, said he would travel Sunday to Chile or Bolivia, countries bordering Peru, and await a call "to go back and fight."

Asked about charges of corruption in his regime, Belaunde said:

"I am willing to return to my country and submit myself to a trial to verify my assets. I can say emphatically that I came out of the government poorer than I went in."

In Washington, the U.S. government and other Western hemisphere nations held talks on recognition of the new military regime.

B.C. EMPLOYEES SHUN UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — People employed by the B.C. government were told Friday they are "working stiffs who are not earning the money they should be."

R. W. McMaster, a Liquor Control Board employee, also told the opening session of the Government Employees Association convention that the association should change its name.

He said the word "association" has brought nothing in the last 25 years and the word "union" should be incorporated in its place.

However, a resolution that would have changed the name to the union of B.C. provincial employees was defeated 32-48.

A second blow to the militants came when a bid to delete a section of the organization's constitution was turned down.

The section instructs members to: "co-operate with the government in establishing and maintaining the highest degree of efficiency and service to the public, free from political and personal patronage and discrimination."

"This is a company union clause," BCGEA executive member O. A. Pedersen told delegates.

"It has been mis-used time and time again by our employers, the provincial government.

"Let's be loyal eight hours a day and be paid for it and outside of that let's be union people and fight for our rights."

But when the convention voted on the resolution, which the resolutions committee urged be rejected, it was defeated.

"We were a trade union for just about 10 minutes there," commented one delegate.

The resolutions committee recommended non-concurrence on the first 12 resolutions placed before the convention.

Among those defeated was one which would allow calling of special convention sessions in the event BCGEA branches approve such a convention call by a 60 per cent vote.

R. [illegible] Lavigne, a delegate from the Essondale branch, told the convention he was appearing at his first convention after a nine-year absence.

Mr. Lavigne, who backed the motion for special convention sessions, said: "It's like old-home week coming back here.

"I see the same old reactionaries who are opposed to any change, being backed by a few young people they have trained."

He said excuses that special emergency sessions could not be called were "stupid" and said he and others were prepared to put up delegates to these special sessions and arrange accommodations.

federal forces with guerrilla warfare.

According to Major Taffy Williams, a 31-year-old Welsh mercenary who is second-in-command of the Biafran 4th commando: "As a guerrilla war, it will go on endlessly. The Biafrans feel they're going to die anyway, so they have nothing to lose. Their only hope is in someone else stopping the extermination."

Desperately clinging to his hope, Col Ojukwu has made his appeal to UN members to act under the genocide convention "for the prevention and suppression of acts of genocide being perpetrated by the Nigerian government and its armed forces, supported by the governments of the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and Egypt."

Bitterness Acute

Bitterness against the British remains acute — because it is British artillery, British armored cars and British ammunition that is enabling the federal forces to press their offensive against the desperately out-gunned Biafrans.

The Biafrans are also disillusioned at the lack of support from the United States. Among Western nations, France and Canada are their main hope.

Meanwhile, this nation continues to survice through heroic efforts of will and ingenuity. Everything is in short supply; food, water, electricity, gas, medicine, weapons and ammunition.

Fending off the British armored cars with bolt-action rifles and meagre stocks of ammunition, the Biafran soldiers are always hungry and sometimes do without food for three days. With every Biafran town that falls to the federal advance — even temporarily — thousands more refugees flock to the ramshackle camps and hospitals.

Death Toll High

No one can possibly tell how many people are starving. But one reliable expert, Dr. H. J. Middelkoop, from the Netherlands, the representative in Biafra of the World Council of Churches, thinks that more than 6,000 people are dying through starvation every day.

Some of the incredibly dedicated and over-worked relief personnel state that the situation has eased slightly in the past two weeks with greater supplies of food and medicine that come in every night from the Portuguese island of Sao Tome and the Spanish island of Fernando Po. As many as 20 aircraft — mostly DC-7s — complete the hazardous flight every night to a converted strip of highway in the middle of the bush.

According to Dr. Middelkoop, the relief agencies in Biafra are receiving a total of 160 to 200 tons of foodstuffs a day, mostly high-protein food to offset kwashiorkor, the protein-deficiency disease that turns the hair of the children red, bloats their bodies, hardens their skin and eventually kills them.

Canadian Help

As long as an airstrip remains in Biafran hands, Canada could also make important contributions to increasing the flow of food and medicines. Mr. Brewin and Mr. MacDonald have heard this plea from relief agency officials in both Umuahia and on Sao Tome, as well as from Biafran leaders.

Canadian Hercules aircraft are at the top of the list. According to Moses Ilo, secretary of the Biafran Red Cross, "if Canada could supply these, it would be a major contribution."

We'd like some Hercules more than anything else in the world," said Axel Duch, from Vancouver, chief of operations on Sao Tome for Nordchurchaid, the relief agency of the Scandinavian Protestant churches.

But Biafran leaders and relief officials are adamant that the most important contribution Canada could make would be to press at the United Nations for an end to the fighting.

Genocide Convention

In making its appeal under the genocide convention, the Biafran government has been advised by Maxwell T. Cohen, a mild-mannered lawyer from New York City who flew in to Umuahia last week after volunteering his services.

Mr. Cohen, 60, says that "all the evidence of genocide is here." Last Saturday, he observed an air raid on an Umahia market area, in which the Biafrans say at least 75 civilians were killed.

Mr. Cohen also cites statements to foreign newsmen by Col. Benjamin Adekunle, the Nigerian commander on the southern front. Above all, he stresses that starvation comes under the terms of the genocide convention and that Biafrans are starving by the thousands, and that the Nigerian war effort and blockade are aimed at a specific group of people—the Ibo tribe.

Like Biafran officials, Mr. Cohen is scornful of the reports from British, Canadian and other military observers on the federal side and thinks they are only being taken to showpiece villages.

and Victoria — is really significant," he said.

He said he feels "the party has something going for it.

"I've never been a flaming optimist," he said, but the show of support "is for real and I think it's got to be translated into public support."

Friday night, Mr. Perrault told the convention that Social Credit is on its last legs in the province. Only the Liberals offer a "viable alternative."

"If I didn't lead the party to victory in the province during my nine years as provincial leader, I feel I at least shortened the time when that victory will become a reality."

He said the party is in an excellent position to take advantage of what he predicted is the imminent collapse of Premier Bennett's government.

GREATER VOICE

Party officials say the new constitution gives its 10,000 members a greater voice in policy making.

The recommendations hand many of the functions of the 22 federal and 55 provincial constituency associations to 123 new district associations and six regional vice-presidents.

Mr. Jolivet said the constitution, with its sweeping change in party organization was two years in the making.

"The emphasis now is on the community associations rather than the riding — constituencies are an unbelievably impractical way of organizing things."

Mr. Jolivet said the new provincial organizational structure is the first of its kind in Canada and is also being considered by Liberal officials in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta.

Regional Health Boards Lack Doctors, Health Inspectors

NORTH COWICHAN — Ald. Margaret Robertson said Friday that five health boards in the province have no public health doctor.

Reporting as a delegate to the recent annual meeting of the Associated boards of Health of B.C. she said: "This is an extremely serious situation which must claim the urgent attention of all boards of health."

Mrs. Robertson also reported a "deplorable loss of public health inspectors" and said Dr. H. M. Morrison, chairman of the civil service commission, promised the convention this aspect of their problem would be given serious consideration.

NANAIMO — The traditional parish set-up of vicar and curate may soon disappear from the Roman Catholic Church says Rev. Philip Hanley.

"In its place we are considering a team structure, with all priests in the parish making their own contribution to policy decisions."

Father Hanley has just returned from a meeting of priests at Winnipeg where he was official delegate for the Victoria diocese.

He said the whole structure of the Roman Catholic parish was reviewed in an effort to determine priorities.

"We considered experimental types of parish structure, such as smaller churches and parishes, and groupings centred more on sociological than geographical lines."

DUNCAN — Executive director of the British Columbia SPCA Commander Francis Jones is to negotiate directly with Duncan and North Cowichan councils for financial assistance to the local branch.

This was announced Friday on the heels of the resignation of Duncan branch President Jim Egan.

Mr. Egan quit the post because he is moving to Thetis Island.

His place will be taken by an interim three-member committee of Mrs. Helen Washington, Mrs. William Jaggars and Mrs. J. Lang until a new slate of officers is elected in January.

The branch this week threatened closure of its shelter and entire operation unless financial aid was forthcoming from the municipal councils.

SPCA officials say $1,200 is needed to keep the branch solvent till the end of the year, and they hope a new contract will be based on a 50 cents per capita contribution from the two councils.

CAMPBELL RIVER — The reluctant Tyee salmon are now moving into their spawning grounds on the Campbell River but conservationists are still concerned about the small numbers.

Magistrate Roderick Haig-Brown estimated there were between 1,500 and 2,000 in the river when he made his check. "Visibility was limited and it was awfully hard to tell."

He could still offer no explanation as to why the springs had been slow in moving up the river this year.

He was considering suggesting to the sports fishing advisory council that an annual closure be placed on the the river on or about September 7 to ensure sufficient and proper escapement. Such a move would have to be made so it did not interfere with the cohoe fishing.

Fisheries Officer Joe Fielden did a low level aircraft check of the river and said the escapement was still well below normal he said the normal escapement is around 5,000 and generally there were a few on the spawning grounds by now. "I don't think though that we are going to get as many as usual."

Farmers Capture Spotlight

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture stole the show on Parliament Hill Friday, both inside the Commons and out, but a government proposal to limit opposition opportunities to question ministers drew the sharpest debate.

The grounds and roadways on the Hill took on a rural flavor as close to 100 tractors driven by farmers from Ontario's corn belt arrived to protest depressed prices for corn.

An opposition bid in the House for emergency debate in the corn situation, opposed by Agriculture Minister Olson among others, was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Mr. Olson met the farmers in front of the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings and was jeered and heckled as he read a statement promising to take their case to the United States government. The farmers say U.S. corn entering the Canadian market at low prices is harming their sales.

ROUSES OPOSITION

But it was a letter sent to all MPs by Donald Macdonald, government House leader, outlining plans for reduced attendance by ministers during the daily question period that brought the opposition to its feet.

Prime Minister Trudeau attempted to convince members the curtailment of ministerial attendance would lead to an improved question period. Members could better channel their questions to the proper minister and all would come better prepared.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) branded Mr. Trudeau's explanation "the very height of political hypocrisy."

Nevertheless, Mr. Trudeau said the question period experiment begins Monday. If it doesn't work to Parliament's advantage, he promised to abandon the scheme.

CUTS ATTENDANCE

On the ministers-question period debate, Mr. Macdonald's letter said all ministers will attend if possible on Wednesdays but only 12 to 17 of the 28 ministers will be present on other days.

Mr. Trudeau will aim at answering questions daily. If a minister is absent on a day on which he is due to answer questions, his parliamentary secretary can answer for him. But if he isn't due to attend, the opposition won't get replies.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, termed the proposal "calculated contempt" against all MPs. Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said it was an "attempt to cool the question period."

Mr. Trudeau said the change was proof the government was keeping an election promise to improve the working of Parliament.

"If it doesn't work to the benefit of Parliament, we'll go back to the old conservative way."

This prompted Mr. Baldwin to ask whether the people of Canada had not "taken enough chance with novelty already."

HELP FOR FARMERS

The House finally got down to the main business of the day, a proposal to double the maximum payment to farmers under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act to $6,000 from $3,000.

This resolution was approved and a bill based on it given first reading. It was to come up for debate again shortly.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, said the measure will not only raise size of advance payments but will double the rate at which such payments are made. The new rate will be $1 per bushel of wheat, 40 cents for oats and 70 cents for barley.

Opposition MPs welcomed the proposal but urged other measures to improve the western grain picture.

The Commons is scheduled to return to other farm-credit legislation Monday.

WALLACE
STOP THE WAR AGAINST BLACK AMERICA

'WALLACE, GO HOME' chanted several hundred hecklers as they began to walk out on the third-party candidate at a rally attended by 8,500 in Buffalo Friday. (AP Wirephoto)

HECKLERS SPARE NOBODY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hecklers are making life a little tougher for presidential candidates in the Nov. 5 election campaign.

Demonstrators harassed Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon in Hartford, Conn., until Nixon supporters shouted them down. Nixon's vice-presidential candidate, Gov. Spiro Agnew, was interrupted at Spokane, Wash., by shouts of "Humphrey, Humphrey," and third-party candidate George C. Wallace was challenged by cries of "Wallace go home" in Buffalo, N.Y., until the protestors marched out.

But Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey, who has encountered some fierce heckling on his campaign trips, was resting in Washington, waiting for a possible endorsement from the board of Americans for Democratic Action, a body of liberal Democrats.

The ADA has endorsed peace candidate Senator Eugene McCarthy, defeated by Humphrey for the Democratic nomination.

NEEDS BACKING

Humphrey's supporters say an endorsement from the ADA is vital for rallying party members opposed to the Vietnam war to the vice-president's side. Many prominent Democrats say they expect McCarthy to endorse Humphrey during a New York campaign appearance next Tuesday.

The heckling that disrupted Wallace's campaign in Buffalo was described as no worse than usual, and Wallace outlasted their jers.

But when the protestors matched out of the auditorium and later moved 200-strong, down a street, a passing car fired a volley of .22-calibre shots, police said. Officers said eight buildings were hit but no one was hurt.

Wallace was in his hotel room when the shooting occurred.

After his supporters drowned out the hecklers in Hartford, Nixon observed:

"I can see there's quite a significant difference between heckling a Nixon meeting and a Humphrey meeting. At a Nixon meeting you shout down the hecklers."

The Democratic vice-presidential candidate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie, confirmed a report that he wrote a letter to President Johnson last January urging a bombing halt in North Vietnam.

Muskie said: "I prefer that route to the public route that others are more comfortable with."

White House press secretary George Christian branded as "poison" reports President Johnson's withholding campaign funds from Humphrey.

"The president is not holding back on anything," said Christian.

LESAGE
. . . "my duty to remain"

Cheering Grits Shout Confidence in Lesage

By DAVE BAZAY

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 1,200 cheering Liberals Friday night stood up and were counted as fervent supporters of Jean Lesage, who told them he could not continue as provincial party leader without their vote of confidence.

The thundering display of unanimity over Mr. Lesage's leadership opened the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation, troubled by internal strife since the party lost power in the June 5, 1966, general election. The meeting ends Sunday.

Mr. Lesage, criticized by both federation members and some MLAs since the election loss, spoke in defense of his leadership for about 35 minutes in an address opening the annual meeting. Then he said:

"I also have eyes and ears. I know that there are those who ask the question of whether I should quit as chief of the Liberal party."

The 56-year-old leader, premier of Quebec for six of his 10 years as Liberal party chief, said he continued as leader after the 1966 election because "I felt it my duty to remain at the helm when the boat was horribly shaken."

He finally got out the question:

"Does Jean Lesage still have the confidence of the Liberals of Quebec?"

The Liberals rose to their feet, cheered, hooted and sang the French version of "For he's a jolly good fellow" in an outburst of applause that lasted for minutes. Before Mr. Lesage could resume his prepared address, someone shouted:

"Mr. Lesage, you don't only have my confidence; you have my life."

When Party Whip Pierre Laporte, MLA for the Montreal-area riding of Chambly, proposed a formal vote of confidence in Mr. Lesage, the Liberals again rose to their feet for more cheering and singing.

There was little doubt from the start that Mr. Lesage would get the vote of confidence. When he walked to the podium to give his address he was given a two-minute ovation.

See Also Interpretive Story Page 4

Mr. Laporte, one of the men in the party who has never concealed his interest in becoming Mr. Lesage's successor, appealed for a unanimous vote of confidence in the name of "Unity, realism and dynamism."

He described Mr. Lesage as "the greatest premier of Quebec," a man with proven ability who could lead the Liberals back to power at a time when the Union Nationale was "trying to make a premier out of a man who has never played more than second fiddle."

The new Union Nationale premier is Jean-Jacques Bertrand, lieutenant of Premier Daniel Johnson who died of a heart attack Sept. 26. Mr. Bertrand was sworn in as premier Wednesday.

In his speech, Mr. Lesage said it had not been "easy for him to exercise leadership over the party in recent years amid "the upheaval in Quebec society," and the years since the last election "have been difficult for me. I won't try to conceal it."

He said the party had to intensify its attempt to beat out policies at "the heart of renewal," but its main political task remained to gain the confidence of voters, to win a majority of seats in the legislative assembly.

On the eve of the convention, criticism was levelled at Mr. Lesage by former education minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who Lesage backers say is inspired by personal ambition to become Liberal leader.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie has said that the provincial Liberals are too inward looking, too organization-oriented and too insensitive to ideas from outside normal party circles. Mr. Lesage denied all of this in his speech without naming Mr. Gerin-Lajoie.

The former education minister, who denies immediate leadership aspirations and who describes himself as a good Liberal, watched the display of confidence from a position near the back of the meeting room at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. He had no comment.

School Fund Bylaw Backed

Officials from School District 63, the Saanich Peninsula, have spoken to nearly 15 organizations in the area in their campaign for the $4 million school referendum, Oct. 19.

A brochure now is being prepared for distribution Oct. 10 answering likely questions about the referendum which would add 33 classrooms, an industrial arts shop, libraries, activity rooms and lunchrooms to the peninsula's school system.

Board chairman Nora Lindsay said all 18 schools in the district, which extends from Royal Oak to Sidney, now are seriously overcrowded. There had been no new construction for 3½ years and passage of the referendum was needed to prevent a critical situation from becoming worse.

U.S. Forces Encircle Viet Guerrilla Camp

SAIGON (AP) — More than 1,000 United States infantrymen and scores of warplanes attacked a guerrilla base camp in marshlands southwest of Saigon and killed at least 111 soldiers, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

The infantrymen apparently caught the guerrillas by surprise in the sparsely-populated marshes 58 miles southwest of the capital Friday.

Another 1,000 U.S. troops were rushed to the area by helicopters and threw a cordon around the camp. Three American helicopters were hit by ground fire but managed to land on their own power.

As the infantrymen held the guerrillas in place, jet fighter-bombers, gunships and artillery blasted away at them for 13 hours.

The spokesmen claimed only one American was killed.

The Viet Cong force was estimated at from 150 to 300. Survivors were believed to have slipped out of the American cordon after dark Friday.

Communist explosives disabled a vital bridge linking Saigon with the food supplies of the fertile Mekong Delta today, just six weeks after a $130,000 project had repaired damage of an earlier attack.

The 1,700-foot Ben Luc bridge, 16 miles southwest of Saigon, is considered so important that a battalion of perhaps 500 South Vietnamese troops has been stationed in the area for security. But guerrillas have managed to slip floating demolition charges past the government soldiers.

Officials estimated it will take about three weeks to repair the span, which had reopened Aug. 22 after seven weeks of repairs.

Traffic was rerouted over a pontoon bridge.

About 50 U.S. B-52s pummelled Communist base camps, troop concentrations, bunkers and supply areas along the jungled invasion routes north and northwest of Saigon.

Ex-Castro Aide Flees Prison

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A former leader of Fidel Castro's revolutionary army was reported Friday to have escaped a Cuban prison and fled to the mountains where he is setting up a guerrilla base.

The report came on the heels of a wave of sabotage and 24 anti-Castro arrests.

The exile news agency AIP said Maj. Jaime Vega and 60 other prisoners escaped from a camp near Moron in Camaguey province with the aid of an army lieutenant guarding them.

Unsolicited Advice

THE PUBLIC URGING OF THE late President Kennedy several years ago that Canada should join the Organization of American States roused Canadian opposition despite his personal popularity and did nothing to promote an otherwise reasonable move. Similarly, U.S. State Secretary Rusk's blunt advice to Ottawa to maintain Canada's present military strength in NATO's European forces will inspire opposition even among those who favor strong Canadian participation in the mutual defence organization.

Canada can never forget its position as a relatively small population beside a country ten times its size, which in addition is the military and industrial leader of the West, if not of the world. We cannot calmly accept opinions from our neighbors which appear to try to direct our own formulation of policy, still less to coerce us. This is a fact which Mr. Rusk appears not to understand—he committed a similar error five years ago when he criticized Canada's contribution to NORAD. We cannot in any way take on the appearance of a directed satellite if we are to uphold the reality of our sovereignty.

But, just as we cannot permit our policies to be proposed by Washington, it is equally important that we do not fall into the trap of asserting our independence by automatically reacting negatively to such outside influences. Canadian participation in NATO's European defences should be decided on a factual, not an emotional, basis. The facts will include an estimate of the need in view of Russia's newly deployed forces and recent ruthless march into Czechoslovakia, a survey of our existing forces, a decision on the exact function which our forces should perform, a review of our financial capability, and a close examination of the political factors involved in participation—by which is meant our retention of a voice in international affairs and our general international standing.

These are among the criteria which we should apply, along with consideration of the expressed hopes of Britain, West Germany and other allies. There is also the matter of bargaining power — an important concession such as troop withdrawal should be used to obtain a matching one from Moscow. And there is the wider concept of the role of NATO forces in keeping West Germany and Russia from a direct confrontation in the heart of Europe. Armed within the NATO organization, West Germany can contribute to Western defences without constituting an individual threat to the Soviet Union and giving Moscow an excuse for still further military build-ups.

Against such considerations — and they clearly add up to continued participation — Mr. Rusk's badly handled expression of opinion on Canada's responsibilities must appear as a minor irritation. Let us keep it in that perspective.

Massive Retaliation

THE OLYMPIC GAMES WILL apparently go ahead as scheduled, but this week's bloodshed has left a pall over Mexico City that the sports spectacle will not clear away. The Games will suffer just as the Democratic convention was marred by the violence that attended it in the streets of Chicago. There are parallels between the two incidents.

In both cities the authorities were grimly determined that nothing was going to interefere with their extravaganza and in each case the over-zealousness of police and troops created a more harmful impression abroad than any demonstration could ever do. The events in Mexico City were particularly tragic. At least 29 persons were killed and hundreds wounded by gunfire. Mexicans were shocked because the two-month-old student protest seemed to be simmering down and the heavy-handed use of troops against a small group of hard-core agitators appeared uncalled for.

Apparently the government believed a show of force was necessary to discourage outbursts during the Games. It is still unclear whether the intimidation tactics will have their desired effect. In any case, there is little doubt that they resulted in a change of attitude by many who previously had disapproved of the students' actions. After the slaughter in the Plaza of the Three Cultures they turned their criticism on the government, urging it to exercise restraint.

Student insults and provocations are the acts of young people, one newspaper editor observed, and the government is adult and should know how to swallow its pride. "This adulthood must function in the future—in all its fulness," he added. It is sound advice for authorities elsewhere when confronted with youthful protest.

Breeze of Change in Burma

DURING THE SIX YEARS since General Ne Win led the coup d'etat which fastened a firm military rule on Burma, with himself at the controls, little has come from that country suggesting liberalization in its government. Recently, however, the general indicated a softening in the attitude of the military to the civilian elements of his nation. He informed his commanders that the army "cannot monopolize politics" and said that "all must participate."

The statement follows the little-publicized and intermittent release of civilian leaders held in detention since the 1962 coup, and it has led to the belief that greater freedom is to be permitted. Practical reasons are seen for such a course. Unity is needed partly because the economy of Burma has been deteriorating, partly because dissidence is growing within the country despite the rigid control that has been exercised by the military. In addition Burma is facing potential difficulties with China.

There is no suggestion that the winds of change will reach gale proportions. At this point they are little more than breezes, but upon them is borne the scent of liberalization. The reported trend can be applauded by all to whom repression is distasteful and to whom the liberties of the individual are precious.

The Stones Preserved

ONCE MORE THE "IMPOSSIBLE" has been accomplished. The huge statues, temples and other archeological treasures of Abu Simbel have been rescued from drowning in the rising waters behind the Aswan dam. Ramses II looks down from an elevation 200 feet above the original site of his stone throne and representatives of 50 nations, with tremendous labor and about $36 million expense, have accomplished a prodigy 20 months ahead of schedule.

Thus, with herculean effort, the priceless, though inanimate relics of an early civilization have been preserved from destruction by the co-operative work of many lands of many differences but joined in a common objective.

An inevitable anomaly is presented. The stone images of personages long dead, and their temples, have been saved — and rightly so. But what of the living in other parts of troubled Africa?

Disappointing

Phyllis D. Masser, Research Fellow, Print Department, Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, following a recent visit, states: "Seeing again the magnificent examples of Northwest Indian art in Victoria in a new setting should have been a richly rewarding experience. Instead it was shocking, disappointing and frustrating."

These words expressed my own feelings. After visiting the museum several times the $80,000 Indian display was a great disappointment to me. The Indians in the large Indian canoe did not look like Indians with their hair done up on top of their heads in a bun with whisps of hair flying. The black water and waves and the blacker whale were most unrealistic.

The darkness of the room was detrimental to having a good look at the carved figures; but, what worried me most of all was the noise of the pouring rain from an overhead contraption on either end of the canoe. This might leave an impression of ever-pouring rain in British Columbia.

The museum stands with grace and beauty overlooking the San Juan Strait, between the Empress and the Legislative Buildings, and adds to an inspiring picture on entering the Victoria Harbor. — M. M. Pugh.

A Glimmer of Hope in a New Autonomous Palestine

Frye

IN the midst of frustration and shadow-boxing on many of the world's key issues — Vietnam, Czechoslovakia, disarmament, the future of Berlin and Germany — there is one area in which diplomats are working hard and purposefully, if as yet with scant result: the Middle East. There is, at last, a feeling of real urgency here about an Arab-Israel settlement. If meaningful progress is not made in the next few weeks, many feel the point of no return may be passed, with a new war becoming virtually inevitable.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk sought to convey this sense of urgency to Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban this past week. Rusk wants Eban to come forward with a detailed outline of a settlement, as Israel would invisage it, so there can be more meaningful private exchanges with Egypt and Jordan through UN mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

The Arab states have gone some distance toward indicating what they hope for. But Israel still wants the detailed negotiation, as distinct from preliminary exchanges, to take place directly with Arab representatives, and hesitates to begin laying her cards on the table until they are sitting opposite her. They refuse.

This deadlock led Secretary-General U Thant to remark last week, in his annual "State of the World" message, that the Mideast "dialogue" could not be "fruitful if it is substantive on one side but only procedural on the other."

Many people are trying to lend a hand. Even the Soviet Union has made a move of sorts, offering a "peace plan" to the United States.

This plan does not appeal to Israel. It calls, in essence, for Israeli withdrawal from conquered territory in return for words from the Arabs and the Big Four — a disavowal of Arab "belligerency" and big-power "guarantee" of Mideast peace.

Arbitrary Eviction Order

The words would be followed by re-establishment of a substantial UN presence in evacuated territory, but unless Israel accepted the force on her soil as well, there would be little if any protection against another arbitrary eviction order like the one U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser issued to UNEF in May, 1967.

Remaining issues, including Jerusalem, the Suez Canal, and the Straits of Tiran would be left for subsequent negotiation.

Slanted though it may be, the fact that Moscow has come forward with any concrete suggestions at all is considered encouraging by some. If properly followed up, it might help nudge the negotiating process forward.

Meanwhile not enough attention is being given to a curious coincidence: that on the one limited subject, key Arabs and key Israelis are coming close to saying the same thing.

The subject is the creation of an autonomous state of Palestine on the West Bank of the Jordan. Yigal Allon, the Israeli deputy prime minister, has publicly proposed such an entity, and at least one high-ranking Jordanian diplomat has privately endorsed a similar idea in talks with this correspondent.

A major purpose of the project would be to offer the more than 1 million Arab refugees, new and old, an opportunity to settle permanently in a portion of the Holy Land which they could regard as home, under a government they themselves would create and constitute.

The refugees would be given a limited period, perhaps two years, to accept resettlement in the new state of Palestine, with compensation for lost property in what is now Israel. American and other money would be plowed into making the new country viable for its people.

The state, once established, would be given a choice between remaining independent or associating, in some fashion, with Jordan (of which the territory is now legally a part, though de facto it is held by Israel).

The idea appeals to Jordan because it would remove from the East Bank the nearly 600,000 bitter and increasingly well armed refugees now encamped there, providing a serious peril to King Hussein's throne. The King is unpopular with many of them.

The idea also appeals to Israel in that it provides for refugee settlement without significant repatriation to pre-1967 Israeli territory.

Where the two versions of the plan differ is in the geographical limits of the proposed state. Allon would make it an island inside Israel, a kind of hole in the doughnut, except for a corridor linking Palestine with Jordan.

Choke Off the Corridor

For reasons of military security, he would have Israel annex the lightly-populated Jordan Valley, so that Israeli territory would embrace Palestine on both the west (as at present) and on the east. Israel would be able to choke off the corridor if she wished to apply pressure on Palestine.

This "doughnut" feature is a severe stumbling block. So many other features seem mutually agreeable, however, that the basic idea would appear worth serious exploration. Perhaps the Jordan Valley could be demilitarized and patrolled by the UN as a contribution to Israeli security.

Quebec Liberals Examine Their New Opportunities

McDowell

THE annual congress of the Quebec Liberal Federation here this weekend will focus on a subdued and uneasy assessment of the impact of Premier Daniel Johnson's death and the ascent to power of the man known as the Union Nationale's federalist reformer, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand. When he was in power Mr. Lesage liked to say that having Daniel Johnson as opposition leader was his greatest asset. Like many others, including most reporters, Mr. Lesage turned out to be badly mistaken in that assessment of Mr. Johnson.

But this past summer, as Pierre Trudeau's strong election showing in Quebec was followed by a Liberal party survey that found the province more interested in social and economic problems that in the constitution, Mr. Lesage was again beginning to look on Mr. Johnson's nationalistic record as an asset.

Increasingly Quebec Liberals felt their political future lay in turning firmly toward federalism and co-operation with Ottawa, leaving the nationalist vote to be divided between the UN and the clearly separatist parties. Meanwhile they would do what they could to hang a separatist label on Mr. Johnson.

Social, Economic Issues

Even Paul Gerin-Lajoie, the brilliant former education minister who had been the strongest nationalist voice in the party since the departure of Rene Levesque, had recently been insisting that his views have always been federalist and that social and economic issues should be Quebec's chief concern.

All was in order to make this weekend a demonstration of party solidarity in a party turned toward federalism and united behind Mr. Lesage.

Sources of potential conflict were eliminated by the election by acclamation of Jean Tetrault, one of the most loyal of Lesage men, as party president, and a decision not to discuss in possibly controversial detail the party's constitutional policy.

But since Mr. Johnson's death everything has been open to question, beginning with Mr. Lesage's leadership.

"As long as the UN has Bertrand, who's been around since 1948, we hardly need a new leader," one of the rising young men of the party said this week.

This view may be popular among the younger generation of potential leaders, men who would have a better chance if a leadership convention were put off for a few more years. But there are chinks in the argument.

The UN leadership convention is now expected to be held about a year from now. And if the party manages to preserve under Mr. Bertrand the appearance of solidarity it had under Mr. Johnson, that convention can be expected to be either a triumph for a new man like education minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, or a thumping endorsement of the "new" Jean-Jacques Bertrand that has emerged in a year's leadership.

And if the Liberals run true to form, alternating periods of buoyant over-confidence with sessions of gloomy and divisive introspection, they will then begin a panicky discussion of the need to replace Jean Lesage, at the moment when the UN is getting ready to hit them with an election.

This, at least, is a prospect that is disturbing a few Liberals as they meet this weekend.

In some quarters of the party there is a strong belief that they should, at least, arrange as soon as possible for a vote that would either demonstrate publicly that the party is united behind Mr. Lesage, or show that a convention is necessary.

The party's recent constitutional orientation also must be examined in the light of Mr. Bertrand, known as a federalist, being premier.

Unless the pressures of office force Mr. Bertrand into a more nationalist posture — and this is a genuine possibility—the Liberals cannot now be so sure that they could win a majority by cornering the federalist vote.

It would be much more difficult to hang a separatist label on Mr. Bertrand, unless he changes course sharply in the coming months, than it would have been in Mr. Johnson's case.

But there is the compensating advantage that the Liberals are less likely to lose nationalist votes to Mr. Bertrand than they were to Mr. Johnson.

They must, however, consider the possibility that a more federalist stance on the part of both major parties will tip votes toward Rene Levesque's sovereignty movement, giving him the balance of voting power in enough ridings to swing the outcome of a general election.

Liberals Lose Support

For the moment this possibility appears more threatening to the UN than to the Liberals. With the expulsion of Mr. Levesque, and the toning down of Mr. Gerin-Lajoie's nationalist stance, the Liberals have already lost most of the nationalist support they once had.

For the UN any such losses, resulting from the change from Mr. Johnson's leadership to that of Mr. Bertrand, are still to come.

This weekend the official business of the provincial Liberals gathered here will be to debate resolutions on policies aimed at meeting the social and economic problems of Quebec.

But although their party has always been turned more toward policy and less toward pure, partisan electoralism than its major rival, their minds will be mainly on the puzzle of the impact of the change in UN leadership on their hopes of winning the next election.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

For an interesting outing go over to Beaver Point on Salt Spring Island. Follow the Easterly road out from Fulford Harbour.

As you drive along the winding road there are very many things of interest, including orchards laden with apples by the road side.

You encounter many interesting types of fences, and in one place there is a rail snake fence that runs for over a mile. Some are rail and post "wired".

You go by Weston Lake, whose surface is mirror-like except when a fish rises to leave every-widening ripples. Here can be found the large bull frog. There is no doubt that this species of frog has been introduced into this lake, how and when who knows.

When you come to a large bend in the road drive slowly and see the well-kept old type of houses that sit back in a meadow behind a beautiful grove of trees. They are two and a half storeys high with many gables and steep roofs. This is something out of the past (we sincerely hope that they will be kept as they are).

The pastures are lush and green with many sheep grazing. Perhaps you will see a deer feeding among them.

The cottonwoods and the elms that have been introduced are now turning gold. Mingled with the reddish-purple of the osier dogwoods it makes a "shutter-bugs" delight.

As you drop down to the sea, the misty islands come into view and you are in a different world. Here the cry of the gull will greet you and the surge of the waters will make music if you listen.

Wander up to the rocky slopes where there are many slabs of sandstone. There is a rock cairn built here. Why not add one more rock to the pile.

If you turn over one of these slabs you will find many spiders and other little creatures living there. (Be sure and replace the rock as you found it.)

Go down to the beach and see the fantastic shapes that the waves have cut into this soft sandstone. There are pot-holes, shelves, funnels and many places where it looks as if one had tried to make gigantic colanders.

There are tiny little bays where the beaches are almost snow white from the broken clam and oyster shells.

Sit a while and look out to sea. The coast ferries with their blue and white colors and perhaps a tug with a logboom tow, show against the misty isles.

Slow and Steady Stanfield Strategy

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — This weekend Robert Stanfield holds an important meeting at Stornoway, his official residence, with a small group of senior Conservatives to discuss the formation of a policy committee which he hopes will produce fresh ideas for his party's resurgence.

The man who will be named to head the committee is T. H. B. Symons, the Oxford— and Harvard — educated Canadian historian who is president of Trent University at Peterborough.

Professor Symons played a similar role in last June's election though it was called too suddenly for his advice to have much effect.

Panel of Experts

The party hopes to recruit a national panel of about 70 academic experts in every field under federal jurisdiction, men who can not only write position papers but come to Ottawa periodically to brief caucus members on specific problems.

Eventually, it's hoped there will be some kind of open-line. Two-way communication between the MPs and the professors so that the opposition can react quickly not only in criticizing the Trudeau government's initiatives but in suggesting constructive alternatives.

The policy - committee idea accurately reflects Stanfield's philosophy of opposition. He's well aware that the mood of the country is to give the new government a chance and that any political opponent who attempts to color it black at this point does so at his peril.

Just Be There

The Conservative leader's chief aim at the moment is simply to be there, presenting attractive policy proposals as the head of a credible alternative government. He knows that he has to win the electorate away from a far more dashing suitor and he's going about it in a characteristic sober-sided, long-headed, slow-and-steady best manner.

In the House of Commons, Stanfield intends relentlessly to question the government's actions but is anxious not to give the impression of trying to bludgeon, trick or corner it.

To friends he says he's bitterly disappointed by the Trudeau ministry's lack of compassion, bureaucratic coldness and incipient arrogance.

He thinks the first group who'll be disillusioned by the new withdrawn Trudeau are the intellectuals who were the first to back him, mainly because the government is not advancing the kind of enlightened foreign policy it promised. (Stanfield points out that Mitchell Sharp's posture on the Biafran situation might very easily and comfortably have been assumed by Paul Martin, except that Martin would have been much more adroit in obscuring the issue by wrapping it in an opaque tissue of meaningless phrases.)

Stanfield's chief problem is still his inability to rouse emotion, to project the vitality of the winner. John Diefenbaker isn't exactly helping him by continuing to perform like the nimblest old character actor in a first-rate repertory company.

He gives out highly quotable capsule comments on any subject that happens to come up and can be seen every afternoon rushing out of the Commons into camera range as soon as question period is over. Stanfield can scarcely be happy about Diefenbaker's dexterity in hogging air time but his staff insists that there is no tension between the two men.

Neither is there any consultation. John Diefenbaker has attended only one party caucus since Halloween, 1967. Most Conservative MPs from the Prairies are still in greater accord with his stern partisan stands than with the more conciliatory responses of Stanfield.

But this is due more to a basic compatibility of thought than to any active attempt by the Prince Albert politician to undermine the leader.

The most striking change in the party is the order and efficiency that has been brought to its parliamentary performances. Instead of expending energy on plotting revolutions and counter-revolutions, the MPs are, for the first time in years, carrying out their proper function.

The two dozen departmental critics lunch with Stanfield every Tuesday to plan the party's Commons strategy. George Hees, the caucus chairman, meets MPs every morning to set up tactics for question period and the preparation is telling.

Front Bench Strong

The Tory front bench is strong, with Ged Baldwin proving an effective and intelligent House leader. The most valuable new addition from the June election is Lincoln Alexander from Hamilton.

ALEXANDER

At the moment Alexander is spending most of his spare time responding to speaking invitations. There have been so many that party headquarters officials plan to arrange a national tour for him; he has a pungent wit and a more contemporary style than many of the young Trudeau swingers.

Stanfield himself is keeping his speaking engagements to a minimum, partly because he doesn't believe the man-hours that go into the writing and presentation of a formal luncheon address justify the resultant exposure.

Instead, he plans to travel more and do his own research into national and local problems.

Talk to People

Later this month, for example, he'll fly out to Roberts Bank, the new port development in British Columbia, to talk to people in the municipalities concerned and the conservationists who have been complaining about the scheme. By exposing himself to problems, he hopes to ask sharper questions in the House.

The Conservatives' defeat last June 25 was harshly unequivocal. But they comfort themselves with the thought that the vote was more of a pro-Trudeau mandate than a rejection of Stanfield. If not exactly jubilant, the Tories are by no means discouraged.

Stanfield himself laconically expressed the Tories' dominant mood on the day he moved into Stornoway.

He looked around the elegant Rockcliffe residence, then said in his usual drier than dog-biscuit drawl, "I guess I'll manage to rough it here for four years."

SYMONS

A Rebel Silence On Two Big Questions

By ART STOTT

Stott

In what was described on CBC as a "happening" the other evening, senior university people discussed with dissatisfied students the student rebellion in Canada. Some of us who watched and listened wound up asking ourselves if anything had happened, or if the program might better have been called a "non-happening".

Stated positions by different factions were repeated, apparently without influencing the outlook of others who disagreed. People talked and their words seemed to fall on deaf ears.

Two of a number of questions left unanswered by those to whom they were addressed impressed me. One sought from students a statement of what they would do, assuming their rebellion was successful, if it had not already been successful. From the voluble young people there came no coherent reply. Efforts to pin any of them down on the responsibilities students would accept if, or when, they achieved greater control of universities failed. The students seemed to be saying: "So long as we're rolling, who cares where we're headed. And we're going to keep on rolling".

When they were asked why they did not take advantage of educational forces beyond the limits of the university and thereby escape the restrictions placed upon them by universities, they shouted, in effect, "We've got to eat. We've got to have degrees to get the jobs to receive the wages to pay for the groceries".

That paraphrase of their reply showed some concern for reality, but not enough. A lot of people without degrees have to eat also—have had to eat for a generation or so and also to feed and house young people seeking university degrees that seem to equip them for higher-paid work. And, perhaps by coincidence, there are people whose taxes go to pay much of the costs of universities.

The other basic question which did not elicit a coherent reply sought a statement on the percentage of students the protesting spokesmen represented. One said he'd rather not answer that, swinging off at a tangent to avoid a reply.

In the fumble-bloom that blossomed during the ensuing student remarks, the impression was created that perhaps the dissatisfied did not represent the majority. The implied admission appeared to carry a qualification. The non-protesting, one spokesman inferred, didn't know any better than to accept what was given to them at the dictates of authority. The majority, it seemed, had been brainwashed by the "establishment" and the student rebellion was not reaching far enough down into the Canadian educational process. Perhaps, he suggested, more missionary work of protest should be done among the secondary schools.

The argument invites a further progression: If the rebellion fails to enlist sufficient supporters in secondary school, then why not penetrate the elementary schools?

From the elementary group it is a simple slide down to pre-primary and pre-school. But here a hazard arises. Pre-primary and pre-school children, we're told, carry the influences of the home and there you encounter the generation of parents with the traditional background of a society against which the dissatisfied students rebel.

It may be a modern heresy, but you also hear these days voices, presumably informed voices and certainly those issuing from people with experience, stating that the young need, and on occasion, want discipline, want form and want structure in the learning processes. No one of my acquaintance believes that the existing formal educational systems are perfect, though some of them are bold enough to suggest that they work with reasonable effectiveness for most young people.

Improvements can, and should, be made. But the process of change becomes more impressive when its advocates indicate the direction in which it is aimed and the goals to which it aspires.

At the "non-happening" the other evening that aim and those goals were not defined. What would you do? the students were asked. They didn't say.

Which recalls the comment of a distinguished university president a year or two ago who noted that students were embarked on a crusade, but didn't know what they were crusading for.

Canada Helps Africans Grow Own Wheat

By PATRICK BEST

ARUSHA, Tanzania — Canadian scientists are helping to change the centuries-old ways of life of African people by giving them more bread.

They are doing this by adapting wheat breeds and growing techniques of the Western world to the heavy loams of East Africa.

As the standard of living rises in Tanzania and Kenya there is a growing demand for bread in place of the traditional diets of maize, cassava and rice. So the need to grow more wheat increases accordingly.

But there are natural and human obstacles that the Canadians' own ancestors never encountered in their pioneer days on the prairies.

There is resistance from the tribes whose tradition is to hunt and eat game, and from nomadic herdsmen who don't want to settle down as farmers.

Tanzania produces 35,000 tons of wheat a year, which is only half the amount the people eat. It fills the gap by importing hard wheat from Canada and Australia and soft wheat from nearby Kenya.

Now, as part of its general policy of promoting socialism and self-reliance in an agricultural economy, Tanzania has embarked upon a plan to become self-sufficient in wheat production in the next five years. It would like to begin to feed the potential markets of Zambia and the Congo as well.

Kenya planted more than 300,000 acres of wheat last year, and the harvest—exceeding two million 200-pound bags—put the country in an export position. This year about 30,000 tons were sold abroad — the first sizeable crop ever to be exported overseas.

A main purpose in the wheat drive by Kenya in the lands of the Masai warrior tribe is to use the crops as a means of helping the once resistant tribesmen to catch up with development in other parts of the country. It is significant that African farmers in Kenya now account for more than 30 per cent of wheat production.

It is in Tanzania that the Canadian experts have encountered more problems. A five-member team headed by Mr. J. E. Beamish, chief of the water development service of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration in Regina, has been assessing Tanzania's potential.

They have been to Basotu in northern Tanzania where the government plans a wheat scheme on a wind-swept playwan 5,800 feet above sea level. This is meant to be the focal point for a 200,000 acre project.

One problem is that rainfall seems to vary from mile to mile. Also some of the soil may be too shallow. Then there are the high winds blowing across the volcanic soils: even if wheat strains are adapted to resist drought and disease, the wind may whip off the maturing wheat heads.

There are other hazards. The wheat scheme has met with hostility from the spear-carrying Wamangati. Graham Mann, 26-year-old graduate of Aberdeen University and British technical aid officer directing the scheme, found the tires cut off his lorry. An African teacher living nearby had his nose and ears cut off and died.

Millions of people in East Africa are emerging from the era of subsistence economies at a time when their leaders recognise the nutritive value of wheat. The current wheat study programs are likely to influence the habits and standard of living of these populations in the years ahead—even if they will never produce the harvest bonanzas of 600 million bushels seen on the prairies of Canada.

Ancient Tribal Law Blends With the New In Pushing Through Eskimo Baby Adoptions

By ELINOR READING

CORAL HARBOR, N.W.T. — There are two kinds of law in the Northwest Territories: one made in Ottawa, the other handed down in the Arctic from beyond memory.

In Mr. Justice William Morrow's travelling territorial court, the two are taking their first steps together in a drive to register Eskimo adoptions.

During a swing through communities along the northwestern shores of Hudson Bay, the court cut the first chunk out of a backlog of adoptions technically good in Canadian law but unconfirmed by any formal record.

In four days at Coral Harbor, Rankin Inlet, Eskimo Point and Baker Lake, the court prepared 82 adoption orders.

Eskimo custom, developed in small, closely-knit communities, requires neither signed documents nor social workers to ratify an adoption. If both sets of parents agree, the baby simply is "given" to its new family without ceremony, as soon as possible after birth.

A 1961 decision by Mr. Justice John H. Sissons, first justice of the territorial court of the Northwest Territories, established such adoptions as valid. But a court order comes in handy for social insurance numbers or mothers' allowance, innovations the Eskimos are as quick to appreciate as power toboggans.

"They catch on fast," Mr. Justice Morrow says.

His improvised courtrooms, usually in a school or recreation hall, are marked with a flag outside the door and filled with baby noises. Court proceedings often pause while the judge asks the spectators when a certain man will be back from hunting. When he does return, Mr. Justice Morrow is likely to ask him whether he got anything.

MORROW

Through an interpreter, the judge makes sure both sets of parents are satisfied with the adoption, and has each sign a consent form. Often, as a woman leans forward to sign, a small face peers over her shoulder to see what she's doing.

In her voluminous hood, a child will nestle from infancy until the age of two, or, as one girl explained, "until you have another baby."

If the other baby comes too soon, someone is likely to adopt him.

Generations of a harsh nomadic life have taught the Eskimo to think that a child properly belongs to whatever parents can give him the most attention and the best chance to survive.

Reasons frequently given for adoptions are that the child's natural parents had other children too near his age, that he was one of twins or simply that the adopting parents especially wanted him and asked for him before he was born.

"The other people didn't have children," a Coral Harbor couple told the court. "We couldn't say no to them; they are relatives."

In Rankin Inlet, another couple said they let their baby be adopted at the age of one year because when his natural mother returned from a tuberculosis sanatorium, "the baby didn't want to leave the woman who had been looking after him."

"The Eskimo people have taught us that the welfare of the child is the first and foremost consideration," says anthropologist R. G. Williamson, member of the Northwest Territorial Council and professor at the University of Saskatchewan.

A family giving up a child might say: "We simply can't love this new baby."

"To the Eskimo, love means compassion, a larger commitment to the child than just emotion," Dr. Williamson said.

"If you can't take care of a child, you can't 'love' it."

Mr. Justice Morrow opened one session of court this way:

"Ladies and gentlemen of Coral Harbor, I am glad to be here.

"I understand there are quite a few adoptions you want me to fix up in the law.

"We will go ahead with those, even though the husbands are out hunting—we will go as far as we can. And if the husbands are here in the evening, we will be here again and we will see the husbands.

"If you have other questions, don't be bashful, come and ask me while you are here."

He asked one adopting father why he wanted the child.

"He said he has one child but it's grown up; he wanted another," the interpreter replied.

"Everybody happy that that's the way it stays?" the judge asked.

And everybody shook hands.

THE GALLUP POLL

Labor Unions Too Strong Big Majority Believes

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

In the early fifties, Canadians debated, with a closely split opinion, as to whether or not labor unions were getting too strong. Today the big majority—62 per cent—claim that they are becoming too powerful. Only 27 per cent think they are not.

In the wake of a summer of intense labor unrest, The Gallup Poll asked:

"Do you think labor unions are getting too strong in Canada, or not?"

The table below contrasts public opinion 16 years ago with today's reaction.

Getting too strong	40%	62%
Not too strong	37	27
Undecided	23	11

Looking deeper into the matter shows that even among labor union households almost half (46 per cent) agree that unions today are too powerful, while in non-union homes the opinion is held by almost seven in ten (69 per cent).

Most convinced are labor's traditional critics, the farmers, with a 78 per cent belief that unions need more control, closely followed by executives and managers with a 73 per cent level. Through the total ranks of skilled and unskilled labor, the majority (53 per cent) say union power is too strong.

	Unions Too Strong	Unions Not Too Strong	Undecided
Union homes	46%	43%	11%
Non-union	69	20	11
Executives, managers, owners	73	22	5
White collar workers	62	28	10
Labor	53	35	12
Farmers	78	16	6

Drive by, Loved One Awaits You

THE NATION

It is a natural impulse for some, and a duty for others, to take a last look after the mortician has exercised his art. This used to be a formal, lugubrious occasion. Both the dead and the living were dressed in their best, and the latter gazed on the former, perhaps with tears. It also took time from a busy life. One had to drive to the funeral "parlor," park the car, perhaps walk a few blocks to make the inspection and remark how natural he or she looked, or deliver some other appropriate observation.

All this is changed for the better. You can now view the remains at a drive-in mortuary, the same as cashing a cheque or eating a cheeseburger, without getting out of your car.

The Roanoke (Va.), World-News credits this innovation to an Atlanta, Ga., mortician by the name of Hirschel Thornton. The idea came to him one night in a flash of genius, and he is now building five windows, each over 6 feet long, in an extension of his funeral home located off a busy street. Each window will contain a body in a coffin, with a name plate, wall-to-wall carpeting, and drapes, no doubt in decorator colors. "The deceased," the inventor explains, "will be lying in a lighted window, sort of tilted toward the front so they can conveniently be seen." Thus you may view not only your own departed but four others, comparing both the corpses and the coffins. You may come by at any hour of the day or night, dressed as you came from work or on your way to a cocktail party.

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away . . ."; but the ingenuity of man passeth all understanding.

Cliches Avoided On 'Kafkaesque' Hotel Empress

NO PASSPORT, A DISCOVERY OF CANADA, by Eugene Cloutier. Translated by Joyce Marshall. Oxford University Press, $5.95.

Reviewed by Joan Caldwell.

A French-Canadian takes a look at Canada. But for once it is not a political look, not obtrusively so anyway.

Eugene Cloutier, a novelist and broadcaster, simply travelled the land from coast to coast and recorded what he saw and heard, attempting with his pen something of what Roloff Beny achieved with the camera. Two volumes of his impressions were published in French in 1967; this English translation is an abridgement of that work.

M. Cloutier never lets us forget that he is French-Canadian, though. There is a tedious harping on the lack of gourmet restaurants in the west, a constant nostalgia for Quebec as a culinary mecca.

On the other hand, one of the most interesting aspects of the book is the way the author noses out small French settlements, such as Domremy, Saskatchewan, and the parish of St. Sacrament, Vancouver, discovering to his own surprise that "anyone who applied himself to it could travel from Vancouver to Halifax without leaving French-Canadian milieus."

As good a test as any for a travel writer is what he has to say about Victoria, especially when he stays at the Empress.

Made for 'Wrinkled Queens'?

Here M. Cloutier avoids most of the cliches and the sentimentality. He speculates wonderingly on the origin of the "unbelievably high-backed armchairs . . . . conceived to hold old wrinkled queens or the witches of Salem" in the "Kafkaesque corridors" of the hotel; he describes a Mothers' Day dinner there, with devastatingly accurate comment on the waitresses, and chooses to catch the atmosphere of Victoria society by telling of a man who had nurtured an ambition to retire here "and still had not managed to convince himself that his dream was now a reality."

Part of the author's route covers familiar territory and what he has to say about such places as Banff and the Rockies is what most of us have said at one time or another. But he also takes us to unusual places, just as representative of Canada; what stays in my mind most of all is his tour of the vast abattoirs near St. Boniface, a scene for a novel surely or a Marienbad kind of film.

M. Cloutier has interesting things to say about people he meets, as diverse as the young Indian Mr. Wednesday in the Yukon and the millionaire patron of the arts who heads Intercontinental Packers.

'Pass By. Little Gods at Work.'

One begins to sense the truth of his remark that "this country is a paradise of personalities" where "the practice of the exceptional" is natural and commonplace. "Every day I had been told fantastic stories in the tone used to describe banal incidents to which one attaches no importance." Very apt, but the final flourish, flattering though it is, spoils the illusion: "One might place signs at every instant: 'Pass by. Little Gods at Work.'"

Let us hope that came off better in the French. There are times, indeed, where the translation lets this book down, unfortunately worst of all in the opening pages.

This is not a great travel book; there is bound to be something artificial about setting out with paper and pencil to research and annotate, and the author certainly does not carry out his claim of "seeing others live without being seen."

But it is interesting, amusing and informative and its conclusions about the national identity and the provincial failing of narcissism are worth thinking about.

Veering Back and Forth From Pomposity to Whimsy

THE STORIES OF ERIC LINKLATER, MacMillan, $5.95.

This new book of Eric Linklater's published short stories makes uneven but frequently entertaining reading.

Twice, in his preface, the author assures the reader that he will find great variety in the selection, but the stories tend to fall into two main categories. "Kind Kitty" and "Joy as it Flies" are set in Edinburgh and Dublin respectively and rely heavily, as do many of the stories on local color. They make fairly entaining reading, even if all the characters are not totally believable. Other stories in the collection reflect Linklater's preoccupation with fairy tale and myth.

WITTY ACCOUNT

"Sealskin Trousers" is a witty account of the disturbing effects of a Silkie, a type of merman, upon the life of a Scottish college girl. The difficulty with many of these near-fairy tales is that Linklater's style seems peculiarly inappropriate for this genre.

He veers so suddenly from pomposity to whimsy and back again that one is constantly re-reading sentences to catch their meaning. In "God likes them Plain," however, he successfully presents an original fairy tale with great wit and simplicity. Unfortunately, in most of the stories, the whimsy tends to outweigh the wit, though this will not deter Linklater's more staunch admirers.—G.T.

Imperialist With a Heart Who Hated His Sworn Duty

REMEMBER BUTLER by Edward McCourt. McClelland Stewart, 276 pages, $6.50.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Edward McCourt, the author of Remember Butler, is professor of English at the University of Saskatchewan. He has written a number of novels and books about the Canadian West.

In this work he turns his attention to the life of Sir William Butler, the Victorian soldier and writer, who lived from 1838 to 1910. A very human figure emerges out of the outlines of what might at first appear to be a typical 19th Century imperialist.

For Canadians, the most interesting section of the biography is apt to be that dealing with Butler's years in Canada. As intelligence officer with Colonel Wolseley during the first Riel Rebellion of 1869-70, Butler seems to have fallen in love with Western Canada from the moment he arrived in the Red River Settlement. He saw in the vast unpopulated areas of the prairies an answer to the problems of overpopulation and undernourishment plaguing Europe and particularly his native Ireland.

LOVE FOR SPACES

Butler spent only a few years as a young man in Western Canada, but from those years came a number of important results. From his report on conditions in the West, commissioned by the Canadian Government, came the founding of the North-West Mounted Police.

His adventures and travels are recorded in two remarkable books, The Great Lone Land and The Wild North Land. In both he reveals his love for the great open spaces of the west, his admiration for the natives who lived with dignity and freedom in a climate often cruel, and much of his own penchant for the active life which his magnificent physique made possible.

William Butler may have desired to remain in Canada, but as a career soldier he could find few opportunities in the emerging nation.

LIKED ENEMY

He had already served with the British Army in India. He went on to serve in Africa, in the Ashanti and Zulu Wars; he also fought in the Sudan, where he organized the Nile River Flotilla in 1885 in an attempt to save General Gordon at Khartoum. Later in 1898 he became commander-in-chief of the British Forces in South Africa, but his sympathy for the Boers caused him to relinquish the position and return to Britain.

Beneath this outline of action, McCourt creates a fully rounded character, warm and humane. Butler was opposed to the imperialism he was sworn as a soldier to uphold; he was aghast at the poverty and suffering of the natives of India and Africa who were often the victims of that imperialism.

MILITARY REFORMER

Butler was also a military reformer, discontented with the established procedures of buying commissions and profiteering on war supplies. He fought a running battle with the establishment over questions of training and armament. He seldom won any victories, but history has vindicated his judgment.

Remember Butler is a well written, attractive book. It contains many illustrations, some of them from Butler's own works; others are reproductions of his wife's paintings, for Butler was married to Elizabeth Thompson, one of the most popular artists of the Victorian age. When she married Butler, she was already an established painter of military subjects.

McCourt shows little nostalgia for an age that is past. Inevitably, however, many readers will be led to make a contrast between the many opportunities open to a young man in the 19th Century and the vastly different situation facing the youth of the 20th.

Divining a Tedious Array of Dreams

DREAMS: THE DARK SPEECH OF THE SPIRIT, by Morton T. Kelsey. Doubleday.

Reviewed by Lionel Adey

Mr. Kelsey is an Episcopalian priest with considerable first-hand knowledge of the teachings of Jung. He maintains a counselling clinic at his church. His object in writing this book is to awaken the interest of his fellow-Christians in the religious and therapeutic value of dreams.

To this end, he gives a detailed history of the significance of dreams in Old and New testaments and throughout the Christian era. The book concludes with a discussion of the Freudian and Jungian views of dreaming, and some sensibly cautious advice upon interpretation.

The author's thesis, though acceptable enough in pre-medieval times, before the rationalistic philosophy of Aristotle had been officially endorsed by the Roman church, is startlingly out of fashion today.

UNSEEN AGENCY

It is that the numerous well-authenticated cases of dreams of present or future events, of which the subject could not have known, are evidence of an unseen agency which thus communicates in symbolic form with men. In these days when the believer in any form of religion has difficulty in persuading the humanist to listen, let alone to agree, such a case is not to be maintained without a great deal of evidence.

A great deal of evidence is given, but is not well-handled. The long survey of dreams in biblical and Christian times is tediously repetitive and in places quite fragmentary. One has no sense of a coherent argument moving towards a conclusion.

PROPHETIC DREAM

This is a pity, as some of the modern episodes, the prophetic dreams of an American general during the last war, or the intuitive leaps of Einstein, are informative as well as convincing. The book is badly in need of better organization.

This is a work of learning, not one of those gossipy books which seek to establish by a multitude of modern anecdotes that can act as warnings or portents. Certainly there is need of a sound body of theory to account for such phenomena, which are difficult to reconcile with the rather superficial materialism widely current today.

Unfortunately, one feels that Mr. Kelsey has not succeeded in presenting a coherent theory because he has set out not to discover or to explore meanings but to state a conviction quite early on and to confirm it over and over again. He has learned enough, but thought too little.

Frank Talk on Bicultural 'Sucker's Game'

AN OPTION FOR QUEBEC, by Rene Levesque, McClelland and Stewart Ltd., 138 pages, $2.95.

Reviewed by Alan Forrest

Few western Canadians are likely to be seduced by the powerful oratory or vivid writings of moderate separatist Rene Levesque.

But it is difficult not to be entranced.

As one French-Canadian remarked: "Most of us do not agree with Monsieur Levesque but we like to listen to him."

Similarly An Option for Quebec makes fascinating reading even if his highly-charged exhortations about Quebec "rights" leave the reader unconvinced.

An Option for Quebec, translated from the original French, is only half the effort of Levesque (pronounced Le-vek). But it is the interesting half. The rest of the 138 pages are devoted to quotations from other sources which Levesque has selected to back up his arguments.

Always arguing from a whirlpool of emotion, Levesque uses language as rugged as it is frank.

Prime Minister Trudeau's plan for bicultural rights across Canada?

"It's a sucker's game," says Mr. Levesque.

No matter what language rights are granted to them, the young people are going to learn English so they can make large salaries in an English-speaking province.

Pockets of French-Canadians outside Quebec are victims of "galloping assimilation," he says.

The real action is in Quebec where French can become the working language of the province by provincial government decree.

This is the core of the French fact in Canada, he says. The French Canadians are different from other minority groups not because of their numbers or because of historical rights, but by virtue of their control over a provincial government.

. . . easily entrances

Canada would have to deal with the Chinese fact, if Chinese-Canadians controlled the British Columbia government, and with Ukrainians if they were in charge in Manitoba.

But they don't.

French Canadians run Quebec and the rest of Canada must come to terms with this fact, he says.

. . . And the terms will be pretty steep.

KEEP CLOSE TIES

But (expressive Levesque shrug) Quebec is willing to be reasonable.

It's all open to negotiation starting with the threat of separation and ending with political and linguistic sovereignty for Quebec but retaining close economic ties with the rest of Canada.

Mr. Levesque's biggest problem is trying to answer charges that Quebec would lose more money than it would gain if it opted out of federal cost-sharing programs.

His arguments on this score are frantic but none too convincing.

He concludes that Quebec could get along without Canada just as much as British Columbia could.

But while he feels Quebec separation is logical he finds Premier Bennett's hints that B.C. could pull out any time is "a pose as amusing as it is profitable."

Love in Bar or Barge

SELECTED POEMS, 1956-1968, by Leonard Cohen; McClelland & Stewart: Cloth $5.95, Paper $2.50. Reviewed by Donna Smyth.

Leonard Cohen makes poems, novels, films, and the hit parade. As a writer, he seems to have captured that most elusive chimera on the Canadian scene—commercial success and popularity.

His two novels, especially The Beautiful Losers (1966), have both shocked and delighted his audience with their verbal fecundity and with their lyrical, satirical obsession with sex. Those readers who object to his prose listen with dignified impunity to lovely folk-songs such as Suzanne Takes You Down. Even the National Film Board of Canada has gotten into the act by producing a documentary film about the man and his work.

Finally, Cohen's poetry, previously published in four slim volumes, seems to appeal to a surprisingly diversified audience who award him the accolades of "cool, with it, and swinging."

Just how and why he swings is a matter of personal taste but part of the answer may lie in this volume of Selected Poems, 1956-1968. In addition to 20 new poems, the selection includes some of his earlier works, beginning with Let Us Compare Mythologies and ending with Parasites of Heaven. The collection thus offers the advantage of viewing Cohen's variety of moods and styles as part of the development of the whole man. The general impression is one of quiet, personal charm expressed through the simplicity and condensation of the lyric voice.

More directly than most contemporary poets, Cohen seems to be talking with the reader; the poet is confessing his humanity and somehow waiting for the response:

> like mirrors in a movie palace lobby consulted only on > the day out
> like a nymphomaniac who > binds a thousand into strange
> brotherhood
> I wait
> for each one of you to > confess

The apparently casual conversational tone and diction belie a tight control of form ranging through songs and ballads to free verse. Quiet frequently, Cohen, like Auden, will play form against content, as in Ballad:

> My lady was found mutilated
> in a Mountain Street
> boarding house
> My lady was a tall slender
> love
> like one of Tennyson's girls,
> and you always imagined
> her erect on a thoroughbred
> in someone's private forest.
> But there she was > naked on an old bed, knife
> slashes across her breasts,
> legs badly cut up:
> Dead two days.

Also apparent here is the intensity of experience, often raw and painful, balanced with a wry irony which is characteristic of Cohen's attitude to life and art.

Several of the poems spring from the poet's attempts to understand and come to terms with his background as a Jewish writer born in Montreal. The haunting burden of Belsen and Dachau, the collective wisdom and suffering of 2,000 years weigh upon him yet form an integral part of his awareness. The search for order and meaning outside his traditional faith is more evident in the prose poem, Lines From My Grandfather's Journal:

> Prayer makes speech a ceremony. To observe this ritual in the absence of arks, altars, a listening sky: this is a rich discipline.

The discipline of form, the ritual of poetry seem to replace the lost priesthood, and Cohen celebrates at the altar of human rather than divine love:

> You have the lovers,
> they are nameless, their histories only for each other > and you have the room, the > bed and the windows.
> Pretend it is a ritual.

Love is the movement of people toward one another in a hotel-room, a bar, or a barge on the river with the secret of salvation in Suzanne. The poet "studies to describe the lover he cannot become" and the message on the wall is:

> Maria
> please find me
> I am almost thirty.

CHITTY CHITTY, BANG BANG, THE MAGICAL CAR, by Ian Fleming. Pan Books, 1968, 123 pp., sketches, $1.50.

The late Ian Fleming was clearly a man of versatile imagination. This book brings together the three fine tales he wrote about an old sports car with real character.

Purists will complain that this 8-litre, 12-cylinder Paragon Panther bears no resemblance to the three real Chitty Bang Bangs of the early 1920's. (One of those fabulous English cars had a 300-h.p., 23-litre Maybach aircraft engine and could go 113 mph. However, Fleming's Chitty can fly, and does other ingenious things, by way of rewarding the Pott family for having restored her.

A splendid book for 8-10-year-old boys, if they can get it away from father.—R.G.L.

TV a World Of Laughter

By AL FORREST

This week people were laughing at television and were preparing to laugh some more.

The new fall shows were quickly losing their glitter and—unless they were comedies—they were also losing their audiences.

This is rapidly becoming the Season of the Big Belly Laugh, probably as an antidote to the unfunny newscasts. With gunfire threatening to disrupt the Olympic Games, nobody's in the mood to watch Run For Your Life.

But this week viewers boosted Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In even higher in the ratings and millions tuned in Lee Marvin's hilarious performance as a drunken gunfighter in the 1965 movie Cat Ballou.

More chuckles are on the way.

Tonight at 11:20 (Ch. 12) there's vintage Bob Hope and Bing Crosby who take Dorothy Lamour on the Road to Rio.

I know I've see it eleven times already ("This is murder! . . . you're in the groove, Jackson . . . you're telling me!") but its humor is timeless.

For my money these early Road pictures (circa 1947) are the funniest thing since Charlie Chaplin.

Wednesday another top-rated comedy is scheduled: Dr. Strangelove.

This 1964 movie that pokes fun at cold war hysteria seems a bit dated already but it's still rather droll and it proves that laughing at your worries is a lot better than not.

The Pawnbroker is not at all funny but it's one serious movie that should buck the trend and draw a large crowd tonight at 8 (Ch. 6) on the strength of Rod Steiger's masterful performance in the title role.

It earned him the 1965 Academy Award nomination for best actor and he should have won it, a mistake the Academy rectified this year by awarding him an Oscar for In The Heat of the Night.

In answer to those readers who get tired of seeing girls on the cover every week, Weekend Magazine will offer a cover picture of Tiny Tim in next Saturday's Times. Watch out for it.

"Dear Mr. Forrest:

"Last year and the year before, we were happy that a couple of entertainers could make it big while retaining the clean-cut youth image.

"Now the Smothers have got to go. And why in the name of cotton pickin', finger lickin' pheasant pluckers was it necessary for that well-sung-but-overhung Momma Cass draped on Tommy's bed for her solo?

"It was like showing Kate Smith in a bikini.

Yours truly, Disillusioned,
Saanich, B.C.

"P.S. The Outcasts should have been cast further . . . and the ghost with it.

"P.P.S. You were right about Quentin Durgens being emasculated."

The networks are already sending out hints that it would be folly to fall in love with any of the new shows. At least one-third of them will not survive the mid-season cut.

We've known for over a year that Canadians see more of the Smothers Brothers show than Americans do. That's because the censors don't care very much whether Canadians are offended.

But they'll take out huge chunks of the show when the U.S. sees it (Sunday, Ch. 12, at 9 a.m.) to slip out controversy and slip in more commercials.

A Harry Belafonte song that was sung with film clips of the Chicago convention riots in the background was yanked entirely last Sunday.

That's seven minutes worth of program. It was filled without difficulty by commercials.

CBS has ruled that the Chicago convention is now a sensitive issue. Sensitive issues, apparently, are not for American ears.

Dean Dumps Rehearsal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin is inclined to cut up during camera changes for his television variety show. When he does, this sort of conversation is sometimes heard over the loudspeaker between him and his producer director Greg Garrison:

Garrison — Please, Dean! You're not acting like a star.

Martin—I'm not a star, I'm a personality!

Garrison believes the distinction is significant. He further predicts that it will be the deciding factor in the survival of the 15 variety shows in prime television time this season.

"The shows that are built around a strong and engaging personality will succeed; those that aren't, won't," he says.

Garrison should know. He has been the director of the Dean Martin Show since its beginning four years ago and has produced it for most of that time. He attributes the current cycle for variety shows to the success of the Martin hour on NBC.

Why has the Martin show thrived?

"Because people like him," observed Garrison. "Everybody who knows Dean likes him; he's that kind of a guy. And it comes across on TV. He is a very likable personality."

HAD SHAKY START

Yet the Martin show did not take off like a rocket four years ago.

"Everybody thought Dean didn't want to work," remarked the producer-director. "So he was given only a few songs to sing and a few jokes to say. The rest of the time he sat down and pointed toward the guest stars. Soon we realized the mistake and began involving Dean more."

But work, Martin-style, is different from that of most other performers. His ability to "wing" a show in one day is well-known.

"When Dean walks through the studio door on the morning of the show," Garrison said, "He doesn't know what he is going to sing, or what he is going to say; he doesn't even know who the guest stars are going to be. I make it a point never to call him during the week for any reason.

"This season we are even doing away with the dress rehearsal. We will have only a run-through and then do the show itself."

WIDELY ACCLAIMED Canadian folk singer and composer Gordon Lightfoot will perform at McPherson Playhouse Oct. 22 during a western tour.

'Storm' Star Well Trained

Nicholas Coster, star of The Secret Storm, is a graduate of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London, England, and has played roles ranging from Shakespeare to musical comedy.

Haunting Moods Of a Master

Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony has always shared honors with the Sixth (Pathetique) as his best-loved symphonic work. Most critics have bracketed it with his Fourth and Sixth as representing his greatest achievement in that form.

It is full of rich melody, haunting moods and the splendid yet sensitive color of which Tchaikowsky was a master.

This is the symphony Music Director Laszlo Gati has programmed for Sunday and Monday's Victoria Symphony concerts at the Royal Theatre.

ALL TCHAIKOWSKY

It will form one half of an all Tchaikowsky program that will include Canadian-Ukrainian, internationally noted violinist Steven Staryk playing the D major Violin Concerto.

The profoundly difficult concerto is full of distinctive Russian themes. Writing about it while he was in the midst of its creation, Tchaikowsky said: "My melodies and harmonies of folksong character come from the fact that I grew up in the country and in my earliest childhood was impressed by the indescribable beauty of the characteristic features of Russian folk music . . ."

Gati will conduct the concert which begins at 3 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 p.m. Monday.

All-Canada Team Set For Wednesday Recital

STEVEN STARYK

A notable Canadian-born violinist and a Canadian pianist of distinction will team up in recital, second in the Victoria Symphony-sponsored series at McPherson Playhouse next Wednesday.

Steven Staryk and Robin Wood met for the first time this week, when Staryk arrived in the city for rehearsals for his Sunday-Monday appearances as Symphony soloist.

ENJOY WORK

The two musicians established an immediate rapport and are thoroughly enjoying working together.

The program they are rehearsing together is an impressive one.

Three sonatas by Beethoven, Schumann and the 18th-century French violinist-composer, Leclair.

A number of shorter works from the repertoire including Novacek's Perpetuum Mobile, Ravel's Piece en Forme Habanera, and the dazzling Scherzo Tarantelle of Wieniawski, are also to be performed.

OFFERS REJECTED

Staryk, former concert-master of the Chicago Symphony and the Amsterdam Concertgebouw Orchestra, among other famous ensembles, has turned down offers for similar posts from many parts of the world. Now 36, he intends to confine himself to recording and concertizing and has already had a major success with an Everest album.

In his recital performance and in the Tchaikowsky Concerto with the Victoria Symphony this weekend, audiences will hear him play on one of the greatest fiddles in existence—the ex-Papini and ex-Duc de Camposelice Guarnerius del Gesu, 1739.

Russian Disc Patchy, Below Par

Diamond In The Groove

Konzertklange aus Russland
DGG 139011

A collection of six of the more picturesque and lively works composed in pre-revolution Russia promised to be one of the most exciting discs ever issued, but the promise was not fulfilled and the record is disappointing.

Khatchaturian's Saber Dance, so well-known as to be almost notorious, played by the Leningrad Philharmonic under the baton of Gennadi Rozhdestvensky is as fiercely slashing, fiery and sinuous as it deserves to be.

The clear, scintillating performance readily conjures a scene of wild festivity at a Cossack camp and does full justice to the score.

Three of the works feature the Berlin Philharmonic which usually displays such virtuoso ability that anything less fails to live up to their fine reputation.

In Tchaikowsky's Marche Slave, under the direction of Ferdinand Leitner, the playing is precise and the solo instruments clearly discernible but the recording as a whole sounds distant and veiled.

Either the engineering or the date of that particular excerpt has produced a performance far below par. The strings have no bite and even the heroic trumpets fail to rouse enthusiasm in the listener.

Under Lorin Maazel, Rimsky-Korsakoff's Capriccio Espagnol fares better. The distinct Spanish flavour is preserved and rhythms well-maintained.

A transition to Russian emphases toward the end of the last movement is successfully made though the final, fast, furious passage is not as clearly defined as it should be on a DGG recording.

That the difference in quality between the compositions cannot be wholly the fault of the orchestra or the conductor, is easily proved by a comparison of Capriccio Espagnol with the rendering of Mussorgsky's Night on Bald Mountain.

NEVER TERRIFIES

Here, the Berlin Philharmonic is again conducted by Lorin Maazel but the result is far less satisfactory.

The diabolic sounds and eerie music descriptive of a witches' sabbath, should terrify and produce a delicious sensation of participation in the listener.

The bell in D from a distant village church should startle and appal when its clear tone disrupts the black festivities.

This discreet, cloaked performance never terrifies. It never comes near to describing the full-blooded wickedness of the scene. The most potent appeal of the music is lost when the vivid descriptive sketch is diluted with a pallid wash and smoothed down in a performance that makes it unrecognizably ordinary.

JOYOUS SINGING

The Sachsische Staatskapelle Orchestra of Dresden under Kurt Sanderling brings out the spacious sweetness of the song heard by Borodin from the Steppes of Central Asia. Quiet sections are beautifully executed and the orchestra captures a mood of joyous singing and the humour of the interlude.

Despite the fact that Borodin wrote this work to honour Russia's military prowess in conquering Asia, his charming manner and light touch in describing the approaching caravan of travellers escorted by soldiers, became amazingly popular as soon as it was composed; and it has remained a favourite ever since.

Borodin's lively dances from Prince Igor are well played by the National Orchestra of Monte Carlo under the baton of Louis Fremaux but they lack the arresting brilliance that Karajan with the Berlin Philharmonic could bring to them.

This record, like a quilt, is good in patches but Tchaikowsky and Mussorgsky deserve more vital performances and a higher standard of reproduction from a company which is reputable for the excellence of its recordings.

He Saved Canadian Opera But Screams at Himself

TORONTO (CP) — In his 19 years as artistic director of the Canadian Opera Company, Herman Geiger-Torel has brought Canadian opera out of the backwoods. But there were times, he says, when he should have fired himself.

"I am one of the most panned people. I'm also frustrated. I scream for a prop as a director, and I scream back as an administrator that I can't afford it.

"I probably should have fired myself years ago in any case."

Geiger-Torel talked during a hurried lunch break as he prepared his company for the Canadian opera season at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre.

FIVE MONTHS

He expects 70,000 to 80,000 persons to attend the month long run of five productions—a far cry from the 15,000 who saw the company in 1950 when he took over as artistic director.

"I think what we have achieved in 19 years is the creation of an ensemble. We took over from the Royal Conservatory, brought singers from Montreal and Vancouver and merged them; forged them into a company.

"We had Ernest Adams, Libby Benson-Guy, Mary Morrison, John Vickers, Alex Gray, Pat Rideout, the late James Milligan—I could go on and on.

"Some of them stayed with us. Others dropped out. Those who did stay with us, toured with us, helped to create a Canadian operatic generation."

FINANCIAL AGONY

Geiger-Torel says the first six or seven years with the company were "financial agony" for him.

"It was a labor of love. Why I didn't go back to my career in South America, I'll never know. I guess I felt good here."

He says things started to look up for him in 1956 when the Met in New York offered him a job. He decided to stay in Canada after he received a raise.

"At the moment we're marking time. Expansion, more new productions, new works—all these things will have to wait another three years because we have to face rising costs and are not due to receive more money. That's why this is one of the most agonizing periods of my whole career.

"But it doesn't mean we are lowering our artistic standards."

Geiger-Torel says he hopes to increase the opera season from the present four weeks to 10 or 12 weeks after 1972.

"But it will depend on the broad or narrow thinking of our governments. We can't get all this money from private industry."

This year the company will present Aida, Louis Riel, Tosca, La Boheme and Salome.

NOW . . . a Freaky Look But Definitely Jazz

By RUSSELL FREETHY

The Soft Machine, a three-piece electric rock-jazz band from London—a pretty freaky looking trio with their weird hats, long hair, shades, and funky, bizarre attire. Looks can be deceiving, though. These people do not perform like the psychedelic group they resemble.

Their music is definitely Jazz. Of course, there is the rock beat and there are vocals, but when Ray Charles sings, it is still jazz.

Freethy

Between the phrases, The Soft Machine improvises. It's not simpleminded either. It is all done on electric instruments and the sound is as new, as strange—and as fresh—to jazz as be-bop was to the swing crew of the forties.

Mike Ratledge, on organ, is a very exciting cat. He flies around the keyboard over the hard rock beat.

Robert Wyatt leads most of the vocalizing, and is a fantastic drummer. Moving the time from slow to fast and back again; stretching out into 7-4, subdivided 1,2,3—1,—1,2,3; swinging hard in a style that is perhaps a combination of Ringo Starr and Elvin Jones.

It is his style though, and throughout the set it expands wondrously. The tunes are long, perhaps too long, but never lose the audience.

The Soft Machine is exploring lonely territory, not accepted by their heroes and not commercial enough for heavy bread. Right now, you have to listen to their music and try to understand it. And it is worth listening to.

The Vanilla Fudge, who almost stole the show out from under Jimi Hendrix in Vancouver, have another possible hit on their hands.

Take Me for a Little While is a cut from their first album, and is on the flip-side of Hanging On. The radio stations should pick up on some of the more recent material by this great group.

Eighteen-year-old Mary Hopkins was born in Pontardawe, Wales, and has been singing since she was four.

Her mother wanted her to study at the Cardiff School of Music, but Twiggy saw her and brought her to the attention of Paul McCartney. He signed her to a recording contract, and arranged and produced her first record.

Those Were the Days is a huge hit on Top 40 stations and is being aired by a local station.

The Jeff Beck Group, who have received considerable exposure through their recent North American tour and their first album (Truth-Epic BN-26413), have added another top musician to their roll.

Nicky Hopkins, rated as one of Britain's best pianists, has worked on all the Rolling Stones' albums (en parte) and the current Revolution single of the Beatles.

The group with Beck on guitar, Ron Wood on electric bass, vocalist Mick Waller and Hopkins, are set for another North American tour in October.

Unfortunately, they won't be appearing in Seattle or Vancouver (at time of printing).

If you were glued to the boob tube on Sunday night and happened to catch CBC's latest substitute for This Hour Has Seven Days, you saw video clips from the rehearsal of the London performance of Hair.

This off-Broadway creation is a tremendous success on Broadway, but there was little justice in the CBC presentation.

The video portion was all right, but Hair is a musical as well as visual presentation, and the sound recording left a great deal to be desired.

Another group of Canadians have made it in United States. The Band, formerly known as the Hawks, used to back up Ronnie Hawkins. Robbie Robertson, lead and vocals; Richard Manuel, piano and vocals; Rick Danko, bass and vocals; Garth Hudson, organ and vocals, and Levon Helm, an American drummer, have been together for about nine years.

They backed Bob Dylan in several appearances in Eastern Canada, and had established quite a following there.

The Weight by the band is a big single and the album Music from the Big Pink ("Big Pink" being Canada—take a look at any map) is among the top 50 selling albums in North America.

Sex Symbol Gunned Into Bankruptcy

LONDON (AP)—Diana Dors, 36, blonde sex symbol of British movies, told the London bankruptcy court Thursday she was forced at gunpoint to sign over $200,000 worth of assets. The man holding the gun, she said, was her late husband, Dennis Hamilton.

Miss Dors, who once earned more than $200,000 a year, says she is broke, with only $480 in the bank. She has been made bankrupt by a tax claim, dating from 1957, for nearly $120,000.

Lecturer is Dr. Charlotte Girard. The lecture begins at 8 p.m. in the MacLaurin Building. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Guild Leaves Troubles Behind

Four-and-a-half months ago, Victoria Theatre Guild was faced with a dilemma.

In fact, more than a dilemma — a thorny hurdle that loomed as insurmountable and threatened to extinguish the city's oldest theatre group whose roots were set down here in the early depression years.

Langham Court Theatre which had been the Guild's home for more than 25 years, was condemned as it stood by authorities understandably concerned with public safety.

The edict was delivered to president Allan M. Purdy: Completely rewire the building and add other safety features or its use as a theatre must be discontinued.

GRIM OUTLOOK

The Guild had just completed a highly successful season but it did not have the several thousand dollars necessary for revamping. Only alternative appeared to be to sell the property and hope to find a suitable new home.

That is how things stood in the early summer.

Now, mid-way into the fall, the situation is completely altered.

On Oct. 19, the Theatre Guild will open a full six-event season with Arthur Kopit's modern satirical farce, Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Sad.

NEW LOOK

This superbly funny, explosive commentary on woman-dominated American society, will be presented in Langham Court Theatre—a revived, freshened, beautified, more efficient theatre.

Those attending the first production will scarcely be aware of the safety functional improvements and additions now installed.

But they will be very much aware of the attractive new look of the auditorium, of the restful, attractive decor, the comfortably carpeted aisles and freshly upholstered seats, the pleasant and efficient auditorium lighting.

All this has been made possible because members and friends of the organization loved the intimate little theatre and expressed their loyalty to it and the Guild by providing money — through debentures and outright donations and a low-interest loan — and by giving generously of time and effort.

A director new to the Guild has directed Oh Dad.

Rod Symington, has been seen on-stage — he played the major roles in last season's production of The Private Ear and The Public Eye and he is familiar to back-stage crews for he has assisted with construction work on several occasions.

He is also the Theatre Guild's new production chairman.

Box office for all-reserved seat sale will open in Eaton's Wednesday, Oct. 16.

Oh Dad will run the customary seven nights, concluding Oct. 26.

Meanwhile the second production scheduled for early December, The Diary of Anne Frank, has been cast and will go into immediate rehearsal under direction of Barbara Meiklejohn.

Second half of the season will include a guest production by University of Victoria and a suspense play, Murder Without Crime.

Season tickets are available, giving the purchaser six shows for the price of five.

THE CONNECTION is the award winning adaptation of the Jack Gelber play that ran for over two years on Broadway. As a play, in 1960, it led the "Obie Awards", taking three first prizes.

STANLEY SHALE'S PUPILS WERE DISCIPLES

He Left His Mark Without Fanfare

By AUDREY JOHNSON

I want to talk today about a dear and valued friend of mine and of others who, like me, were fortunate enough to be associated with him.

Over the 40 years since he first arrived in this city, he had departed many times, always to return within a few weeks—perhaps two or three months. Ten years was the longest period he stayed away.

In June he left for the last time. He will not be back.

Stanley Shale was one of the finest musicians ever to make his home in Victoria. Fortunately for us, his musicianship expressed itself most fully in teaching and it was in this capacity, without fuss or fanfare, that he made an indelible mark in this city.

On an examination tour in England in July, he was stricken with illness and died in London last week.

A pianist who had made a most auspicious start on a career in the '20s with a well-reviewed London debut recital, he came to Victoria not long after, the neurasthenic victim of the First World War.

His pyhsician had prescribed a long sea voyage, but a Royal Academy friend who had been examining in Western Canada told him of a Victoria studio about to change hands.

Chose Victoria

The friend said he felt there was a major challenge in this area and Stanley Shale, appalled by the thought of months of idleness, chose Victoria instead of the sea voyage.

In the ensuing months he returned to full health, but he was never to resume plans for a recital career. Highly strung and sensitive, he shunned public performance, much preferring to play to small groups of friends and students in the privacy of studio or drawing room.

He gave his only public recital at the Empress Hotel some months after coming here, at the urging of friends. It seems to me that he played Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Debussy on that occasion but I was too immature a student for memory to be reliable.

But somewhere I still have a clipping of a review written by George J. Dyke, music critic for the Victoria Times for many years. Deeply impressed, he expessed the hope that more might quickly be heard of so notable a pianist.

Played for Pupils

Public loss was student gain however, for Mr. Shale poured all his energies into teaching and would play for an hour or more for favored pupils after formal lesson time had ended.

Especially if you happened to be the last student on the day's schedule you might reap this most special and delightful benefit.

He was extraordinarily generous with his time if he was interested in you and would go out of his way to schedule your lessons so that he was not hedged in by the half-hour or even hour time limit.

I was among the fortunate ones and what I owe him for those hundreds of additional hours spent exploring music under his guidance will be a debt to the end of my life.

Practical Jokes

In spite of the fact that he was of a rather shy and retiring nature, he had a lively sense of humor and a mischievous quality that prompted him to enjoy the occasional practical joke.

He had a great fund of intense dynamic energy and when he was not pouring it into his music and teaching he expended it in walking—brisk three or four-mile constitutionals along the Dallas Road waterfront were part of his life's routine in Victoria.

Besides walking and reading, movies, strong tea and English biscuits were among his favorite things. (He told me he had seen The Sound of Music three times).

Spare, Simple

His life was spare and simple, completely dominated by his three major concerns—music, teaching, and his only daughter, Catherine.

Like most deeply musical people, a wide range of musical styles and periods appealed to him but if he had any special likings I think Bach, Schumann and Chopin would be among them.

He loved the delicate beauty and structural perfection of Scarlatti too, and had a keen admiration for the rich pianistic properties of some of the moderns.

Once, shocked by the attitude of an otherwise promising student, he told me emphatically: "No one is truly musical who does not like Bach."

He talked much about his great and famous teacher, Tobias Matthay. Matthay had developed a principle of relaxation, of directing muscular energy to the moment of contact between hammer and strings, from, not above, the keyboard surface.

Dedicated

His pupils were disciples, loyal and dedicated to his principles and none more so than Stanley Shale who had been one of his greatly favored scholarship students.

A strong bond of affection existed between teacher and student. It was the sort of affection that Mr. Shale was able to inspire in his turn with the majority of those who were his students over the years.

An Associate of the Royal Academy when he came to Victoria in 1927, he had already held a professorship there and he was appointed local representative of the Royal Academy in this city.

Later, an honorary Fellowship was conferred upon him by the RAM — "for his services to the cause of music."

When he came to Victoria the musical standard here generally was strictly small town. Most of the teaching ranged from mediocre to very bad.

Raised Level

But after a couple of years, his presence began to make itself felt and after five, the challenge he represented and the ideas he had sown had appreciably raised the level, at least in piano playing.

Throughout his life here he took a keen interest in the organizations and people who made music; the Symphony Musical Art, and certainly the Music Festival which had his full support.

The most gifted student he ever had in this city came to him as a 10-year-old.

From the moment he first heard Robin Wood play, Mr. Shale knew that here was a very special talent and in the following eight years he guided and nurtured that talent until Robin Wood capped an award-studded student career here by winning in his diploma examination, a Royal Academy Exhibition, giving him a year's scholarship study in London.

'Who Knows?'

After a successful career in London as a major faculty member of the Royal Academy and a well known BBC recitalist and chamber ensemble pianist, Mr. Wood is back in Victoria as head of the fast-growing Conservatory of Music.

"Who knows," he pondered recently, "if it hadn't been for Stanley, whether I would be doing what I am doing now."

So it is in the words of Robin Woods' personal tribute to his first great teacher, that all of us who knew Stanley Shale can most fittingly say our farewell:

"Stanley Shale was the kindest and gentlest of men. His death is a sad blow to the many people of all ages who valued his friendship and had much affection for him.

"He was an unassuming musician but those of us who were privileged to hear him play the piano, usually in private before a few friends, were given an unforgettable experience.

"He loved music and had the gift of inspiring a love of music in his pupils. Many of these were brilliant and did notable things in the musical profession; but all who had contact with him had their lives enriched by his musical influence and his generous spirit.

"He was a great teacher and during some 40 years in Victoria he has left us a priceless legacy."

Books Piling Up? Here's Solution

If you have bookshelves stuffed with volumes you haven't looked at for years or boxes full taking up room in the attic, the time is ripe to turn them into something worthwhile.

For example, you could turn them into bursaries for music students and at the same time make them available for small school and club libraries.

All you have to do to waken the sleeping volumes to a new and useful life is phone Mrs. W. M. Gage, 383-4894, or Mrs. Austin Scott, 382-0386, and someone will call and pick them up.

Or you could—if you preferred—take them round to the Maritime Museum on Bastion Square, Monday through Fridays, 10 a.m. to noon.

ALL BENEFIT

That is where, this year, the annual book sale sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria Conservatory of Music will be held. Proceeds of the sale are used for student bursaries.

Still another favor you could do yourself would be to go along to the sale, all day Nov. 1 and 2, and for the original price of a couple of those unopened books on your shelves, pick up a pile of the kind of reading matter you would really enjoy.

The book sale needs the books that you don't need, so for the effort of making a phone call, everyone benefits.

Dancers, Singers Special Guests At Talent Show

The Eversfield Dancers and the vocal group known as Sing Out Victoria will be special guests on the talent show program, to be held at McPherson Playhouse Oct. 24.

Entries closed today for the show and preliminary eliminations will be held shortly.

Peter Mannering and Sylvia Hosie will emcee the show and there will be a panel of three judges who will name prize-winners.

Proceeds go to the International Children's Summer Village, Vancouver Island.

Prelate Backs Contraception View

MONTREAL (CP) — Most Rev. Paul Gregorie, Archbishop of Montreal, says a declaration by Canada's Roman Catholic bishops backing use in good faith of artificial methods of birth control in no way undermines the authority of the Pope or the teaching of the church.

The Canadian Conference of Bishops, a semi-annual meeting of bishops which finished recently in Winnipeg, agrees with "the teaching of the Pope on the value, dignity and morality of marriage and its link to pro-creation," Archbishop Gregoire said at Man and His World.

Speaking at a news conference at the Christian pavilion following a day-long tour this week of the former islands of Expo 67, the prelate said the question posed by contraception is one of correlating individual conscience with the law of God.

Pointing to the second Vatican Council which said men must behave in accordance to conscience that is in harmony with the law of God and the church, he added:

"NOT CUT OFF"

"But there are some who are in good faith and who have not the possibility to form, as it were, a right conscience. This would include those of the perplexed conscience or those whose consciences cannot be reformed.

"These persons, we must say, are not cut off from the love of God or the mystical body of the church."

Archbishop Gregoire said he agrees with the bishops' declaration that Pope Paul's encyclical opposition to artificial methods of birth control can, in some instances, be tempered by consideration of conscience formed on "truly Christian values and principles."

Open Doors, Bishops Told

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada's national newspaper is urging bishops to make their office more open to change.

An editorial in the October issue of the Canadian Churchman states that "every other position of authority in the world has a limited term, but the church strangely clings to this right of freehold."

"The church must soon think in terms of a bishop occupying a see for a limited term only."

The editorial suggests the dropping of forms of addresses such as "my lord" for bishops and "your grace" for archbishops, a move already endorsed by the worldwide Lambeth Conference, recently attended by Canadian bishops.

It also urges bishops to open their meetings to the public because matters discussed are of concern to the whole church.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Communion Sunday To Be Marked Here

This Sunday is being observed in thousands of Christian churches as World-Wide Communion Sunday, and many Victoria churches are participating.

"I only wish we could hold an inter-communion service on this occasion," said Rev. John Watson, minister of First Baptist Church.

"The fact that members of Christian churches still cannot share holy communion together seems to me the biggest barrier to Christian union.

"We hold inter-church services every year, but we are still divided in our observance of the Lord's Supper. We have failed to recognize that unity comes only from God through the Cross of Christ."

Mr. Watson will speak on The Basis of Unity at the 11 a.m. service in First Baptist Church Sunday.

At the 9:30 and 11 a.m. communion services in First United Church, Rev. Robert Morris will speak on Communication, Community and Communion.

The Junior Choir will sing O Saviour Sweet, with Robbie Kerr taking the solo part. The Senior Choir will present the anthem, Unto Thee O Lord, with Susan Watson as soloist.

Married Men In U.S. Allowed To Be Deacons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Married and unmarried Roman Catholic men now may be ordained as permanent deacons—assistants to priests—in the United States, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops announced Friday.

The decision announced by Bishop Joseph L. Bernadin, general secretary of the conference, is in line with authority granted by Pope Paul June 18, 1967 to reactivate a ministerial order dating back to the early days of the church.

These deacons will be separate from the seminarian's temporary diaconate who perform some similar duties in assisting priests until they are themselves ordained.

The announcement says those chosen must be of mature years. This was defined as at least 25, but the bishops decided that the first ones must be at least 35 years old.

Married men who receive the diaconate cannot remarry if they later become widowers. Unmarried men who receive the diaconate cannot marry once they are ordained.

Minimum requirements laid down by the bishops include a two-year training program covering spiritual, doctrinal and pastoral formation with at least a bachelor's degree desired. But the bishops said they also make "provision for candidates who lack both a degree and a comparable education but who yet show the native ability and religious zeal for the diaconate."

Missionary To Visit Here

Dr. Trevor Thompson, MD, a United Church missionary in Kenya, will visit Victoria Oct. 12-15.

He will speak in Oak Bay United Church Sunday, Oct. 13, at 9:30 and 11 a.m. and at Cowichan Lake United Church at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Thompson was formerly attached to Burns Lake Hospital, B.C., and has been a missionary in Central Africa and at the Tumutumu Hospital, Kenya.

He repeated his medical degree in the Portuguese language at Lisbon, but was refused a visa to work in Angola by the Portuguese government.

In Victoria, Dr. Thompson will stay with Dr. Kenneth Prior, a former agricultural missionary, and Mrs. Prior at their home at 1310 Dallas Road.

Meetings to Probe Role of Christian

A series of Sunday evening programs entitled The Christian and Society—Where Do We Plug In has been initiated at First United Church.

The 7:30 p.m. meetings will be conducted by Leonard Lythgoe, newly-appointed director of Christian education at First United.

LYTHGOE
... moderator

Each meeting will begin with folk and hymn singing and a short worship service in the chapel. These observances will be followed by panel discussions, debates, interviews and talks, with audience participation.

INFORMED GUESTS

"We shall utilize the knowledge and insights of informed guests both from Victoria and the lower mainland," Mr. Lythgoe said.

Sunday at 8 p.m., there will be a panel discussion on the Ins and Outs Of It. Participating will be high school teachers Doug Collis and Cecil Nesmith; civil servant Neil Drewry and J. Lloyd Brereton of the Victoria Humanist Society.

Mr. Lythgoe will be moderator and folk singing will be led by Ron Anderson and Mike Rawlins.

Later programs will focus on such issues as freedom and authority in a changing society, student and civil unrest and the church's position on social action.

Bishop Urges Attendance At Course

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, wishes more Victoria couples would attend the marriage preparation course now being held at the YM-YWCA every Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"I'm sure they would benefit from them," said the 44-year-old bishop on his return from the Canadian Catholic Conference in Winnipeg.

"Married couples often have very serious problems, and one of them is lack of knowledge concerning the cycles of fertility."

Bishop De Roo said Roman Catholic bishops are soliciting the help of medical scientists and biologists in reseaches prompted by Pope Paul's encyclical on birth control.

"We believe science can help in the solution of marriage difficulties."

The Marriage Preparation Course at the Y deals with housing, sexuality, food and budget problems, masculine and feminine attitudes, insurance, law investments and the meaning of love.

It is sponsored by Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Youth Rally Plans Talk on Sick Society

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — A dozen city youths will be attending the Lutheran Church Island youth rally to be held at Langford Thanksgiving day, Oct. 14.

Discussion will centre around the subject: Our sick society and what young Christian people should be doing about it.

But it won't be all serious study. Besides a discotheque-style coffee party in the evening, the organizers are renting Esquimalt pool for the expected 70 delegates.

Among the delegates will likely be the new officers of Duncan Trinity Lutheran Church young people's group: president Ronald Neuhauser, vice-president Roland Raf, secretary Arlone Poschn, treasurer Greg Peet, and food and recreation chairman Ralf Ehrenberg.

The Duncan church is to be host to a B.C. pastoral conference for Lutheran clergy.

It will run from Tuesday, Oct. 15 to Thursday, Oct. 17 and will include Bible and sermon study led by Rev. Ed Lehman of Burnaby.

Rev. V. Eichenlab of Nanaimo will be guest preacher at the special service Tuesday evening with local pastor, Rev. Baldwin Camin, as liturgist.

Cowichan Ministerial Association has appointed as its new 1968-69 officers: president Rev. John Boonstra of the Christian Reformed Church; vice-president Rev. Allan Kerr of St. John's Anglican Church; and secretary, Mr. Camin.

LIVE BROADCAST

Rev. Bruce Molloy, associate minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, will be guest preacher at the Oct. 13 Thanksgiving service in Duncan Presbyterian Church. This church will be featured on live broadcast on the Duncan radio station that day.

Future of the Anglican churches in the Lake Cowichan district will be discussed at a meeting Oct. 15.

Archdeacon John Forth, chairman of a synod committee investigating parish consolidation, will meet the church committees of St. Aidan's, Lake Cowichan, and St. Christopher's, Mesachie Lake, and the rector of the combined parish, Rev. Robert Matthews.

GUEST PREACHER at the harvest thanksgiving service in St. David's Anglican Church, Cordova Bay, Sunday at 10:30 a.m. will be Archdeacon John Forth. The service will be conducted by the vicar, Rev. H. Gordon Walker.

Lesson on Unreality

Unreality will be the subject of the Bible lesson at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday at 11 a.m., Chambers at Pandora.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Reckless Dumpers Of Hartland Road

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Now that Saanich voters have solved a big headache with a sweeping "yes, go ahead with sewer construction", possibly the council of that municipality would care to tackle a relatively minor problem.

Hartland Road, which lies midst the rolling rural acres of Saanich, has acquired a degree of fame in recent years by virtue of the fact that it leads to one of Greater Victoria's main garbage dumps.

Hume

The residents living on that straggley road have no complaints about the dump being a next-door neighbor. Sensible people, they realize that there must be somewhere to dump garbage and that if the receiving place isn't next to their backyard it has to be next door to someone else.

But they do have a justifiable complaint about the approaches to the dump, which lies entirely in Saanich, and the way in which certain collectors of garbage behave en route to the dumping area.

Says Jenny Davies, wife of ex-boxer Taffy Davies: "The speed with which some people drive down here is frightening. They have little or no respect for the fact that some 16 children of school age use the road regularly and we are all scared that one day one of the youngsters will be killed."

Debris Everywhere

Speed isn't the only concern of people like Mrs. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Lodge, Wilf Gervais and Mrs. Eileen Mooney. They are also justly worried about the amount of garbage flipped from carelessly loaded trucks en route to the dump.

A visit to Hartland Road last Saturday morning revealed a rural country lane scattered with debris over its narrow width. Rusting car fenders, huge drums that once held electrical cables, bones, plaster, lathes and paper, all litter the last quarter of a mile of what should be a pleasant road.

"The trouble is you see," says Taffy Davies, voice lifting with a Welsh lilt, "the drivers hit the last hill so hard that much of their load bounces off as they make the run. They drive like madmen and don't appear to give a damn whether or not they lose part of their load or all of it.

"And only very rarely does a driver stop and pick up what has fallen off."

A year ago the Hartland Road residents invited Ald. Ed. Lum out to discuss the problem and to show him first hand what their problems were.

The meeting resulted in a little action. Work crews followed the meeting to cut the brush which lies heavy alongside both sides of the road. Unfortunately the same work crews didn't clear away the brush they cut, so children hopping smartly to one side to prevent getting hit by a truck were still faced with a difficult choice. They either took their chances on being missed by inches or they took a nose dive into a brush fence.

Such choices tend to get a little nerve-wracking after a time.

One small item the residents asked for was never attended to by Saanich council.

Hurtling Pick-Ups

"We asked if the road could be posted as a 20-mile-an-hour zone," says Barry Lodge. "But we were told that if the council posted Hartland Road as a 20-mile-an-hour zone other streets would demand the same treatment. That never did make much sense to me because other streets just don't have this same problem."

After watching a couple of half-ton pick-ups hurtle past the Davies residence you find yourself agreeing with Mr. Lodge.

Mr. Gervais stresses that the people of Hartland Road are not asking for anything excessive.

"Basically, all we are calling for is a degree of control," says the school teacher. "We are not complaining about the dump. We are sensible enough to know that there must be a dump somewhere. But we have a situation which is screaming for control and we don't think those controls would be too hard to impose."

After listening to the residents of Hartland Road for a couple of hours Saturday, this reporter was left with the impression that they were being too polite in their approach to authority. But it was an approach they had decided on only after discussion among themselves.

"You see," said Mr. Davies, "it isn't what we call the professional garbage collectors we are complaining about. The boys who drive the big trucks are good drivers, their loads are secure and they acknowledge the fact that we have quite a few youngsters scattered up and down the road.

"It's those—— with the half-tons and the house wreckers who create the trouble.

"The Saanich police have been tremendous in their co-operation. They get out here as quickly as they can if we complain, but they can't be expected to patrol just one road to the exclusion of others.

Cut Back Speed

"They have done their best for us and we appreciate their efforts. But we think the council could do a little more, even if it is only to take the first basic step and cut the speed back to 20 miles an hour or even 15."

That doesn't seem too much to ask, does it?

Maybe Saanich council could take a couple of minutes at their next council meeting to so decide. Or may be they'd like to go out en masse and take a look at the problem Hartland Road residents are complaining about.

It would be worthwhile. The people are friendly, their demands reasonable. And Mrs. Mooney does fantastic things with raisins and rice.

Safety Sermons For Italians

TORONTO (CP) — Sunday's sermon in eight Metropolitan Toronto Roman Catholic churches will include the Trench Excavators' Protection Act, the Ontario Construction Safety Act and the Tunnel Safety Regulations.

The sermons will be read in Italian as messages of safety to Italian immigrant construction workers.

"We have a language problem with the vast majority of our members," said Norbert Pike, safety director for Local 183 of the Laborers' International Union of North America.

"Almost all advertising of the Ontario Construction Association is in English, but 65 per cent of our members are Italian and a great number of them don't understand English."

He said almost all of the Italian construction workers were Roman Catholics so Rt. Rev. Thomas Fulton, chancellor of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Toronto, was approached.

Msgr. Fulton thought it was a fine idea.

"I was in wholehearted agreement with his proposal that the church be used to disseminate this important information and I pledged our full co-operation."

If a Fireman Never Had to Fight a Single Blaze 'Prevention' Duties Would Still Keep Him Busy

By Deryk Thompson

Every year in Canada fires take the lives of hundreds of persons and destroys millions of dollars in property.

This vast wastage in many cases can be prevented by adequate safety precautions and education about one of mankind's worst enemies — and best friend.

This is the theme that will be promoted by fire departments all across Canada next week — Fire Prevention Week.

It is ironic that fire, like a double-edged sword, is a means by which man can prepare his food and keep warm and also a frightening tool of destruction.

Last year in Victoria city alone firemen answered 1,598 calls and spent 1,014 hours at fires. Only one life was lost and 10 firefighters injured.

But $274,614 damage resulted to property insured at a total of $15,472,000.

Other fire departments could paint similar pictures and the tragic toll goes on year after year.

More and more fire departments are spending greater amounts of time and money on fire prevention which they believe is the real key to firefighting.

STATISTICS

In Victoria, Chief Inspector Arthur Leason heads a group of five men who last year made 10,524 inspections and spent 2,800 hours with management and maintenance staff in fire prevention meetings.

Added to this are programs designed to educate over 11,000 pupils in 54 schools in the city including kindergartens, business and professional groups.

"Fire prevention includes much technical work to assure the design and construction standards of fire safety are built into buildings at the planning and construction stages," says Insp. Leason.

"A follow-up program of regular inspections assures continual maintenance of these safety features.

"Fire prevention bureau personnel also conduct regular scheduled surveys of established premises for good fire safety practices, good housekeeping and operation of fire protection devices and fire extinguishing appliances."

The surveys conducted by the department cover the industrial and waterfront area, public assembly halls, and all schools and buildings with accommodation for the aged or infirm.

All new buildings must now be approved by the bureau before the permit is signed and plans must include a minimum of fire prevention devices giving a fire-safe situation.

"The key thing," says the inspector, "is to build safety into the building and then to educate the populace about it.

"Otherwise your purpose is defeated and the program is pointless."

The bureau accomplished education on fire safety through a program of lectures, demonstrations and drills. These include training for hospital nursing and maintenance staff and all public and private schools.

Fire prevention is considered part of a nurse's training course and they are graded on their participation.

During next week's fire prevention program, daily lectures will be carried out at all schools and a stall will be set up at Woodward's department store with information on fire safety.

Special pamphlets have been prepared to give to the public, and place mats illustrating fire fighting techniques have been distributed to most major restaurants in the area.

Victoria's original fire prevention bureau consisted of one man who walked around the city carrying out his job. Now there are five men and three special cars to do the work which each year grows more complex.

The cost of prevention increases annually as does the complexity of the buildings and property it is designed to protect.

Skyscrapers and high-rises require the use of expensive pumping and ladder equipment.

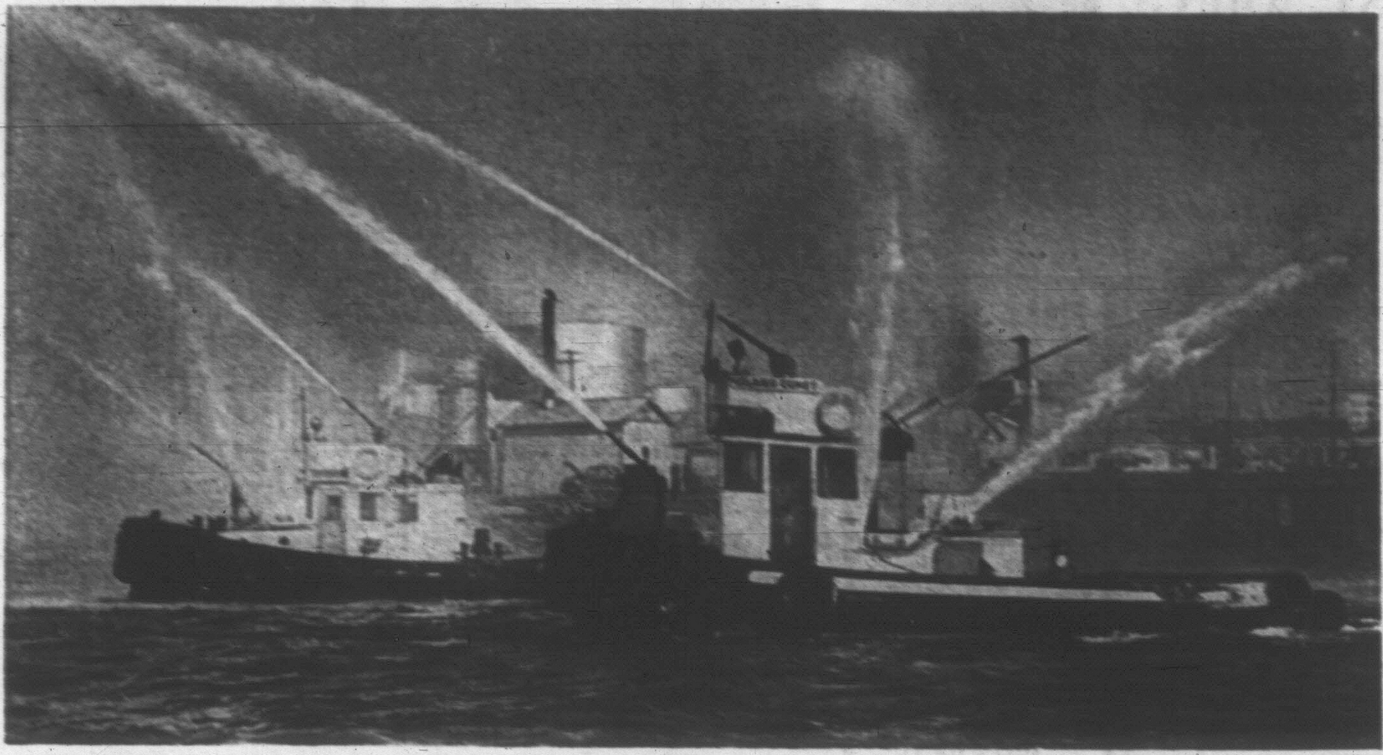
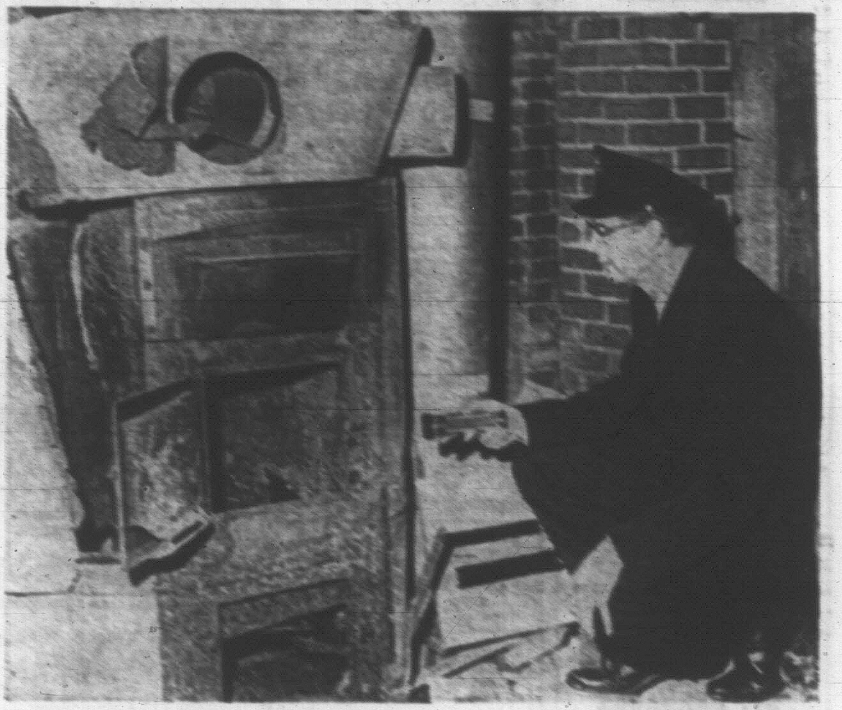
CLIMBING to check downtown fire escape to ensure safety for firefighters and tenants is Insp. Richard Warner. Shale caused by erosion forms between the metal and can push bolting apart, calling for replacement.



TESTING pumping equipment in case of harbour fire are tugs owned by Island Tug & Barge. Four boats are available to the fire department if emergency should arise. Fire officials say eight million gallons of inflammable liquids are stored on either side of the narrow bottleneck entrance to Victoria's inner harbour. Winds make it essential that precautions be stringently enforced.



EXAMING faulty furnace in Government Street house where recent fire left 18 persons homeless is Insp. Richard Warner. Fire officials are not positive furnace started fire but highly inflammable rubbish stacked around it creates a hazard. Left side of furnace has started to come apart, an easy place for fire to start. Checked yours lately?

LAYING DOWN LAW covering minimum "built-in" safety requirements before final construction is Insp. Art Leason, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau. Checking plans with him is George Stoddard, workman superintendent. Construction behind them is framed section of new apartment building.

SLIDING DOWN emergency fire chute at Protestant Orphanage can be fun for little fellows. Fire officials train children for buddy system. In event of fire each child has a "buddy" to keep in sight and guide down chute.

TRAINING NURSES to use proper fire equipment and how to deal with all kinds of fires is essential part of their course. Here "novice nurses" from group at Royal Jubilee Hospital uses a carbon-dioxide extinguisher to put out gasoline fire. Each girl must take part in the training.

INSTRUCTION in how to use equipment in homes for the aged or infirm is vital in fire prevention. Here attendant in Austin House gets lesson from Insp. Art Leason in how to use extinguisher. There are more than 100 homes of this type in the Victoria area, fire officials say, and continued lectures and demonstrations have kept elderly persons interested and confident in fire safety programs and techniques.

U.S. MARKET

Heavy Trading Bursts Barriers

By PHILIP GREER
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Stock prices burst through all sorts of technical barriers this week and pushed to their highest levels in two and a half years.

Technical considerations were given most of the credit for the push, but business news contained nothing to dampen the enthusiasm.

The Dow Jones industrial average jumped 19.15 points to close at 952.95. It was the highest reading posted for the average since April, 1966, breaking the previous recovery high of 943.08 set last September.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock composite was ahead 1.40 points to 103.71 and the New York stock exchange index rose .76 points to 58.23.

Trading activity reached a crescendo on Thursday, when the technical breakout combined with the backlog from Wednesday's closing to produce a turnover of 21.11 million shares, second highest in exchange history. For the week, 63.65 million shares changed hands, up from 59.57 million a week earlier.

Advancing stocks led declines from 12 straight sessions before the string was snapped by a small margin on Friday. For the week, there were 990 winners and 579 losers, compared with 951 up and 617 down in the previous week. The number of new 1968 highs rose to 284 from 244 and there were 11 new lows, down from 15.

In the fundamental background, auto sales and retail figures continued to show up well. A letter from Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon to 2,000 Wall Street leaders, hinting that his election might bring a let-up in government regulation, prompted brokers to label the big rally the "Nixon market."

MERGER RUMORS

On the trading scene, mergers, merger rumors and merger attempts continued to hold the spotlight. Great American Holdings, by now an old story, and United Fruit, a newcomer to the takeover targets were the main items, but Xerox's planned acquisition of CIT Financial Corp. sent both those stocks swinging through the numbers.

Institutional activity rose sharply as the averages penetrated significant levels. On Thursday, the exchange reported a record 118 transactions of 10,000 shares or more, indicating a step-up by the funds, banks and other large-scale traders.

Among the merger targets, Great American Holdings came up the most actively-traded stock of the week, turning over more than 1.5 million shares. The stock whisked through a range of more than five points and finished with a ⅛-point loss at 79. National General Corp., which has an exchange offer out for Great American's shares, was ahead two points to 54¼. AMK Corp., which has a merger agreement with Great American — and is after United Fruit — lost 4⅛ to 46⅞.

United Fruit — off 1¼ to 68 — urged its shareholders not to accept any offer until a relly good one comes up. The other bids on the books now are from Zapata Offshore — down 7⅛ to 73 — and Dillingham Corp. — off three points to 37⅛.

Xerox, which dropped 23 points in three sessions after announcing its deal with CIT, picked up some support, finishing the week with a 2¾-point gain at 273. CIT, third on the active list, was ahead 7⅞ to 55.

Late in the week, General Motors confirmed rumors that it plans to market a small car in the summer of 1970. The word sent the stock ahead two points to 82⅞. Chrysler lost a point at 63, American Motors gave up ⅝ to 12⅞, and Ford rose ⅝ to 56⅞.

Port Opposed To New Hotel

SEATTLE (AP) — The port of Seattle's staff and its architects Friday advised against building of a hotel adjacent to the terminal building at Sea-Tac International Airport.

Fred B. Crawford, assistant port general manager, said a hotel would add to congestion and take up space needed for airport operations.

Proposals had been made by Western International Hotels and Interstate Hosts to build a substantial hotel immediately adjacent to the terminal building.

Sun-Rype Importing

Due to an apple crop decline B.C. Fruit Growers' Association is importing fruit from California to keep its Sun-Rype label on the grocers' shelves.

"To be off the shelf with any of our products for a period of time can be extremely damaging," the association said. "It must be avoided if at all possible."

TOP-LEVEL MEET HELD ON CITROEN FUTURE

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle held a top-level government meeting today on the proposed merger of the French auto firm, Citroen, and the Italian giant, Fiat. The French government is said to oppose a merger. (See story on Page 15.)

De Gaulle discussed the Fiat-Citroen matter for an hour with Premier Maurice Couve de Murville, Finance Minister Francois-Xavier Ortoli and Industry Minister Andre Bettencourt. The ministers declined comment.

Informants said de Gaulle and his ministers worked out the basis for a settlement but would not elaborate. It has been said the government was seeking a "French solution" — meaning it would try and avoid any foreign intervention.

Couve de Murville is reported slated to meet Francois Michelin, president of the tire company which now holds Citroen, early next week. Then Michelin probably will meet de Gaulle and no formal decision can be expected before the end of the week.

South Africa Gold Agreement Fails

By MEL BEISER

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — South Africa and the 10 leading Western central banks failed to reach agreement Friday on the sale of newly-mined gold.

Gold was the main subject discussed behind the scenes at the annual joint meeting of the World Bank and the 111-nation International Monetary Fund.

Most observers believed some progress was made before the meetings ended Friday on the gold issue, which affects the whole structure of international trade and payments. They expect negotiations to be resumed in the future.

But it appeared that in the meantime, South Africa would continue not to sell gold on the free market and central bankers who support the U.S. would not buy gold on the free market or from South Africa, the world's biggest producer.

For the financial world this means speculators can continue to hope for upward pressure on the free market gold price.

The U.S. wants South African gold production fed into private hands so scarcity does not drive the free price far above the official $35-an-ounce figure used as a basis for international settlements.

South Africa wants some guarantee that if it sells on the free market, it will be able to get at least the official $35-an-ounce price.

The central banks include those from Canada, Europe, Japan, the U.S. and Britain.

The free gold market was established in March during an international crisis over huge speculative purchases of gold.

Until then leading central banks kept the price of gold steady by buying and selling to meet supply and demand at the official price, fixed in 1934.

But main Western central banks decided in March to stop the flow of gold from their national reserves to private buyers and left private buyers to deal on a free market at fluctuating prices —so far always above the official $35 level.

Prices Continue Surge to Records

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian share prices continued their surge to record levels in heavy trading this week.

Major industrial and mining stocks led the advance, although a number of high-flying real estate and small industrial issues lost ground.

Among the biggest rises, Hudson Bay Mining was up 4 to 69, Canadian Industrial Gas 4 to 25, Denison 3½ to 77, Placer 3¼ to 33¼, Overland Express 3 to 27 and Great West Life 3 to 78.

The strongest industrial groups were chemicals, industrial mines, food processors, steels, utilities and oil refiners.

In the speculative list, which has been setting the pace at Toronto and Montreal over the last six months, Block Bros. lost 1⅞ to 18⅞, Bramalea 1 to ⅞, Neon Products 1⅞ to 30⅞, Markborough Properties ⅞ to 8⅛ and Fleet Manufacturing 20 cents to $3.70.

Illustrating this small decline, the "Go-Go stock" index compiled by J. H. Crang and Co. posted its first loss for man weeks after touching a peak Wednesday.

INDEX RISING

Toronto industrial index, the main indicator of blue chips and seasoned issues, closed at a record 180.58, up 3.31 on the week.

Until ten days ago, the index's previous record was 178.32, established in May, 1965. Market technicians, who have been predicting a breakthrough by the index into altogether righer range for at least two months, say they may soon be proved right.

Fraser Research Lt., which bases its forecasts on chart study, says the index could move up to the 210-220 level.

"This of course does not mean that such a move will happen all at once, but we would expect these levels to be reached certainly during 1969.

"From the short-term point of view the market has had an extended run in September and some kind of decline would be expected at this time." Fraser says that a drop to the 169-172 level should be seized as "a rather magnificent buying opportunity."

A dominant factor in the market was emphasized this week by the publication of a study of supply and demand for Canadian stocks compiled by Prof. G. R. Conway of York University.

The study, commissioned by the Toronto Stock Exchange, pointed out that the shortage of Canadian equities is becoming serious, and the quantity of new stock issued each year may only be enough to absorb about half the cash available for investment.

This leads to the conclusion that Canadians will be forced to buy more foreign stocks.

On index at Toronto, golds fell 7.96 to 201.30 and western oils 3.81 to 230.90. Base metals rose 2.46 to 113.78. Volume was 18,784,000 shares compared with 19,586,000 last week. Gains outran losses 461 to 310.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 1.94 to 175.98. Volume was 7,125,000 shares compared with 6,413,000 last week. Advances outnumbered losses 211 to 158.

CAR SHOW SHIFT

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle visited the Paris car show Friday and demonstrated a smooth shifting of gears as he met the main participants in an Italian Fiat bid to buy into Citroen, the second largest French car-maker.

"Everything will work out as it must because it must," he told Francois Michelin, the tire manufacturer who owns 56 per cent of Citroen and wants to sell a part, if not all, to Fiat.

When de Gaulle met Citroen chief Pierre Bercot, who does not want to see his company dominated by Fiat, he said: "I wish you every success."

British Foods Record

Garfield Weston's Associated British Foods reports record sales and profits for the year ended March 30.

Profits of the manufacturing and merchandising giant were £17,000,000 ($44,200,000), up 27 per cent from the previous year. Sales were £407,800,000 ($1,060,-280,000), up 36 per cent.

The results include BF operations in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, which produced £8,200,000 ($23,500,000) profit. The Canadian section of Weston's vast food empire is not included.

SA Firms Absorbed

Bayer Foreign Investments Ltd., Toronto, the Canadian holding company of Farbenfabriken Bayer AG., has acquired Chrome-Chemicals, Ltd., South Africa, the West German chemical company said Friday.

Chrome-Chemicals at the same time took over a plant of Marble Lime and Associated Industries Ltd., Merebank, Natal.

Chrome-Chemicals is a major producer of biochromate, Bayer said.

The amount involved in the transactions was not disclosed.

Shell Canada Ltd.

A $10 million expansion of Shell Canada Ltd.'s Sarnia refinery will get under way this fall.

The expansion, expected to be completed in two years, will increase refinery capacity to 50,000 barrels of crude oil daily from the present 42,000 barrels.

Company officials said the refinery will greatly increase its output of premium auto gasoline. Other products are regular gasoline; diesel and other heating fuels, and a small amount of petrochemicals.

New AMC Agreement

An agreement to build Javelins and Ramblers in West Germany was announced in Paris by American Motors Corp. and Wilhelm Karmann Co.

Production of the two AMC models is to start in November and will mark the first time AMC cars have been built in West Germany.

AMC ended an agreement with Renault, its former European production source, in 1967.

Bank Savings Up

Personal savings deposits in the chartered banks at the end of August totalled $13.32 billion compared with $13.16 billion at the end of July and $11.43 billion at Aug. 31 last year, the finance department reports.

SPC Buys $3M Unit

Marubeni-Iida (Canada) Ltd. of Vancouver has been awarded a $3 million contract for a new 100 megawatt steam turbo-generator at the Queen Elizabeth power station in Saskatoon, due for completion in October 1971.

D. B. Furlong, general manager of Saskatchewan Power Corporation, said the Japanese firm's bid included a turbo-generator manufactured by Hitachi and Canadian-manufactured condensers and feed-water heaters. The bid was the lowest of nine.

Gordon Grant, health minister and chairman of the board of SPC, said, "Japan is a very important customer of Canadian wheat, and it is most appropriate that we are able to demonstrate that international trade is a two-way street."

Iron Shipping Rises

Shipments of iron ore by Canadian producers totalled 23.81 million tons during the first seven months of 1968, up from 21 million tons in the same period in 1967, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

Ore shipped to Canadian consumers made up 3.96 million tons and for export, DBS said.

Stocks of iron ore on hand at the end of last July totalled 12.38 million tons.

Engineers Earn More

Average salaries paid to this year's engineering graduates are up nearly 6 per cent from last year, says the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario.

An association study shows this year's graduate is earning an average $625 monthly compared with $585 in 1967 and $535 in 1966.

Results were obtained from a study of salaries paid to about 11,000 engineers working in British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario.

Prosperity Baffles U.S. Economists

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—Somehow an American economic slowdown has been lost. Most analysts still feel it has only been delayed en route. Others aren't sure. Maybe it will never come, they say.

In this age of computers you'd think it couldn't happen, but it has. The American economy was supposed to be turning sluggish by now, the result of spending cuts and an income tax surcharge. But it's roaring.

"I don't know what's happened," said an economist looking at his charts. "Industrial production is high and capital spending plans look good. Lots of jobs and little unemployment. Lots of houses being built, retail sales strong, cars selling like candy bars."

"What bothers me," said his partner, "is that the government takes 10 per cent more taxes from people and the people just don't seem to mind. They're spending like mad. And when people don't complain about taxes something's wrong."

USE QUESTION MARK

A lot of people are asking that question. The Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis headlined an article in its September issue, Excessive Demand Slowing? Note the question mark.

Business Week magazine in a mid-September editorial said:

"These are times that try decision makers' souls. A large majority of economists is warning of a business slowdown. But the economy itself continues to point upward."

Several consultants and economic advisers to business continue to tell their clients to look for a strong 1969, and some of them have all but ruled out fears of a recession during midwinter.

Arthur Okun, the president's chief economic adviser, says that he still expects the slowdown to develop but conceded that so far the signs of it haven't been so pronounced as he had expected.

Walter Heller, who was chief economic adviser in the Kennedy administration, is one of a shrinking number who feel the slowdown already has begun, that it will continue for months and that the country must guard against too much cooling.

Two explanations seem prominent in explanations of why the slowdown hasn't arrived on schedule. One, consumers are dipping into their savings to continue spending for cars, houses and luxuries. Two, some corporations feel the only way to overcome higher wages is to spend money for expansion and greater efficiency.

Whatever the reasons, the slowdown hasn't arrived on schedule. The economists are almost unanimous still in forecasting slower expansion by late fall or winter. But that's what they said before.

Firms Rush Pocket Cars

DETROIT (AP) — With General Motors Corp. announcing plans for a mini-car, the biggest firms in the U.S. auto industry have cast their dies to compete against fast-rising sales of foreign subcompact cars.

GM board Chairman James M. Roche said Thursday in New York that his firm will introduce a small car in 1970.

It will be "a foot shorter than any car GM makes in the United States today, will weigh about 1,500 pounds and will be about a foot longer than the best-selling foreign car," he said.

That would make the GM vehicle, currently called the XP887, about 14 feet, three inches long. Volkswagen, top-selling foreign import, is 13 feet, three inches in length.

Ford Motor Co., second-largest auto producer, is expected to introduce the first new U.S.-made competition to foreign imports when it unveils a sub-compact probably in the spring of 1969, reportedly to be called Maverick.

Banks Must Step to Tempo

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP)—Leo Lavoie, president of the Provincial Bank of Canada, believes that banking institutions just as individuals must "adapt themselves to the tempo and image of their times."

"Stability does not mean stagnation," Mr. Lavoie said, adding that one of the duties of his bank has always been to contribute to the progress and development of sparsely-populated communities in Quebec.

But the bank does not confine its business activities to the province alone. It has expanded into Ontario, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island—and is making plans for further expansion.

"Modern times require new thinking, capable of bringing together in simple form the figurative elements of responsibility, strength and efficiency."

Mr. Lavoie, who had taken a course in advanced management at Harvard University, applied his executive talents to the reorganization of the administrative structure of the bank in accordance with modern management principles.

OPENS REGIONAL OFFICES

Since 1965 the bank, which was founded in 1861 and now has 209 branches, established eight regional offices to assure branch managers of a more efficient guidance, a big help in streamlining the over-all operations of the bank.

Assets climbed steadily from $132,800,000 in 1945 to $467,800,000 in 1962 and by the end of the last fiscal year reached $842,455,288.

Mr. Lavoie is fluently bilingual, and this is reflected in the operations of the bank whose officials boast with justification that the Provincial Bank is the "only truly bilingual bank in Canada."

"In 1948 it was the first bank to adopt a fully mechanized system of centralized operations" and also was the first to extend banking hours in its branches "to meet the particular needs of customers."

COMPANY TO PAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The annual meeting of Laurentide Financial Corporation Ltd. was told Friday the company earned $457,000 in the first two months of the fiscal year and intends to start paying off dividend arrears before the end of 1968.

President M. L. Goeglein said the earning figure for the first two months does not include an annual dividend received from the company's Italian division.

The past fiscal year, Mr. Goeglein said, had been a good one. The company completed the job of putting operations on a sound basis and embarked on what is hoped to be a prolonged period of expanded earnings.

He also said the consumer loans portfolio is continuing to show excellent growth and the company expects to meet its target of a 17-per-cent gain in the current year.

In consumer sales finance, commercial, industrial and real estate, activities continue to make a worthwhile contribution to earnings, he added.

New directors named were: Paul Desmarais, chairman of Power Corporation, and Jean Prisien, executive vice-president of Power. J. R. Yarnell and H. F. Hume did not stand for re-election.

Pacific Asbestos Ltd.

Shareholders of Pacific Asbestos Ltd. have approved a rights offering which will increase the number of the Calgary company's outstanding common shares to 4,668,727 from 4,001,766 and finance Australian exploration.

The offer, under which shareholders are offered six rights to purchase additional shares at $1.50 each for each share now held, expires Nov. 30.

Any shares not taken up by shareholders will be purchased by Burns Brothers and Denton Ltd., a Toronto investment firm.

The Victoria Branch of Junior Achievement wishes to announce the appointment of William G. Henderson as Chairman of the Board of Directors. Mr. Henderson was a founding director of Junior Achievement, both in Winnipeg and Victoria, and is the branch manager of the Standard Life Assurance Company.

COURT REJECTS TAX APPEAL

OTTAWA (CP) — Consolidated Mogul Mines Ltd. is entitled to deduct $558,000 for income tax purposes between 1957 and 1960 for mineral exploration, prospecting and development expenses, the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled.

The court rejected an appeal by the revenue department which said the company in those years was engaged in management of properties belonging to other companies and thus was not entitled to deduct these expenses.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said the only issue to be decided was whether the principal business of Mogul was mining and exploring for minerals. He said it was.

Facts you should know about the new driving law

Section 126A of the Motor Vehicle Act is now in effect in Greater Victoria and the County of Victoria. This new law eliminates tickets and fines for driving offences under the Motor Vehicle Act for British Columbia licensed drivers, and institutes a system of Violation Reports. These Reports, unless disputed, or if disputed but confirmed by a magistrate, will be filed with an individual's driving record at the Motor Vehicle Branch, and will provide the basis for more effective surveillance of offenders by traffic authorities.

What happens if you are stopped for a traffic violation?

If the violation is covered by the new law, the police officer will complete and sign a Violation Report. A copy of this Report will be served to you in person or by mail. The Report specifies the violation of which you are accused, and tells you where a notice of dispute may be delivered. The police officer will ask you to sign an acknowledgement of receipt of the Report but, this signing in no way affects your position if you decide to dispute the Report.

What is done with your violation report?

Unless you deliver a notice of dispute to the person named in the Violation Report within seven days, your Report will be forwarded to the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles. If you failed to sign for the Report – or if there is no evidence that a police officer served the Report – you will be notified by mail by the Superintendent. You have fourteen days from the date of receiving such notification to deliver a notice of dispute to the Superintendent. If a notice of dispute is not received within fourteen days, a copy of the Violation Report is filed with your driving record at the Motor Vehicle Branch.

What happens if you dispute a violation report?

As mentioned, you may deliver a notice of dispute either within seven days of receiving a Violation Report from the police officer or within fourteen days of notification by the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles. In either case, the notice of dispute and a copy of the Violation Report are referred to a Magistrate. After a hearing, in which full opportunity to present evidence is allowed, the Magistrate determines whether the offence has actually taken place. If the Magistrate is satisfied that the offence has occurred, he will inform the Superintendent of his decision. But in no case shall the Magistrate record a conviction or impose any penalty.

What is the penalty for repeated violations?

All Violation Reports – unless successfully disputed before a Magistrate – become a permanent part of an individual's driving record at the Motor Vehicle Branch. For repeated violations, the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles may take any of the following steps.

1. Issue a warning to the offender.
2. Call the offender for an interview and, when deemed necessary, require the offender to take a driver training course.
3. Suspend the offender's driver's licence outright. Before this step is taken, the offender is given the opportunity to show why this should not be done.
4. Require the offender to appear before a Magistrate who, after reviewing his record, determines whether the offender's driver's licence should be suspended.

Which offences are covered by this new law?

The new law applies to all driving offences under the Motor Vehicle Act involving public safety, such as speeding and careless driving. It does not apply to the more serious driving offences in which criminal charges might be laid. Nor does it apply to minor traffic offences, such as over-parking, for which tickets will still be issued. In all cases, the precise nature of the alleged violation is specified on the Violation Report.

This law is designed not so much to punish offenders as to prevent driving offences. Remember – safe driving is your responsibility, too.

Ill-Considered Strikes Must End Says Wilson

By LOUIS NEVIN

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) —Prime Minister Wilson called Friday for an end of "ill-considered" strikes he said were threatening Britain's economic recovery.

The prime minister's appeal was aimed at the country's metal workers, who have threatened to bring British economic life "to a virtual standstill" with a nationwide strike set for Oct. 21.

Wilson was making his final address to the Labor party's annual convention. He chose to deliver it during debate on a resolution presented by the metal workers' Union.

The Labor party's political success, Wilson said, "depends upon economic success . . . on sustaining the rapid increase in production and productivity."

All this "can be imperilled by ill-considered industrial action, whose effect can only be to put the employment of so many of our people at risk."

"Day by day we read of hard-won export orders frustrated by sectional and self-regarding action which no one here would defend," he said.

CHALLENGES POLICY

The metal workers' strike is a direct challenge to Wilson's economic policy and its curbs on wages. The Amalgamated Engineering and Foundrymen's Union called the strike over its demand for a 6.5-per-cent pay raise despite the government's limitation of increases to 3.5 per cent in any 12-month period.

The convention approved the AEFU resolution, presented by the union's general secretary, Hugh Scanlon, and in doing so delivered a rebuff to both Wilson and the party's national executive. The resolution pledged the party's support for Wilson's government "subject to the reservations involved in the policy decisions of the Trades Union Congress."

The TUC at its annual convention here in Blackpool just a month ago rejected by a 7-to-1 margin the government's wage curbs.

Both Wilson and the executive demanded that reference to the TUC be struck out. They were voted down by a margin of 565,000 out of 6,000,000 bloc votes cast. The unamended resolution was then approved unanimously.

The vote came in the closing hours of the five-day convention during which the government saw its wage-curb policy rejected by a 5-to-1 margin and was defeated or won hairline victories on a number of other issues.

Wilson said every conference decision that went against him "we accept as a warning to the government; a warning, not an instruction."

"No one has ever seriously claimed that a government which must be responsible to Parliament can be instructed."

Wilson promised the convention "a strong movement and a strong government" but warned that his "government will stand by the policies which must be carried through to secure economic strength."

In a television interview Thursday night, Wilson reaffirmed Britain's hope for a reasonable settlement in Rhodesia and complimented the breakaway colony's Premier Ian Smith on his courage in dealing with white extremists.

Wilson spoke after the convention had voted against a deal with Smith—but in a less militant way than had been expected.

Political commentators have for some time been speculating that Wilson may reopen negotiations with Smith next week when the Opposition Conservatives hold their annual convention and might otherwise get the headlines.

Wilson's television interview did nothing to reduce this speculation. He twice made the point that Smith has beaten off the more extreme members of his Rhodesia Front government.

In addition, Wilson for the first time indicated that Britain could amend its previous insistence on "nibmar"—no independence before majority rule. Britain is committed on this point to fellow members of the Commonwealth. Rhodesia now is ruled by a white minority government.

Wilson said: "We have always been prepared to come to a reasonable settlement. It's got to be an honorable settlement."

He said the settlement must fulfil already known principles, of which the main one is a guaranteed advance toward eventual rule by Rhodesia's Negro majority. Then he added:

"If we find enough sign of a willingness to accept—and Mr. Smith has after all done something to get rid of his racialists anyway, then it would be possible to go forward to a settlement."

Kiwanians Want Less U.S. Politics

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kiwanis delegates here this week decided they don't need American politics rammed down their throats at international Kiwanis conventions.

The 51st annual convention of the Ontario, Quebec, Maritimes and Caribbean district of Kiwanis said they were dissatisfied with guest speakers discussing U.S. issues.

Delegate Ken Culkin of Montreal said that at recent international conventions in Houston and Toronto, guest speakers expressed only far right extreme views.

"They refuse to listen to us Canadians," he said. "They wave the American flag, motherhood and I found I was not at an international convention but a political rally."

When the next international convention is held in Miami, Montreal delegates may leave in protest if extreme right wing views are continually heard, Mr. Culkin said.

The convention, in its final session Wednesday, decided to ask the Kiwanis International to invite guest speakers with various points of view, rather than the extreme right wing.

A hush falls over the terraces of the cliff-hugging hotel. The music stops. High above on a rocky promontory, a lone young man kneels before a tiny altar. Slowly he walks to the edge, eyes straining to measure the rhythm of the inrushing Pacific. Then he's gone — in one great, soaring, beautiful dive — from 140 feet! A Place to Be

Noble Landmarks Scrubbed In London Beauty Treatment

London, lately world centre for modern fashions, is getting a face lift.

Many of her most noble and ancient landmarks are getting the beauty treatment. St. Paul's Cathedral has been restored to its 17th century splendor. Most of the government buildings near Westminster Abbey have been cleaned of the grime of the ages, revealing soft colors in their stone and brickwork. The popular Horseguards parade where the Guard is changed every day, is hardly recognizable.

Now comes the turn of Trafalgar Square and the famous Nelson's Column, which is being cleaned from head to toe. It's the first cleaning of the 170-foot granite column in its 123 year life-span. Nelson himself had a wash and brush a few years ago — he's so popular with the pigeons! The nearby National Gallery, National Portrait Gallery and Admiralty Arch are next on the list.

BANK TOO

Other landmarks on the cleaning list are the Bank of England and Wellington Arch at Hyde Park Corner. Incidentally, the latter houses London's smallest police station which holds only two people at a time! Work is under way to clean the massive White Tower in the Tower of London.

Despite its name, the tower has been dark grey for as long as anybody can remember. No one is certain why it originally got that title. It may have been because of the pale color of the stone originally brought from Normandy by William the Conqueror. Or perhaps because of the periodic lime washing it used to get when it was a royal residence.

Full Retrospective Honors Don Harvey

By TED LINDBERG

We seem to have had a spate of retrospective exhibitions lately, and until Oct. 27 a very large and comprehensive display of Donald Harvey's works may be seen at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Don Harvey is the best painter in this area—and I can say it, just like that.

Lindberg

This can only serve to put a lot of noses out of joint, including Mr. Harvey's, because he will realize this is precious little comfort, but it will have to do until I have seen more art in Canada.

There is more than substantial evidence to this statement in the show itself, which is borne out by these facts: (1) he is a gifted draftsman, (2) he understands color, (3) he is in charge, (4) he has the technical training which others in this area have spent a lifetime learning by trial and error, and, (5) he has had the courage and judiciousness to proceed at his own speed, neither holding back (where he could have settled into a nice, pat, commercially safe style of semi-abstract landscapes) nor rushing headlong into aesthetically spurious areas (attempting to cash in on the "art biz" gimmick-of-the-month).

This man is a serious painter, who has permitted himself to take nothing for granted.

His development as an artist is as logical and lucid as anything can be made to be, yet he has the emotional over-drive to transcend logic when the moment of truth is at hand.

So far, this admixture of control and feisty expression has worked for him admirably well, and there seems to be no indication of flagging abilities.

Mr. Harvey is a put-up-your-dukes type, who obviously relished getting "inside" that canvas and slugging it out with line, space, color, prudence and the history of modern art.

He has boxed his way out of the English landscape bag, and will do the same with any other style that gets in his way.

Let's look at the record; most of it is there at the Gallery.

Twelve years ago he was coasting along, doing more or less academic, figurative work, resting pretty much on his considerable drafting skill. The work is competent, sensitive, but not terribly exciting—the sort of perfunctory thing one might be expected to do on a tour of southern Europe.

But there are restless indications, as when the brush or crayon lingers a little bit too long on this patch of color or that aspect of form, almost as if it wants to break out of literal rendering into some new and unfathomed area.

At some point within a series of paintings of cabbages and tomato plants, or perhaps a little later, within a painting titled "Geranium," the break is made with representational art.

Harvey, at this point, has learned all he can from such discipline.

Critic At The Gallery

He goes into orbit, as it were, in deep space, and like the "Famous Banner Fireworks Display . . . with over a thousand pieces of noise and beauty," he sets off the show.

"From cabbages and tomato plants?" you say.

It happens all the time. Less imaginative types go on shooting rampages.

In the early sixties this gestural movement in his work is central and horizontal, with the faintest memory of landscape and gravity, a suggestion of sky-shape and land-shape, but with a greatly expanded freedom.

A good example is found in "Havoc," dated 1963.

From this stems a characteristice cruciform gesture which smites that horizontal form, exemplified by such paintings as "Margin," 1964, and Mr. Harvey has invented his own tension and adversity, his own little War of the Worlds.

"Mixer," in oil and lucite, ends this struggle as the whole composition takes on a gyroscopic action which defies gravity. The painting becomes a juggling act, quicker than the eye.

Again, refinements take place: a new kind of control on a different basis—new subtleties of color appear, and he has begun to make silk screen prints which in turn suggest new approaches to painting—mainly uses of flat color, as opposed to a variegated brushwork.

Also he explores the possibilities of hard edge discipline played off against organic pyro-techniques.

In an important painting titled "Drop" he combines all of these activities in one spectacular virtuoso performance, and again with aplomb in "Yes, Yes."

Perhaps the most sophisticated painting to date remains "A Place to Be," which was exhibited once, during the summer Jury Show.

This is the big yellows-on-blues composition which constitutes a fantastic presence—so technically confounding that the eye refuses to assist in understanding the situation.

It appears to me to be a composite painting in which different forms of energy: heat, light, electric and geometrics are being delineated all at once—but the eye confirms nothing.

Happily, this may be seen (or I should say, "un-seen") again and again, because it has recently become part of the Gallery's permanent collection.

AT THE MOVIES

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

THE SWIMMER
Victoria Premiere
Coronet Theatre

There is a strange hermetic quality about this film that is thoroughly distinctive, and The Swimmer himself is largely an abstract figure in search of fulfilment.

On the surface he is an easy-living suburbanite who leaves a swimming party and takes a unique route home by plunging through the pools of affluent friends along the way. By some he is welcomed, by some he is snubbed, and by some he is outwardly rejected.

There is more than a suggestion that The Swimmer's whole life is under review as he swims home, and that the people he encounters en route are but symbols of his strengths and failures.

The arguments which arose after Friday night's showing at the Coronet indicate there is no easy answer to this whimsical tale created by author John Cheevor and adapted to the screen by Eleanor Perry.

It will undoubtedly be interpreted in different ways by different people.

On the dramatic side, Burt Lancaster gives one of the best performances of his career as the bewildered swimmer, and his splendid physique is emphasized throughout.

He is well supported by Janet Landgard—a tall, lissom blonde who fills a bikini to perfection—and by Janice Rule in similar scanty attire.

Janet goes with him part of the way on his swim home; Janice, a former mistress, fights him off with abuse when he tried to renew their relationship.

At a community pool, near the end of the route, town merchants remind The Swimmer that he owes them money. Worse still, they tell him his beloved daughters laughed at him behind his back.

It is evening and increasingly cold when The Swimmer reaches the end of his eight-mile odyssey. The gate is rusted, the house dark, the door locked.

Where does he go from here?

Farmer Sows Record Crop

Wheat grown by a Rosetown, Sask., farmer is being touted as next winner for Canada at upcoming international agricultural shows.

A recorded yield of 104 bushels per acre was harvested from the land of Albert Kessel, north of Rosetown, who sowed a 100-acre field in Manitou hard, red spring wheat.

It has yielded a weighty 68 pounds to the bushel and likely will be bought at a premium for seed grain.

Neighboring yields are running around 30 bushels per ace, it is reported.

Vancouver to Sparkle For Star-Trekkers

By PETER TRASK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Star-trekking soon no longer will be the prerogative of television's fictitious spacemen—it will be an experience which anyone in Vancouver can enjoy.

Visitors to the $1,500,000 H. R. MacMillan Planetarium here will take simulated trips into space and see what the earth looks like from the moon.

Planetariums already are operating in Edmonton, Calgary and Montreal, and one is to open in Toronto in November. Winnipeg is to have one in 1969.

The planetarium is most simply described as a round movie theatre with the screen covering the entire roof of the points of light are used to reproduce the movements of the stars.

Key to the operation is in the centre of the circular domed theatre—a giant rotating projector.

A three-ton, 16-foot-high marvel of engineering and projection optics, the main projector has been made by the Carl Zeiss Foundation of East Germany.

Roams Through Time

Built at a cost of $160,000, the projector can show the sky from any latitude of the earth at any time—past, present or future. Through its lenses is projected an artificial but highly realistic nighttime sky on to the overhead projection dome.

The projector is on a platform that can be raised and lowered in a well in the centre of the 256-seat theatre. In addition, the projector can be rotated horizontally to reproduce the movements of the stars and vertically to give the effect of hurtling through space.

Armchair star-gazers will also see the movements of the sun and all the planets as well as satellites flashing across the heavens.

Planetarium curator David Roger showed some of the projector's capabilities at a press preview. He demonstrated sunset in Vancouver and "moved" the position of the stars over the city to the positions in which they will be on Sept. 15, 1969.

Seven Shows Yearly

By the time the planetarium is opened—Oct. 26—various other projectors will have been installed.

Sixty slide projectors, three movie projectors and a zoom projector will be among the devices used by Mr. Roger to create the effects he wants.

"Everything will be done to background music through a 25-channel sound system," said Mr. Roger. "And all the effects will be co-ordinated by a computer."

He said the shows—seven different ones every year—will begin with late afternoon in Vancouver. A sunset will be created, complete with sounds of rush-hour traffic, gulls and airplanes, and then the sky will darken, the stars appear and the comment begin.

The planetarium was made possible by Vancouver forest industry millionaire H. R. MacMillan who donated $1,500,000 to the city.

Resembles Spaceship

It is situated on the grounds of a former RCAF base in the Kitsilano area and overlooks the sea and mountains.

From the outside the planetarium looks like a huge white spaceship. Inside, it consists of two large display galleries, a lobby with a breath-taking view of the city, ocean and mountains, an administrative area and the circular theatre which is 65 feet in diameter.

The Way of All Stars, the planetarium's first show, will run until the end of November with two or three performances daily. From December to early January planetarium visitors will see The Star of Christmas in which an explanation of what the Star of Bethlehem might have been is attempted.

Millions More To Hit The Heights

MONTREAL (UPI) — The number of people crossing the North Atlantic by scheduled airliner is expected to jump from last year's five million to 13.5 million by 1975, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) said Friday.

It added that scheduled airline passenger traffic likely would quadruple by 1980, and that transport of air freight probably will go up more than 10 times by 1980.

The figures were contained in the 12th edition of "World Air Transport Statics," a summary of international Airline business covering the calendar year 1967.

103 LINES

A total of 103 airlines belong to IATA, a Montreal-based organization that represents the interests of airline operators in the same way that the United Nations' International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), also based in Montreal, represents governments.

In its projection, covering a period when supersonic jetliners and 350-passenger "jumbo jets" will be used, IATA said the international airlines would have some 8,400 planes in 1980, of which all but 1,300 would be jets. Of 6,229 aircraft used internationally in 1967, 2,206 were jet powered.

The association's member airlines flew 188 million passengers and 245,352 million passenger-kilometers on their scheduled international and domestic services last year, representing a traffic increase of 19.8 per cent over 1966.

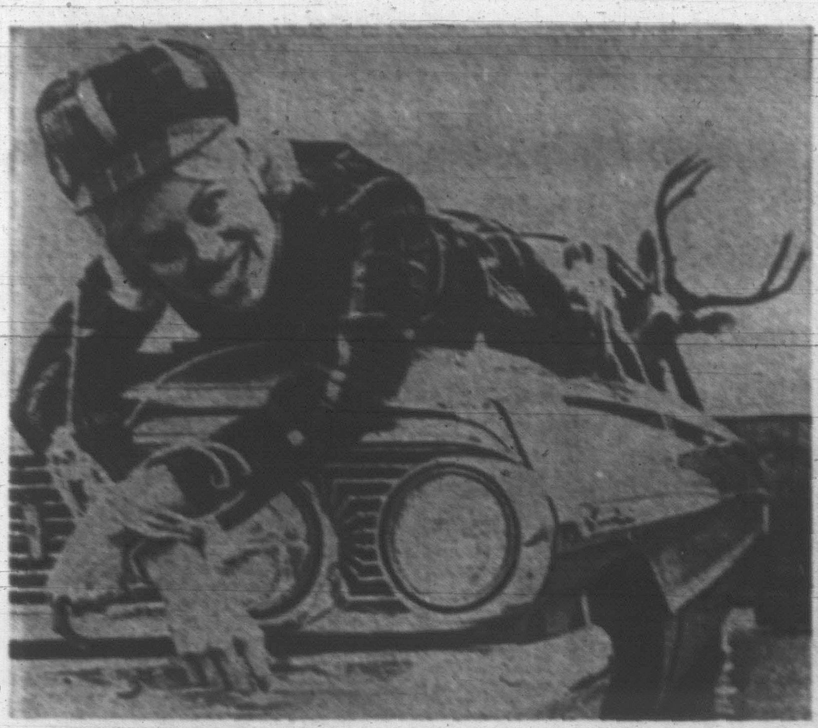
Film Series Extended

Local enthusiasm for past travel-adventure film series has prompted World Adventure Tours to extend its program at McPherson Playhouse this season.

There will be nine events, an increase of four over last year. Also there are to be two showings of each event per night, at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

A diversified number of countries in color film will be seen, each with the producer-narrator appearing in person.

First of the series will be presented Oct. 14, by Hjordis Kittel Parker who will show her new film, Norse Adventure. Theme of the film is the venturesome history of Norway from Ice Age through Viking period and up to the present time.



HERE'S A SWITCH—a new deer on the hood and look who's driving! The tables were turned in Olympia, Wash., where an enterprising photographer became tired of the traditional hunting picture persuaded Susan Rowe to pose with tongue out and limbs bound. Choral Society Will Present The Messiah

Victoria Choral Society will present Handel's Messiah in mid-December, Mendelssohn's Elijah in May and Mass by Kodaly in March, with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Plans for these performances were discussed at the society's first meeting of the 1968-69 season in Christ Church Memorial Hall this week.

New members were welcomed by Alan Clapp, president, and Rodney Webster, musical director.

Rehearsals will be held every Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. in the Memorial Hall. Singers wishing to join should contact Hugh Sinnott at 383-2101.

EAST, WEST SCHOOL BEST SCOUTS FIND

TORONTO (CP) — Nine hundred United States Boy Scouts attended Toronto-area schools Friday and most found themselves at home.

Robert Reynolds, 11, of Maple Glen, Pa., said the experience proved to him that school is just about the same anywhere.

Philip Meyer, 13, of New York, said the only difference he found was that back home he got out of school an hour earlier in the afternoon.

Fabricated Wards Get Gov't Okay

Prefabricated hospital wards will be introduced this year in the province, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark indicated Thursday in approving two construction projects.

Mr. Loffmark announced that Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster had been authorized to spend up to $2 million on an expansion and renovation program which would include "prefabricated modular units" to replace temporarily 176 beds lost in a demolished old wing.

Cats Win Opener; Snub Raid Charge

Kelowna Claims 'Poaching' By Victoria Hockey Club

Players claimed one battle for Victoria Cougars on Friday. The team's executive shrugged off another argument but it appeared it may be headed for continuation.

That's how the B.C. Junior Hockey League launched the 1968-69 campaign.

Cougars, skating strongly, came from behind to clip New Westminster Royals 6-5 in the season's opener at the Vancouver Forum. The same two teams square off again tonight in Memorial Arena, starting 8:30.

The executive argument started in Kelowna when Buckaroos' manager Scotty Angus charged Cougars with "poaching players" from Okanagan teams.

Angus specifically cited the case of centre Dave Cousins, a 30-goal scorer with Kelowna last season who now hopes to play for Victoria.

The Kelowna team, in a telegram to secretary-registrar Ivan Temple of Victoria, has asked the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association to suspend Victoria coach Doug Anderson and manager Bob Reid "for tampering."

Angus accused Cougars of raiding and covering their actions with the excuse that Okanagan players are anxious to attend the University of Victoria.

Approached by Cousins, Says Coach

"Just because there is a university in Victoria, this doesn't give Anderson the right to step in and try to lure all the best players of the league to his team," said Angus.

"We in Kelowna are not the only people in the league who are mad because players have been lured to Victoria. I know all the other teams in the Okanagan are upset as well."

Six players who were with other junior teams last season now are with Cougars — Adrian Blais and Len Barrie of Penticton, Grant Evans and Gerry Bond of Kamloops, Ed Forsland of Vernon, and Cousins.

Anderson answered the charges, saying that in Cousins' case, the player approached him.

"He wrote me a letter before training started. He wanted to play in Victoria rather than Kelowna," said Anderson. "I didn't approach him — he came to me."

Reid discounted the Kelowna charges with a hearty laugh and added:

"This is really quite ridiculous. We have the signed releases for Blais and Barrie. I talked to Jack Taggart (Penticton's coach) on Thursday night, and he gave me no indication that he was unhappy. It was known last winter that these boys were going to university somewhere.

Not Paying Money for Any Players

"At that time, several league officials felt it would be good for all concerned if they did come to Victoria. By staying in B.C., the boys return to their hometowns as good drawing cards . . . even though playing for someone else.

"Cousins came to us because he wanted to take a physical education course. He can't get that same course in Grade 13 or in a junior college.

"Angus wanted some money from Victoria before granting Cousins' release. I told him we weren't paying money for any hockey player. He replied that if Cousins doesn't play in Kelowna, he won't play anywhere."

In Vancouver, Evans' second goal of the night — with less than three minutes left in the game — earned the Cougars their victory.

His marker capped a five-goal performance as Cougars overcame a 5-1 deficit in the third period before 400 spectators.

Royals were moved from their own arena by the National Lacrosse Association playoffs.

Rookie Bob Merluk also scored twice for Cougars with his first goal, while Royals were two men short, opening a 1-0 margin. Other Victoria scorers were Len Barrie and Adrian Blais.

For New Westminster, Kevin Coates and Al Knight each scored two goals and Ken Love scored the other.

Maurice L'Heureux of New Westminster and Forsland both turned in fine goaltending efforts. L'Heureux made 44 saves, Forsland had to handle only 25.

'Sew-In' Approved By Males

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — There has been a marathon sew-in at the women's quarters in Olympic Village. The girls have been shortening the hemlines of their Olympic outfits.

Jay Dahlgren, Canadian javelin competitor from Vancouver, said:

"We were issued with dresses that came to below the knee.

"We are revolted and sat down to shorten them about four inches before the Canadian flag-raising ceremony (Wednesday)."

She said most of the girls were also shortening the shorts they had been issued.

"They are made of heavy material, and have thick elastic at the bottom. We have been altering them to make them lighter and easier to wear."

The male athletes favor the campaign.

"We are all training to be starers," said Italian hurdler Eddy Ottz with a smile. "If a girl is good looking, I don't see why you should not see a few more centimetres of her legs."

Jewitt Leads Golf Seniors

Willima Jewitt fired a net 65 on his home course to win the Bob Mayhew Trophy at Uplands Golf Club in the final medal event of the season for members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association.

John Carlow finished with a three-over-par 73 to capture low-gross honors.

Other gross awards were won by Dr. George Bigelow and Larry McCooey, other net prizes went to Robert Bonar and H. E. Kennedy, and special awards were taken by A. M. Chesser, George Molecey, Ted Colgate and J. A. R. Jones.

'Soc Et Tuum' Hardly Latin, But Obvious . . .

DETROIT (AP)—The thing in Detroit now is signs proclaiming:

"Soc Et Tuum, Tigers."

The translation is simple, and so is Detroit's promised weapon against St. Louis in the World Series—the home run.

And it's that weapon that just may be the reason why big Earl Wilson started game No. 3 for the Tigers today.

For Wilson not only is an imposing figure on the mound at 6 foot 3 and 215 pounds, but he also is one of the most prolific homer-hitting pitchers in major league baseball history.

And it just so happens that Tiger Stadium, site of game No. 3, is more of a hitters' park than Busch Stadium, site of the first two games. The Cardinals took the first 4-0 and Detroit the second 8-1.

Detroit manager Mayo Smith isn't about to say that's the reason Wilson followed Dennis McLain and Mickey Lolich to the mound in the Tigers' World Series rotation, but he does admit:

"He is more effective pitching in this park — and his bat is effective too."

Wilson hit seven home runs during the regular season for a career total of 33, just four short of the major league record held by Wes Ferrell.

Wilson takes his homer-hitting in stride.

"I was a catcher when I was first signed," Wilson said Friday. "I imagine that might have something to do with me hitting homers. But I'm not really a good hitter. That's why I'm pitching."

The Cardinals had their first good look at Tiger Stadium on Friday but Ray Washburn, today's other starter, didn't "think it's so small."

He did feel that hard-hit balls "carry well. The thing to do is to keep the ball down on the batters."

While the Cardinals trooped out to the field for the start of today's game, Lou Brock sat in the trainer's room undergoing treatment for an injured right shoulder. The outfielder hurt it sliding into second base during the first game Wednesday. Brock didn't think it was serious.

"It'll probably be stiff for a couple of days, that's all."

Topcoat weather and frost warnings greeted Detroiters today but it was expected to be sunny by game time.

The fourth game is set for Sunday with first-game pitchers Denny McLain of Detroit and Cardinals' Bob Gibson ready to square off again. National television coverage gets under way at 9:30 a.m. with the game itself set to start at 10.

Gibson struck out a record 17 batters and some of the Tigers looked ahead to their next confrontation with the St. Louis ace. Except Detroit first baseman Norm Cash, who struck out three times.

"I may come up sick," said Cash.

Al Kaline, on the other hand, made an interesting observation about the Tigers facing Gibson in Tiger Stadium.

"It's possible that he could be a lot tougher," the Detroit veteran said. "We have shadows across the field from the stands and that would make it even tougher to pick up the ball."

Gibson, seeking his seventh straight complete-game Series victory, will try to keep the Tigers in the dark. But 31-game winner McLain will try and regain some of the spotlight he lost Wednesday.

Alouettes Prepare For Reed

By The Canadian Press

George Reed, hard-driving fullback with Saskatchewan Roughriders, will get special attention from Montreal Alouettes Sunday in a Canadian Football League interlocking game in Regina.

"Reed is the key to their game," Montreal coach Kay Dalton said while preparing his Eastern Conference club for a two-game series in the west.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers were seeking a victory this afternoon in their bid for the third and final Western Conference playoff berth when they faced Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the EFC in Hamilton.

LIONS TACKLE ESKS

Tonight in Edmonton, British Columbia Lions tangle with the Eskimos in an important game for both WFC clubs. The third-place Eskimos hold a four-point lead over the Lions and a five-point advantage over the Bombers in the western playoff battle.

Calgary Stampeders, idle until Wednesday when they play host to the Alouettes, head the WFC standing with 16 points, one more than Saskatchewan. Edmonton has nine points, British Columbia five and Winnipeg four.

In Montreal, Dalton has had the Alouettes working against a simulated Saskatchewan offence in practices, with special emphasis on stopping Reed.

As well as Reed, Dalton said the Alouettes would have to keep a close watch on quarterback Ron Lancaster, Gord Barwell and Alan Ford, to prevent touchdowns from passes.

"But everything counts on Reed," the Montreal coach said. "If we take that away from them I'm certain our defensive halfbacks are good enough to stop the passing."

IN MEXICO

Strife Seems Distant

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Take a walk through a riot-torn Mexico City, host of the Olympic Games, and you would think you were in the most peaceful city in the world.

Of course, you are.

Mexico City itself is calm, and peaceful and guests find the hospitality of the Mexicans something to treasure for years.

In the Camino Real Hotel, headquarters of the International Olympic Committee, a string and piano orchestra provide palm-court music.

Guests sit around sipping before-dinner cocktails.

Take a walk to Mexico City's fashionable Reforma—Mexico's answer to France's Champs Elysee and Italy's Via Veneto—where the girls and boys are out enjoying themselves with not a hint of trouble.

HEARD NOTHING

About eight miles away, athletes train happily at the Olympic village in preparation for the Oct. 12 opening of the Games. Talk of gun fights and people killed in the streets seem thousands of miles away.

They never heard a shot fired in anger in Wednesday's bloody riots that accounted for a reported 31 dead—and maybe more.

Over the last 2½ months some 32 people have been killed as students rioted against the Mexican government.

The blood bath between the students and the army on Wednesday happened at a housing development called Tlatelolco, a pleasant part by any standards, which houses 70,000 people and also accommodated the vocational school—the school of many of the student rioters.

SCENE CHANGES

Tlatelolco is only a couple of miles from downtown Mexico City. Here, the palm-court atmosphere of a pleasant afternoon changes—and quickly.

Hundreds of troops, armed with guns, surround the development—one that looks like a city of steel.

Armored cars with guns at the ready stand at strategic points. Soldiers are on guard atop skyscraper buildings.

Other police are on hand to quell future riots.

Downtown Mexico City, the Olympic village, and other Olympic stadiums were oases compared with the tense and uneasy calm at Tlatelolco—the Place of the Three Cultures where the students have been holding their meetings.

Brewer's Birds Trip Townsend

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Gay Brewer, a pug-nosed Texan, shot a final round 69 today and successfully defended his Alcan golf title with a 72-hole total of 283.

Brewer, a former Masters champion from Dallas, was 13 under par for the par 74, 7,140-yard Royal Birkdale layout on the shore of the Irish Sea.

Peter Townsend, a 22-year-old British whiz kid who held the third round lead, slipped to a 73 for 286 and second place in the $200,000 tournament. He blew his chances in a hurry, taking a bogey five on the first hole and a double bogey six at the second.

Bob Murphy, the paunchy former amateur champion from Nichols, Fla., finished with a 72 for 287 and a tie for third with 48-year-old Gardner Dickinson, who shot a course record 67—seven under par.

TOOK CHARGE

Brewer, one stroke off the pace going into the final round, wasted no time in taking charge. He birdied two of the first three holes, and picked up two more birds on the back nine before taking his only bogey on the par four 15th. He got that back on the final hole, clinching the $55,000 first place money with a bird.

Dickinson, the lean and leathery Ben Hogan prototype, made an early charge with an incredible 29 on the front nine, seven under par. He had seven birds, including four in a row on six and nine.

"I went out in a 29 and back in a wheelbarrow," he quipped.

Dickinson's round broke two course records, the 29 going out and the 67 total breaking the record of 68 set by the late Tony Lema in the British Open in 1965.

He had only 25 putts and one-putted 11 greens in the balmy weather.

Bobby Cole, 20-year-old South African, shot a final round 68 for a tie at 288 with Peter Butler of England, 72, and New Zealand's Bob Charles, 71.

Bill Casper, the leading money winner this season in the United States, managed a 70 for 293 and U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino had a 75 for 296.

Al Zimmerman Trophy Winner

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Al Zimmerman of Victoria slipped to 79 Friday but his 36-hole total of 152 gave him first place in a trophy contest for players over 60 in the Pacific Northwest Professional Golf Association seniors' tournament.

Al Feldman, Auburn, Wash., closed with a one-over-par 73 to win the tournament by three strokes with a total of 147. Bob Litton, Vancouver, was second.

Nurses Toot Whistles, Soldiers Come Running

MEXICO CITY (AP) — It takes a 20-foot pole vaulter, a presidential edict or a parachute to crash the women's quarters at Olympic Village, and nobody makes it.

Well, almost nobody—guys, that is.

"Yes, one man did go through these gates several days ago," a stony-faced woman army lieutenant said Friday. "He was a doctor—one of the Argentine senoritas became ill."

About 1,500 of the world's fleetest, jumpingest and shapeliest females are sheltered in three high-rise apartments behind towering wire fences and steel barriers in the Villa Olympica.

Eager males, including the husbands of some, can get only as far as the double front gate where a cordon of Mexican army nurses in tan uniforms stand constant vigil.

There are 68 of these guardians of purity—cold-eyed, firm and alert.

They don't wear weapons at their waist or carry billy-sticks, but each is equipped with a whistle. A small toot, and a platoon of soldiers in tin hats and full battle gear can be at the scene in seconds.

The three apartment dwellings have a 10-foot wire fence and a constant guard in front. In the rear are steel walls so high that John Pennel, the 17-foot pole vaulter, wouldn't have a prayer of making it.

MUST SEND NOTES

Unmentionables are hung out the windows to dry. The windows have no shades but flimsy white curtains which offer scant protection from preying eyes at night.

Girl-watching has become the favorite nocturnal pastime of the Australians and New Zealanders, who occupy a building just across the way.

To see one of the women athletes off the premises, it is necessary to see one of the three guards at the gate, send a note to the person involved and hope she will come out and talk while swinging on the gate.

According to the informal tally of the gate guards, the female athlete most sought is Olga Corosova, the curvacious, blonde Soviet gymnast whose vital statistics are 38-24-36.

The figures have nothing to do with parallel bars, trampolines and side horses. They refer to tape measures and things like that.

City Ball Graduates Powered Battleford

A pair of graduates from Victoria's minor baseball ranks cut an impressive swath in Saskatchewan this summer.

Gerry Lister and Peter Duncan proved versatile and effective as they sparked North Battleford Beavers to the Northern Saskatchewan Baseball League championship.

Both pitched, played shortstop and in the outfield. Lister posted a 9-3, won-lost record, was third in strikeouts with 102, and finished with a glossy earned-run-average of 1.00 during the regular season. He also hit four home runs, including two in playoffs.

Duncan, voted the team's most versatile player, had a 3-3 pitching record.

DENVER RETURNS WITH PILOUS . . .

. . . SEATTLE, BUCKS FAVORED

Rebuilt Canucks Loom as Darkhorse Threat

By CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Hockey League launches the 1968-69 season next week with Vancouver Canucks rated the darkhorse entry after a basement finish last season.

A number of changes have occurred in the six-team circuit during the summer hiatus, including the return of Denver and a major shakeup in the Canucks organization.

Joe Crozier takes charge of the Canuck destiny after compiling an enviable coaching record of three American League championships in the past five seasons at Rochester.

Vancouver has a wealth of talent, including veteran goalie George Gardner; centres Phil Maloney, all-time third high WHL scorer; Billy McNeill, the loop's most valuable player two times; Brian Kilrea, who once piled up 72 assists in an AHL season; Bob Barlow, Bryan Hextall and Len Lunde, who have been scoring stars in both leagues.

Vancouver is expected to make the playoffs but Portland and defending champion Seattle are rated the top two.

Bill MacFarland at Seattle not only has indestructible Guyle Fielder back but has added a second centre of the same ilk. Traditional league leader in assists, Fielder needs only nine points to reach 1,500. The newcomer is Art Stratton, who led the AHL in assists for three years and compiled 109 points for Buffalo four years ago.

Portland's Buckaroos, piloted by Hal Laycoe, show defensive strength and return with proven holdovers such as Gerry Goyer, Larry Leach, Norm Johnson and captain Art Jones, the most-valuable-player and league-leading scorer last season.

San Diego, guided by the veteran Max McNab, lost scoring ace Len Ronson but replaced him with Bruce Carmichael, who never has scored less than 20 goals in his pro career. Potential 30-goal men include Willie O'Ree, Fred Hilts and Al Nicholson. Goalies who appeared set are holdover Bob Champoux and the 1960 American Olympic Games hockey team hero, Jack McCartan.

Alf Pike lost some scoring power off his Phoenix team with a switch of players to Denver and Minnesota, but he returns with high-scoring Tommy McVie and has recruited Leo Thiffault and Andre Pronovost from Memphis. Pronovost appeared in more than 500 National League games with Montreal, Boston and Detroit.

Nicknamed the Invaders, Denver not only played in the WHL in 1964 but won the regular season crown. The franchise moved to Victoria the following year and the team was coached by Rudy Pilous both seasons.

The name has changed to the Denver Spurs but Pilous is back at the helm and the whole circuit will be fretting to know what amount of power he will bring west from the Spurs' training ice at Niagara Falls.

Two stars of that 1964 Denver club are on the new roster — forwards Lou Jankowski and Gordie Redahl, who were with Phoenix last season.

BLUES UPSET

Nats Rate Look

By The Canadian Press

If the National Hockey League ever expands again, a candidate for membership might be Canada's national team.

The nationals showed pro class Friday night, beating St. Louis Blues 3-1 to sweep a two-game exhibition series against the NHL club, Stanley Cup finalists last season.

The Blues, beaten 5-4 by the nationals Wednesday, yanked veteran goalie Jacques Plante with 20 seconds left in Friday's game in an attempt to beat the pesky Canadians.

But the move backfired when Gerry Pinder slapped the puck into the empty net. Bob Birdsell, a rookie, fired the winner late in the game past Plante, who is making a comeback with St. Louis after a sparkling career with Montreal Canadiens.

Defenceman Gary Young got Canada's other goal. Larry Keenan scored for St. Louis.

WIN FOR NHL

In other pre-season exhibition games involving NHL teams, New York Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Kitchener, Ont., Oakland Seals and Los Angeles Kings tied 1-1 at Kingston, Ont., Detroit Red Wings trimmed Minnesota North Stars 5-2 at Duluth, Minn., Montreal Canadiens crushed Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League 9-3 at Cleveland, and Philadelphia Flyers trounced Quebec Aces of the AHL 7-1 at Halifax.

Oakland's pre-season undefeated skein remained intact with the tie against Los Angeles. The Seals now have won six and tied three.

Ted Hampson gave Oakland the tie with a late goal and Eddie Joyal was the Kings' scorer.

Rod Gilbert, Ron Stewart and Wayne Rivers were the New York scorers in the game played before 5,500 Kitchener fans. Ken Wharram scored a third-period goal for Chicago, spoiling a shutout bid by Ed Giacomin who blocked 29 shots in the New York nets.

BEAT NORTH STARS

Detroit rapped across four goals in the third period to beat the North Stars who had to face a barrage of 52 shots from the Red Wings. Detroit scorers were Pete Mahovlich, Nick Libbett, Pete Stemkowski, Frank Mahovlich and Bruce McGregor.

Andre Boudrias and Milan Marcetta scored for Minnesota. Marcetta's goal came on a second-period penalty shot after Red Wings goalie Roger Crozier was injured, not seriously. Roy Edwards, his replacement, was the victim of Marcetta's goal.

Mickey Redmond and Ralph Backstrom each scored three goals to pace the Canadiens.

Vaughan Breezes To Victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, a Canadian pro golf tour competitor this year, Friday shot a two-under-par 70 for a winning total of 138 in the British Columbia assistant pro tournament.

Trapp, assistant to his father Paul at Victoria Golf Club, carded three birdies and an eagle as he defeated Doug Reid of Vancouver Club by four strokes. Trapp shot 68 Thursday.

In third place was Ron Willey of Vancouver Marine Drive with 74-72—146. Reid had rounds of 70-72 on the Capilano course, playing short and hit by light rain Friday afternoon.

Trapp's eagle three came on the 445-yard 10th hole. He hit the green with his second shot and holed a 20-foot putt.

Gerry Chatelain placed fourth with 76-71—147. Laurie Lyons of Capilano was co-leader with Trapp Friday at 70 with an eagle three on the 453-yard first hole but placed fifth with a total of 149.

U.S. Retains World Honors

MELBOURNE (AP) — The United States today retained the women's world amateur golf championship, finishing the 72-hole event with a total of 616, five shots ahead of Australia. France, with 222, was third.

Sweden was fourth with 638 and Canada fifth with 643.

Best individual score was posted by France's Catherina Lacoste, whose four-round aggregate of 307 was one stroke better than Marea Hickey of Australia.

The U.S. team successfully defended the Espirito Santo Trophy it won two years ago in Mexico.

Each team of the 14 competing countries had three members and the two aggregates counted toward the championship.

GIRL WITHDRAWS

Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., and Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., each shot an 81 today. Gayle Hitchens Borthwick of Ancaster, Ont., who had shot an 80 Friday, withdrew after the 14th hole because of illness in the final round.

Shelley Hamlin of the U.S. finished in third place in the individual placings with a 309 total. Jane Bastanchury of the U.S. was fourth with 312.

Miss Palmer had a total of 321 for the best Canadian aggregate. She shot a 78 in the opening round and 81s in each of the three following rounds.

Mrs. Moore finished at 85-83-79-81—328. Mrs. Borthwick was 80-85-80 in the three rounds she played.

TO MINNESOTA

Tigers Chase Lions

By The Associated Press

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, two baseball teams, have chased Detroit Lions out of town, but it will be up to another National Football League team, Minnesota Vikings, to stop the Lions.

And that's something Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers couldn't do.

The Lions-Vikings game originally was scheduled to be played in Detroit Sunday, but because of the World Series it will be played at Minnesota.

So, the home-field advantage switches to the Vikings, but they will need more than that to stop a Detroit team which, after being smashed by Dallas in the season opener, trounced Chicago 42-0 and upset Green Bay 23-17.

FIRST-PLACE TIE

The two victories moved Detroit in a first-place tie in the Central Division with Minnesota, which lost to Chicago after beating Atlanta Falcons and Green Bay.

In other NFL action, Pittsburgh, 0-3, is at Cleveland tonight, while on Sunday Green Bay, 1-2, is at Atlanta, 0-3; Chicago, 1-2, is at Baltimore, 3-0; San Francisco, 2-1, is at Los Angeles, 3-0; Dallas, 3-0, is at St. Louis, 1-2; New Orleans, 1-2, is at New York 3-0, and Philadelphia, 0-3, is at Washington, 1-2.

LUCCI RETURNS

Detroit's defence, which intercepted eight Chicago passes and then stopped Green Bay's machine-like attack, will be made even stronger with the expected return of linebacker Mike Lucci. Bill Munson will again quarterback the Lions. Gary Cuozzo, who relieved Joe Kapp, a former quarterback with British Columbia Lions, and hit on all of four of his passes against Chicago, probably will see more action at quarterback for Minnesota.

JETS PLAY TONIGHT

In the American League, Curley Johnson, kicking specialist for the New York Jets, will learn how the other half lives tonight.

Because of an injury to Pete Lammons, Johnson will be starting at tight end in addition to handling his regular kicking chores when the Jets meet San Diego Chargers in one of two AFL games scheduled tonight. In the other, Kansas City Chiefs play the Bills at Buffalo.

Sunday's schedule has Cincinnati at Denver, Boston at Oakland and Miami at Houston.

Richmond Rider Barred for Life

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Racing Commission has suspended jockey Bill Skuse for life, it was reported Friday.

The commission acted on the recommendation of the Exhibition Park board of stewards, which had found Skuse guilty of seven violations of racing rules following an investigation earlier this month into alleged race fixing.

Skuse, 29, of suburban Richmond, was not present at the hour-long hearing.

J. A. Carr, lawyer for Skuse, had received instructions to plead guilty to the violations.

Commission chairman Glen McDonald said Skuse has the right to apply for reinstatement at any time.

The commission is to hear next week a similar appeal by jockey Dennis Terry against a five - year suspension recommended by the stewards.

Stars Trip Vikings In Opening Battle

All-stars packed a little too much scoring punch for University of Victoria Vikings at the Sports Centre Friday night and grabbed a 7-5 decision in the exhibition battle that opened another Vancouver Island Hockey League season.

In the annual tussle between the previous season's league champions and an all-star club selected from other clubs in the circuit, Vikings stepped into a 3-2 lead in the opening period before 1,242 fans.

All-stars stepped up the tempo of their attack to move ahead 5-4 in the second session and were holding a slim, 6-5 edge in the final minute.

GAMBLE FAILS

Viking coach Joe Iannarelli went gambling, lifting goalie Wayne Hodgson for an extra attacker. Joe saw the gamble fail and hopes of a tie go out the window when Len Desjardins hit the open Viking net with 23 seconds remaining.

Dave Stones and Keith Lawrence each counted twice for all-stars, who also got singles from Desjardins and Wayne Anderson.

Defenceman Stan Ruzicka, with two tallies, Paul Bion, Glyn Harper and Bill Westover scored for the university crew.

Juveniles Cutting Into Second Half

With playoff spots hanging in the balance, competition in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League is likely to become more intense as teams enter the second half of the schedule on Sunday.

First-place Chew Excavating Hornets take on cellar-dwelling Rams at Nanaimo while Oak Bay Farmer Construction greets Cowichan Timbermen in Carnarvon Park.

Oak Bay coach Jack Bryan is discounting a 53-0 defeat Timbermen suffered at the hands of Hornets in the last game. Bryan believes the defending champions are better than the score indicates.

Plagued by fumbles, Bryan has concentrated on teaching his players to hang onto the ball during this week's practice. Farmers have enjoyed a statistical edge in almost every game so far, but fumbles have cost the team vital points.

Both games start at 2 p.m.

Claremont Rolls Along; Tyees Loom as Threat

Who's going to challenge Claremont for the Inter-High School Soccer League championship?

Claremont, rolling along with five straight victories, could learn the answer Monday afternoon when Mount View plays Victoria High.

The high-flying Cs kept their unbeaten streak intact Friday by cruising past Belmont 6-1 while the Vic High Tyees were moving into a second-place deadlock with defending-champion Mount View Hornets with a 2-1 conquest of Esquimalt Dockers.

In Friday's other match, Mount Douglas and Oak Bay battled to a 2-2 draw.

Hornets were idle Friday while the Tyees matched the Mount View record of four wins in five starts and stepped up as a major threat to replace Mount View as league champion.

Just how serious that threat will become may be indicated Monday at 4 p.m. when the Tyees tangle with the Hornets on the Victoria High grounds.

However, Claremont still appears the club to beat and the Cs were never in trouble Friday although winless Belmont stayed in contention until the second half, trailing by only a 2-0 margin at the intermission.

Ross Clague rapped in three goals for Claremont, Glen Robinson added two goals and Ted Clark scored once. Robinson and Clague each counted once on a penalty shot and that was the method Steve Taylor used to get Belmont on the scoreboard.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Although controlling play most of the way, the Tyees were forced to come from behind against the Dockers after George Pakos scored for Esquimalt after five minutes.

Dean Stokes got Vic High even midway in the second half and John Craveiro fired the winner 10 minutes later.

John Hunter and Peter Mason made it a personal duel at Carnarvon Park. Mason gave Oak Bay a 1-1 lead. Hunter scored twice to get Mount Douglas in front and Mason came back to knot the count at 2-2 about 10 minutes from the end.

'Bellies Advance Against Olympics

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)— A three-goal output from young Ken Winzoski Friday night gave New Westminster Salmonbellies a 7-3 victory over Portland Adanacs and a berth in the National Lacrosse Association final.

Winzoski, one of a number of juniors brought in by New Westminster in a rebuilding program last year, had a standout night in leading Salmonbellies to the win.

New Westminster, which finished in last place last year, took the best-of-seven western final 4-2.

Salmonbellies open the NLA final against Detroit Olympics here tonight. Remaining games will be Oct. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 14, all games except the last will be played in New Westminster. The seventh game will be in Vancouver.

Ian Ball, Wayne Goss, Paul Parnell and Mickey Lynch completed New Westminster scoring. Fred Usselman, Bill Bradley and John Allen replied for Portland as Westminster outshot the Adanacs 58-35.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, OCT. 5, 1968—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

Blanshard Elementary, set in the Rose-Blanshard reclamation area, may well be closer to the school of the future than any in Greater Victoria. But North Ward, a hang-over from the past, offered a kind of security to its young inmates. A child's world is small, and even though they bring promise of better housing, it is an unsetling thing to watch the bulldozers systematically demolishing that world.

I asked a grade four girl if she liked her new school. "Not as much as North Ward," she told me. An older boy, answered the same question, with a vigorous "Yes!" He had completed the transition.

However they feel about the change, it is plain that Principal John B. Robertson's charges, kindergarten through grade 7, have come to a good place.

Its 10 classrooms are standard for a modern school—large, bright and airy, with flat-topped desks that make for flexible seating plans.

There's the well-appointed gymnasium which North Ward never had. It doubles as an auditorium. One remedial room and one "special" room guarantee skilled help for the child who needs it in extra measure.

Blanshard's library, large and uncluttered, was full of sunshine when we looked in on librarian Mrs. Grace Hamlyn. She was busy at one of the shelves, non higher than a child's reach, that line the room, and her fingers lingered on the bright, new book-jackets.

Such books, she told me, coax children to read: Blanshard's reading average in the school's first month works out to well over two books per student.

I had already noted a stuffed and scrooty bald eagle in the principal's office. Other birds — a pelican and a loon among them—graced the library. These venerable fowl were bestowed on North Ward from its feathered overflow by the Provincial Museum at the turn of the century. They are souvenirs fetched over from the old dump.

We come now to the core of the school, the open area where the shape of the future emerges more clearly than anywhere else in this fine and well-staffed plant.

The open area is a room so large that four or more classes (old-vocabulary term for a new idea) can occupy it without the slightest crowding.

At Blanshard, colts of grades four and five crop in this communal pasture. Those are the pivotel years between little kid and grade-sixer hurrying toward adolescence.

In the open area, the sharp outlines of the grades tend to blur. Grade four students of superior ability are not left to the boredom of work that offers them no challenge. You'll find these learning with the grade fives, or forging ahead at their own pace.

When we stopped in, students of four "Bases" were busy with arithmetic. Here's one boy, plugging along somewhat behind the calss average, but not badgered because his level of accomplishment is lower.

And over here is a young whizz who eats mathematics down like candy. He's already 35 textbook pages ahead of his peers, and working so intently that a visitor draws only the barest glance.

Peter Haylett of Strawberry Vale is co-ordinator of bases. He drifts from one to another, ready with help where needed. He, his principal and the other teachers I met strike me as very keen. The challenge at Blanshard is not all to the students.

Mr. Robertson has been sitting cross legged on the floor, half a dozen kids around him. They are working with what look like flash-cards. He gets up now, and we stroll along a bright corridor toward the foyer with its paper flowers and its 'welcome' sign.

"You know," I said, thinking aloud, "when they're grown, I expect this bunch will make some changes of their own in their community.

"Yes," said John Robertson, principal of the new breed, "Yes, I believe they will."

HEAD START for University of Victoria Sailing Club membership drive was assured when frosh queen Maureen Wills, 18, gave the campaign a push. The first-year physical ed student isn't dressed for sailing but then her sailboat is grounded among campus displays by other clubs which also are seeking members. But with less attractive bait.

Student Rating of Profs 'Not Objective Project'

BOB HIGINBOTHAM
. . . why the fuss?

By BOB MITCHELL
Uvic Correspondent

Two Uvic professors have washed their hands of any responsibility for the student "anti-calendar."

Psychologists Dr. Pam Duncan and Dr. Edward Tryk said the recently-published student evaluation of faculty members was based on non-objective reporting.

In a letter to Uvic's student newspaper, The Martlet, the psychologists said they helped prepare an objective questionnaire and suggested guidelines for interpreting answers.

While the questionnaire submitted to sudents followed the psychologists' recommendations, "the manner in which evaluations were reported in the guidebook did not," the letter states.

The psychologists say inclusion of statements by individual students and the failure to report the number of students who answered each question were instances of non-objective reporting.

"What we're really objecting to here is that the Guidebook editors, with their printed acknowledgement, made it look like we were endorsing the final product when in fact we certainly were not."

Guidebook Editor Bob Higinbotham, who said he didn't know what the fuss was about, said the editors of the book did not feel obligated to go along with all the psychologists recommendations.

"We got the best evaluations from the subjective comments," he added.

PROTESTERS FOLD TENTS AND SILENTLY STEAL AWAY

By ALAN WHITE

Students called a halt to their tent-in on the University of Victoria campus late Friday after deciding they hadn't made their point.

Few of their fellows knew what it was all about and even fewer seemed to care.

About 25 students moved into tents Sunday night to publicize what they termed a lack of low-cost housing. The original eight tents were joined by five more by Thursday.

Only two signs — one reading Housing not Bylaws, the other taking Oak Bay to task for permitting only two boarders per home — indicated what the tents stood for.

One of the protesters complained that most students passed the site in front of the Student Union Building and merely said, "Tents, that's interesting."

Very few of the nearly 5,000 students on campus stopped to ask what was happening, he said.

OFF TO TALKS

Most of those participating in the tent-in decided to strike canvas and head for Vancouver for a weekend conference of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDU) at the city hall there.

This morning, the only tent still standing was the supply tent. One student arrived at about 9:30 to clear out stoves and food and take the tent down. The campus was nearly deserted at the time.

The SDU meeting in Vancouver was called by branches at Simon Fraser University and the University of British Columbia.

The organization was formed last April at Simon Fraser during a period of student upset to foster student power aims in the universities.

It has since spread to other western Canadian campuses. The branch at Uvic is apparently unorganized this year.

$4-$5 Cost Per Home If Hospital Vote 'Yes'

Information Drive To Start Next Week

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The $9.3 million hospital construction vote scheduled for Oct. 26 will cost the average home-owner $4 to $5 a year if approved.

Executive secretary to the Regional Hospital District Board, William Long, said today that details of the massive construction program had proved more difficult to work out than at first thought.

"But by next week a full information campaign should be under way to explain just what the people are voting for," he said.

In the meantime the Times has learned that the $9.3 million being voted on will be pushed closer to $11 million when federal grants are received from Ottawa.

Mr. Long stressed the federal grants do not change the local voting picture or the amount to be raised. Of the $9.3 million in the bylaw the provincial government pays 60 per cent, the district 40 per cent.

"Basically the people throughout the entire district are being asked to approve the expenditure of one mill— or $400,000 — annually for the construction of extended care beds," Mr. Long said.

"It is impossible, of course, to give a precise figure, but it would be safe to say that the annual cost to the average home owner will run between $4 and $5 a year."

The funds raised by a "yes" vote and federal grants will be spent on new construction, renovation of existing hospitals, new equipment, planning for an acute care hospital to be built some time in the future, and land acquisition.

New Construction $8 Million

Final division of the funds has yet to be decided but the approximate division will be as follows:

- New construction for extended care beds $8 million.
- Renovations and new construction for existing hospitals slightly more than $1 million.
- Planning for a new acute care hospital, $250,000.
- Land Acquisition, $150,000.
- New equipment for existing hospitals, $1.4 million.

With various government grants and hospital contributions the total bill to be paid if the referendum is approved will be $10,691,000. But federal government grants of $1,444,000 reduce that figure to $9,247,000 to which is added $53,000 for contingencies to produce the $9.3 million to be voted on by the people.

When it comes to a detailed breakdown on what will be spent where regional district officials admit that as yet they do not know.

"What we are asking on Oct. 26 is that the people give us permission to spend $9.3 million to update and upgrade existing hospitals and build new extended care beds to relieve a serious bed shortage," says North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming.

"No plans have yet been drawn, no details on how many beds should go where or how much existing hospitals should get, have yet been finalized," Mayor Cumming added.

"We were faced with a choice of going to the people this year or delaying the entire program for another 12 months — and such a delay would be disastrous.

"What we are asking on Oct. 26 is that the people give us permission to launch a construction program within the framework of the $9.3 million. And I can assure them that they will be well informed on the subsequent steps to be taken."

Mayor Cumming admitted that the lack of detailed planning was causing some concern on the north end of the Saanich Peninsula.

"The people out here are quite worried and more than a little fearful that if they go for this bylaw they will be left high and dry when it comes to hospital needs," he said. "It is a fear we must try and overcome before Oct. 26."

200-Bed Extended Care Hospital

At the last meeting of the regional hospital district board plans for construction were advanced by the board's sub-committee on priorities.

The first followed closely the recommendations of the Agnew Peckham report on hospitals and health services. The second was advanced by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and resulted in the same number of extended care beds to be built but also in different distribution.

Recommendation number one suggested:

- A new 200-bed extended care hospital to replace Mount St. Mary.
- A new 200-bed extended care bed hospital on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.
- A new building to house 150 extended care beds at the Gorge Road Hospital.
- And 20 extended care beds for the Lady Minto Hospital, Ganges.

When presented to Mr. Loffmark the minister countered with the suggestion that the plan neglected development of Rest Haven Hospital near Sidney.

The priorities committee suggested that the number of beds planned for Mount St. Mary and St. Mary's Priory be reduced by 50 beds on each project and that a 100 bed extended care unit plus a 50-bed acute care unit be built in the School District 63 area, presumably at Rest Haven.

The suggestion brought the rebuke from regional board chairman Hugh Curtis that he "was sorry the minister had brought forward this suggestion on the eve of the referendum."

The sub-committee on priorities took a more positive view by endorsing the minister's suggestion.

"The sub-committee on priorities, when considering this new development, recognized that it was the request from the minister that we co-operate in establishing a pilot plant in this neighborhood which he stated would have close and sympathetic surveillance from his department.

"Under these circumstances the committee on priorities might be justified in making a recommendation at this time to the effect that we approve of this experiment."

But the regional board didn't feel that way. Led by Mayor Hugh Stephen it voted merely to receive the report and the various recommendations but to take no positive action on either.

WEATHER? EVEN DUCKS HEAD SOUTH

Victorians who enjoyed the recent balmy weather will exchange sunglasses for oilskins next week.

The benevolent ridge of high pressure that was shielding the area has moved away and weather conditions over the next week will be "unsettled," the weatherman said today.

Showers are expected Sunday and Monday with a general clearing Tuesday, but Wednesday will bring more rain.

Vaccine Here For Newest Flu

Limited supplies of a new vaccine against Hong Kong flu are available in Canada on a priority basis.

This was disclosed in Victoria Friday by Dr. T. J. Bailey, assistant medical health officer.

He advised local residents who feel themselves in less than robust health to contact their own doctors for individual protection.

"Young healthy fit adults should be fairly backwards about coming forward," he said.

Dr. Bailey was commenting on reports from the United States that American health experts and drug companies are rushing plans and production of a new vaccine against Hong Kong flu, a variant of the usual kind.

The new flu is believed to be different enough that vaccines effective against the usual A2 type of flu virus would be almost worthless against the newcomer.

A heavy bout of the new flu is expected to strike North America this winter. It was identified in Hong Kong and Macao in July where it struck 500,000 people.

Although 26 deaths were reported from Hong Kong, it is not regarded as a "killer," although it has been widespread in numbers of persons struck by it.

Dr. Bailey said there have been "lots of reports" of people with flu in Victoria. The type of flu they have has not yet been classified to see if it is the Hong Kong kind. This process takes time and there must be enough "flus" to make a summary.

The rate of flu striking people is so erratic that it was difficult to say at this time whether it is out of line.

He also said that because Hong Kong flu is a new strain, a variation on a known kind of flu virus, existing vaccines will have some general effect against the newcomer but no specific effect.

"The laboratory sources of these vaccines are working to prepare a new component which will be specific against the new flu," he said.

"It is being done in Canada and limited supplies are now available—in very small quantities."

Asked how severe the Hong Kong flu is, Dr. Bailey said "at the moment it seems to be mild. But we have no guarantee it will remain mild."

Innocent Ones Urged to Fight

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson urged motorists who receive traffic violation notices to fight "if you think you are not guilty."

Early public reaction to the new system, in which there are no fines for minor violations, has been "very encouraging," he said Friday, but reminded drivers that an accumulation of demerit points can lead to licence suspension.

A driver who thinks demerits for an alleged offence are unjustified "should seriously consider entering a dispute."

If a dispute is not lodged with the court in seven days after notice of offence is received, the report is sent to the B.C. motor vehicles branch and forms part of a driver's record.

Ask The Times

Q. How long does an American citizen have to be resident in Canada to marry a Canadian citizen, where do you go for a licence and can a female obtain a licence?—B.G.

A. According to the Vital Statistics Department, there is no required "period of residence" as such. American citizens wishing to marry Canadians may apply at any time. Once application has been made, the waiting period is about two weeks if banns are published or three clear days in the case of a civil ceremony. Licence application may be made in the Division of Vital Statistics, west wing, main building, Legislative Buildings, by a man or woman. The Department of Immigration points out that in order to reside in Canada, application for "landed immigrant" status must be made, preferably at the port of entry into the country.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

UVIC POLITICAL FORUM

Yippie Leader Invited

Hippies, yippies, new-leftists and possibly a member of Seattle's Black Panthers will address Uvic's Political Science Forum in the next few months.

Not least among them is Mark Rudd, leader of the student revolt at Columbia University during April and May.

He is scheduled to speak later this month, and will be followed shortly by Jerry Rubins, national leader of the Yippie Party, which leaped to international renown during the Democratic Party's August convention in Chicago.

Originally billed to speak early in October was Realist magazine editor Paul Krassner. Forum spokesman Keith Thompson said Krassner's engagement has been postponed to November due to his detention in the United States by the House Committee on Unamerican Activities.

The forum will start the new term off with a bang in January when Herbert Marcusse, leader of the New Left in California, arrives on campus.

Justice Minister John Turner has promised to speak if he is on the west coast during the new year.

The Forum also hopes to bring in representatives of the Seattle Black Panthers, but that engagement will depend on whether the Panthers can persuade border officials to let them into Canada, Mr. Thompson said.

The understatment of fur-under-cloth . . .

Piece de resistence at Wilson's this week is a magnificent brown-beige-white heather tweed coat completely lined and collared with curly white kalgin lamb . . . a soft, silky fur that's sybaritic to the touch . . . luxury personified to the eye! . . . For the woman who doesn't look well in a fur coat . . . yet enjoys the warmth and comfort of fur when temperatures slide downwards . . . this coat has got to be the answer . . . It's a size 12 . . . and the price tag of $120 is not exorbitant, all things considered . . . Another new Wilson coat that caught our fancy is a smartly styled model in camel-colored wool woven in a curly effect which looks a bit like lamb . . . though certainly it isn't meant to imitate anything from the animal kingdom . . . Big patch pockets with vertical openings, and a deep inverted back pleat trimmed with a row of buttons . . . sizes 10 and 12, and priced at $120 . . . At long last Wilson's have received a new shipment of printed Viyella shirts . . . on whose merits we need hardly elaborate . . . Tailored by Lady Hathaway, they have long sleeves and convertible necklines . . . and may be worn either as overblouses or tuck-ins . . . Lovely designs and color blends . . . sized from 10 to 18, and tagged at $16.50 . . . comforting on chilly days, and practically everlasting . . . W & J. Drama goes to your head . . .

More stunning new hats have arrived at Miss Frith's . . . just emerging from their tissue, in fact, when we were in earlier this week . . . We said a loud hurrah for the feathered wig hats . . . sophisticated successors to spring's flower wigs . . . Gleaming feathers set on elastic chenille bases . . . which not only look absolutely smashing, but have the added virtue of covering your hair completely so if your hairdo's less than perfect, no matter! . . . One creation is made of multi-colored feathers . . . a real show-stopper . . . Another, for late day and evening wear, is a cap of black sequins with osprey feathers . . . dramatic as all get-out . . . Iridescent dark green coque feathers smoosh around the crown and over to the side of another of these originals . . . and if you have a smooth, pretty forehead the coque feather wig with black velvet bow at the top, feathers swirling straight back to the nape . . . will frame your face most flatteringly . . . Not a wig, but a dream of a hat for a tall woman is the wide-brimmed black feathered chapeau . . . fine net flattening the crown feathers . . . split feathers circling the brim in a shaggy effect . . . These are all dressy hats to add definite eclat to this season's social scene . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

A pretty new undercover story . . .

We're all for pretty underpinnings . . . firmly believe that bras and girdles should not only do the job they're intended for, i.e. moulding and controlling a gal's figure in places where it will do the most good . . . but also be a delight to the eye . . . even though nobody sees them but us! . . . Having said which, we hasten to tell you about the sweetly pretty new Jantzen sets of undercover garments which have just arrived at Saba's . . . There's a wee bikini brief, a long-leg panty girdle gussied up with ecru lace . . . a beautifully fitting little bra with fibrefill in the cups . . . and a short half-slip edged with same ecru lace . . . all these garments made of soft-to-the-touch nylon and/or lastex, printed all over in a misty design of butterflies in soft pastel shades . . . they are the daintiest underpinnings you ever saw! . . . Girdle has centre front seam for firmer tummy control . . . no prominent seams to show up under your knits . . . and is priced at $9 . . . Bra comes in sizes 32 to 36, A, B and C cups . . . $6.50 . . . the little bikini . . . just right to wear under the girdle, or by itself with slacks . . . is $2.50, while half-slip is tagged at $5 . . . The whole set is just adorable . . . but pieces are sold separately in case you don't want the whole works . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., 384-0081.

Gals who work in the downtown area are making it a growing practice to drop in to Madam and Eve almost daily during their lunch hour . . . if for no other reason than to keep an eye on M & E's "perennial" sale rack . . . to which Pam keeps adding new things all the time ! . . . You'll usually find a little bit of everything . . . coats . . . suits . . . dresses . . . marked down to a song . . . to make your clothes budget stretch twice as far ! . . . On our last visit we saw a terrific wool coat with fencer front and small ocelot collar . . . a size 12, and reduced from $140 to $75 . . . A couple of English coats . . . blue, size 13 and Kelly green, size 9 . . . regularly $85 and marked down to a mere $40 . . . A gay suit for a color-loving gal who wears size 13 is tweed in an assorted candy mix of hues . . . the skirt box pleated all around . . . and just $59.95, instead of its original $95 . . . Need a new party dress for fall? . . . $25 will buy you either one of a couple of cute brocades shining with lurex threads . . . The size 15 is green and gold, while the 17 has a chinese-y pattern . . . Exquisite jewel boxes new at Reynolds

Any woman who delights in lovely things for her own personal use will appreciate the exquisite little filigreed bronze jewel boxes we spotted at Sydney Reynolds this week . . . There are various sizes and shapes . . . some just big enough to hold your precious rings when you're not wearing them . . . larger ones to be a fitting home for other jewelery . . . Boxes, as we said, are bronze, lidded with either hand painted miniatures on ivory of famous portraits like Madame Pompadour, Napoleon's lady friends, and other femme fatales of by-gone days . . . or with colored crystal "jewels" . . . They aren't cheap by any means . . . in either price or appearance . . . They're extremely "good", and quite lovely ! . . . We also noticed a number of new imported lamps in the Continental Room . . . very ornate gold candelabras . . . and a most unusual lamp consisting of high footed urn surrounded with artificial greenery and topped with lantern lamp . . . Real conversation piece ! . . . Reynolds have received a new shipment of those delightful Vienna table fountains which we understand many people have been waiting for . . . so if you'd like one, better get it soon . . . these have a habit of disappearing quite rapidly! . . . Sydney Reynolds Ltd., 801 Government St., 383-3831.

Pin-money holidays to Mexico or Hawaii . . .

All-inclusive trips and tours are offering more and more for less and less . . . which suggests to us this is an excellent way to give yourself a holiday from the high cost of living ! . . . Here's another travel "first" Paulin's told us about . . . On January 12, 1969, the first of six jet departures direct from Vancouver to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico . . . with 14 nights at either the Rosita or Rio Hotels . . . all meals . . . transfers, and return jet fare . . . for a toal cost of $299 ! Almost unbelievable, isn't it? . . . Puerto Vallarta, as you probably know, is the erstwhile Mexican fishing village near Guadalajara, which has become a popular . . . and so far unspoiled . . . resort . . . with superb climate, very picturesque surroundings and one of the most magnificent beaches in all of Old Mejico! . . . DEAR ABBY . . .

She's Losing Pounds, But You're Losing $

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago I offered to give my daughter-in-law $5 for every pound she lost as she had a beautiful face, but was she stout? Don't ask!

Well, apparently my offer was no incentive, because instead of losing weight, she gained more!

All of a sudden she decided to go to a doctor and get on a weight-losing program. So far she has lost 19 pounds, and she is still losing. She says she is going to lose at least another 30 pounds, and at the rate she's going, she will.

My problem is that I didn't put a time limit on my offer, and now she expects me to pay her the $5 a pound I offered her a year ago.

I would like to give her some kind of reward for losing all that weight, but I don't think she's entitled to $5 a pound now. What is your opinion?

DADDY DAVID.

DEAR DADDY: Since you put no time limit on your offer, you're stuck for the $5 for every pound of flesh. Perhaps your offer inspired her to go on a diet, and it took her a year to gather the determination.

DEAR ABBY: Since my brother's death several years ago his widow has been doing something which bothers the rest of our family. She plans parties and get-togethers in observance of their wedding anniversary.

While my brother was alive her anniversary never was the day for any special celebrations—not even their 20th, for instance.

Now that the "25th" is approaching (her husband has been dead for six years), we're fearful that she might do something really "big." Tell me, Abby, is it proper for a widow to do this?

PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: No. But perhaps that's her way of insuring herself against loneliness on that memorable day.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a president of a multi-million-dollar business who comes to work with holes in his socks? This didn't happen just once, it is a regular thing with him.

He wears custom-made suits, and drives a Cadillac car, but he goes around with great big holes in the heels of his socks.

WORKS FOR HIM.

DEAR WORKS: I'd say he must be married to a woman who doesn't give a darn.

DEAR ABBY: It is a most disturbing commentary on our times that the most popular toy for little girls today is a vulgarly sexy doll, complete with lace panties, brassieres, hot rods, and an extravagant wardrobe to add to at considerable expense. This doll emphasizes sexual attractiveness, clothes, and nothing else, and little girls are bound to identify with it.

We have all kinds of wonderful educational toys for boys, but what about the toys for girls?

How much healthier to buy little girls sweet baby dolls to be cuddled and "mothered." This is a wholesome educational kind of play for girls.

Please print this, Abby, and wake up some well-meaning mothers who are influencing their daughters at an early age with the wrong kind of play.

Museum Executive To Give Talk To Canadian Club

Dr. John Bristol Foster, assistant director of the Provincial Museum, will speak on "People and Wild Life in East Africa" when the Women's Canadian Club holds a luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel on Friday at 12:15 p.m.

Well-known as a biologist, author, teacher and photographer, Dr. Foster lectured for four years as a zoology lecturer at the University College in Nairobi, under Canada's external aid plan.

During a 35,000 mile tour of the world, Dr. Foster travelled by Land Rover through Africa, India and Australia.

Other trips have seen him cycling through Europe, studying the flora and fauna of the Queen Charlotte Islands for his doctorate thesis, and filming life along the Nile, from Port Said to the headwaters at the Mountains of the Moon.

From July 1957 to November 1958, Dr. Foster travelled around the world, taking films for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the National Audubon Society, and Life Magazine. He also collected mammals for museums. He later lectured in 60 North American cities for the Audubon Society, and also demonstrated in zoology at various universities.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Hot Plate Cook Extends Her Menu

By PENNY SAVER

When I met my mother's friend, Mrs. Smith, the other day, she was positively glowing. Mrs. Smith, I should explain, is a wonderful and very independent pensioner. She lives by herself in an inexpensive housekeeping room and has done so as long as I have known her. She has no financial resources other than her pension cheque, but by dint of scraping and skimping she has managed to build up a small bank account that will take her through any lean months or latenesses of mail delivery. She is such a charming woman that no one minds alleviating her financial difficulties by inviting her to dinner, but she won't always accept.

She was glowing when I saw her because she has just recently discovered a way to extend the limitations of her hotplate and wanted to tell me about it. Over the years she has learned to make some fairly exciting dishes on two elements, but she had her problems. The item that has proved so useful is a heat diffuser. It is very simple and costs only $1.98. Several layers of perforated metal trickle the heat to the pan much as the bottom of a double-boiler does, eliminating the "hot-spots" that so often make food stick and scorch. It makes it easier to keep coffee pots and carafes at an even heat and may be the answer to those delicate heat-resistant glass pots that demand a solid element. (I had one given me as a wedding gift and have never been able to use it.) But for Mrs. Smith this gadget has an even bigger advantage. "I can even bake a potato now, Penny. I just put the potato on this thing, invert a pot over it and leave it. The pot holds the heat just like an oven."

Cabinet Helps to Clean Up Clutter

The most cluttered rooms in our house are the bathrooms. The girls and I are collectors of cosmetic bottles to which the boys and my husband add their own minimal grooming aids. It's impossible to keep everything orderly all of the time so I decided to invest in a plastic vanity case to hide it instead. This case is 19" inches long, 7¾ inches deep and 20¼ inches high. It fits nicely on the toilet tank and is finished in white with gold trim—very modern. There are four steady little legs that barely show and the top is depressed slightly so you can stack two of these cabinets or top one with a potted plant—or more bottles. At first glance it is just an attractive box. Look closer, and you will see there are two panels. Each swings around at a touch to reveal a rounded "lazy Susan" shelf that keeps bottles and other clutter in easy reach. Another touch and they swing out of sight again. This cabinet is $9.95.

I felt a bit like a Hallowe'en witch as I considered buying my very own cauldron. Of course, it wasn't the sort of cauldron for brewing big spells, but I figured that with an appropriate insert it might do for a small charmer of a philodendron. This cauldron is made of copper with a wrought-iron handle and tiny legs to hold it above the fire. Although intended for an ornament it looks quite capable of being used for cooking and I am considering its merits as an incense burner. These miniature cauldrons come in two sizes: one for $3.95 and another, much smaller, for $2.98.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where these items may be found.

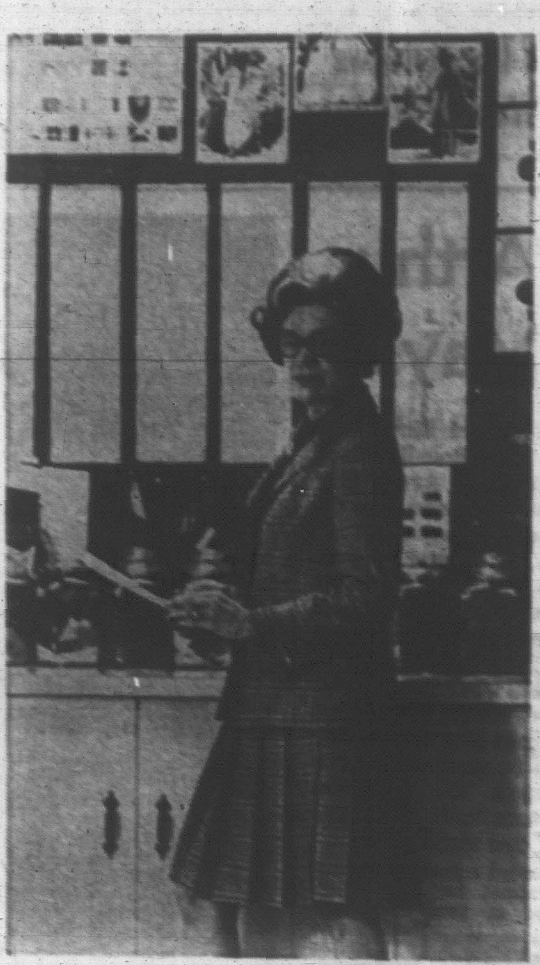
Canadian Fashions On Tour



Mrs. Joy McGillawee, president of the Wool Bureau of Canada Limited, leaves Monday to promote Canadian fashions and styling 'down under'.

A seven-week tour to promote Canadian fashion and styling in Australia, New Zealand and the Far East starts Monday for Mrs. Joy McGillawee, president of the Wool Bureau of Canada Limited.

Mrs. McGillawee has been invited to address groups of clothing manufacturers, in seven cities, on the quality and styling of Canadian women's apparel. To illustrate her talks, she has selected more than 70 garments from some 40 Canadian manufacturers' latest collections of women's wear.

"In climate, temperament, clothing tastes and clothing requirements," Mrs. McGillawee pointed out, "we in Canada have a close affinity to Australians and New Zealanders. I have been asked to make this trip because the garment industry, in these countries, recognizes these similarities and feels it can learn from us.

"Personally," she added, "I believe this is just the first of many such compliments for Canada. When this year's Paris collections were shown, we saw that our Canadian designers could more than 'hold their own' with the best Europe had to offer. Canada, I feel, is on heir way to becoming a world fashion leader."

REPORT ON TEXTILES

During her visit, Mrs. McGillawee will also report to various associations and organizations on the economic status and the economic importance of the clothing and textile industries in Canada.

Her tour will take her to Sydney, Melbourne, Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch, Tokyo and Hong Kong.

For her personal wardrobe for her trip, Mrs. McGillawee has selected three basic colors: Brown, navy and grey, "for easy co-ordination." For evening wear, she has chosen white. Her entire wardrobe is Canadian-made.

Mrs. McGillawee is shown in a two-piece wool suit, with pleated skirt, for travel. The tailored suit is grey with a chestnut brown Glen check.

Mrs. McGillawee was named president of the Wool Bureau of Canada in 1954. She is the only woman to hold this office in any of the 23 branches of the International Wool Secretariat around the globe.

Male of the Species Challenges Peacock

By The Canadian Press

The fall fashion scene for men this year features a back-to-nature look: The male will regain his position as the more-colorful of the species.

Don't expect every local tailor to stock purple and magenta brocade Nehru jackets — they're still the domain of the mods — but a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that men may expect a number of changes in color, style and accessories.

The greys and blues common to most offices across the country are passing, giving way to shades of whisky, olive, jade, terra cotta and bronze.

Although the Bonnie-and-Clyde look has not reached the prominence some retailers predicted, one Toronto men's shop said muted pin-stripes and checks, against a lighter-colored fabric, will gain ground this year.

If the new suiting colors are not enough, men may add complementary brightly-colored shirts. Colored, patterned and checked shirts are already common in Halifax shops.

Bob Collacot, assistant manager of the men's clothing department at a Regina department store, said the white shirt "is dead."

"It's raspberry, several shades of blues and golds — the whole thing is color."

TIES ARE WIDER

The fashion-conscious male can top off his ensemble with a colorful tie and have more room to do it in — ties are growing to more than three inches in width.

Men who plan to remodel their present wardrobe have quite a job. They'll have to add a touch of padding to the shoulders, tighten up the waist and open a few seams to give more hip room.

Lapels are widening, and Montreal men are wearing their suit collars higher and closer to the throat.

Most centres report side vents are taking over from centre vents, particularly in Vancouver, and are deepening, usually in longer jackets.

Winnipeggers and Haligonians are adding their wrinkle to the fashion scene, wearing both cloth and leather jackets, although cost is keeping sales down.

A spokesman for a large Toronto department store said the whole change is towards a shaped look, giving an air of elegance to a previously-neutral wardrobe.

One of the major advances, he said, is that the new styles are available in ready-to-wear suits. The popularity of the shaped look among young executives has altered the middle-aged executive's idea of what is correct for the office — and he too is wearing the new look.

Mr. Collacot said Regina men buying the new-look suits are not all young.

"They're 30, 40 and 50 — and they look good in them."

The high-collared Nehru jacket is gaining popularity for after-five casual wear and for dinner engagements.

Accessories too are part of the changing fashion scene.

With crisp autumn evenings, the turtleneck is gaining ground as a replacement for a shirt—keeping the wearer both warm and fashionable.

Sales of knitted turtlenecks are strongest in Edmonton and Halifax, with Montreal males preferring white silk turtles for evening wear.

One accessory change gaining popularity is the wearing of brightly-colored ascots after working hours.

With the colorful, body-hugging styles and colorful accessories, many women may not notice a major change in footwear.

Shoes no longer need to be standard brown or black with a rounded toe. The antiquated look is in, and many centres report laces giving way to brass buckles or chains to add that extra touch to the fall fashion scene.

Hair Nets For Hubbie

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hair net, by any other name, will be worn by well-groomed males, says a Vancouver men's hair stylist.

It's all in the name. Call them toilet requisites or grooming aids and they will sell. Lable them cosmetics and it's no sale.

Al Principe says that if he tells a customer he needs a hair net the customer will laugh. But he may go for a gadget called a hair tamer that has a picture of a man on it. Mr. Principe says many welders and construction workers wear them under construction hats.

A department store salesgirl says Vancouver men are buying "permanent hair control," although they'd spurn home permanents. They use lip pomade — but never lipstick — for chapped lips and dab tinted face talc on their beards.

A top seller is cologne, which she says men frequently substitute now for after-shave lotions because the perfume lingers longer. A six-week tint to cover the grey is also a good seller, she says.

Series of Programs Planned by Guides

The Victoria Girl Guides will hold a three-part program, "Guiding for Greenhorns," to explain modern guiding to the public.

The meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Guide headquarters, 838 Mason Street. Each will be accompanied by films and slides. Coffee will be served.

The first meeting, open house, will take place Thursday. It will feature basic training activities and demonstrations.

On Thursday, Oct. 17, will be "Expo in Blues and Browns" with Rangers, Guides and Brownies presented in group situations. There will be displays of work and prowess by leaders with the participation of local association members.

The third and last meeting, Thursday, Oct. 24, will feature a panel discussion.

World Theme For Meeting

The theme "From Many Lands" was chosen when the Victoria Toastmistress' Club No. 90 recently met.

Mrs. P. A. Petersen won the oscar for her speech on Iceland titled "Long Ships to Jets." Mrs. P. K. Hass was awarded the spur for her talk on Denmark, "The Little Mermaid."

Mrs. E. J. Brady gave a speech on Lebanon, titled "Argent Brady Discovers Lebanon." Induction speeches were given by two new members, Mrs. J. D. Jameson and Miss A. Holm.

Topic-mistress Mrs. S. Litfield asked five members to give impromptu speeches on "selling their castle."

Mrs. J. R. Pipes was moderator for the evening and arranged panel analysts on organization, audience reaction and delivery.

The next meeting will be held in the Empress Hotel's Crystal Ballroom Oct. 15.

Lure of Home Town Draws American Back Like Magnet

By PAT DUFOUR

It's pretty hard to get Victoria out of your system. Ask Edgar Wade. He and his wife, Isabelle, have lived in San Francisco for 41 years. Practically each one of those years has seen them visiting the city. They're here now for another two-month stay at the San Sebastian Motel.

Mr. Wade is a native son and, although he's now an American citizen, he's never been able to completely loosen the ties that draw him home to Victoria. Isabelle Dawson was brought up in Calgary and is proud of the fact she's still a Canadian.

This year's trip may be the one that proves the deciding factor. Events seem to indicate that Edgar Wade may become a more permanent member of the community.

Theirs is no ordinary tourist visit. This year they have a special project which may tip the scales in favor of Victoria residency. Most of their daylight hours are spent refurbishing a house on Meares Street which is located next door to the old Wade home. They still own the old home but have bought the neighboring house "because it is nearer Pioneer Square and has a better view."

Pioneer Square has special associations for Mr. Wade. "I'm not entirely certain but I'm told that my father (the late A. E. Wade) had a hand in the square's beginnings."

The Wades view the city of Edgar Wade's birth with the same eyes as those of parents. "You have to be away for a while to see the growth. Each time we're back it has changed."

Edgar Wade may have a few reservations about some of the changes but his wife is more definite in her opinions. "I think Victoria gets more beautiful every time I see it . . . all those beautiful gardens, mostly without any dividing fences."

It's the waters of San Francisco Bay that present most of that city's attraction for Edgar Wade. He's an ardent yachtsman and past commodore of the Corinthian Yacht Club. One of the things he misses most when he comes to Victoria is the Wades' 28-foot Triton sloop Tarooki (Aborigine for seagull).

Asked for his views on Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's edict that boats will not be permitted to discharge toilet wastes within the three mile limit, Edgar Wade explains how the pollution problem is handled in San Francisco.

"We've had controls for a long time. We're not permitted to discharge wastes in a yacht basin. The ruling is not rigidly enforced, relying more on the honor system. It works."

Will the Wades finally make a clear-cut decision and make their permanent home here? Edgar Wade confides: "It's pretty hard to make a break when it comes down to the wire."

It could be yachting that finally swings the scales in favor of Victoria. Enthusing over the Thermopolae Race they saw being sailed off the Victoria waterfront, Edgar Wade compares the lusty wind to that which sweeps San Francisco Bay. "I thought the conditions were perfect."

He then asks about yacht club fees. They, too, compare favorably. The scales tilt further when he says "Perhaps we'll spend the summers here, and the winters in California."

Hearing that keel-boat racing is an all-round affair with many of Victoria's yachtsmen, Edgar Wade hesitates again.

Indications are that here is one native son who's just about to return for good.

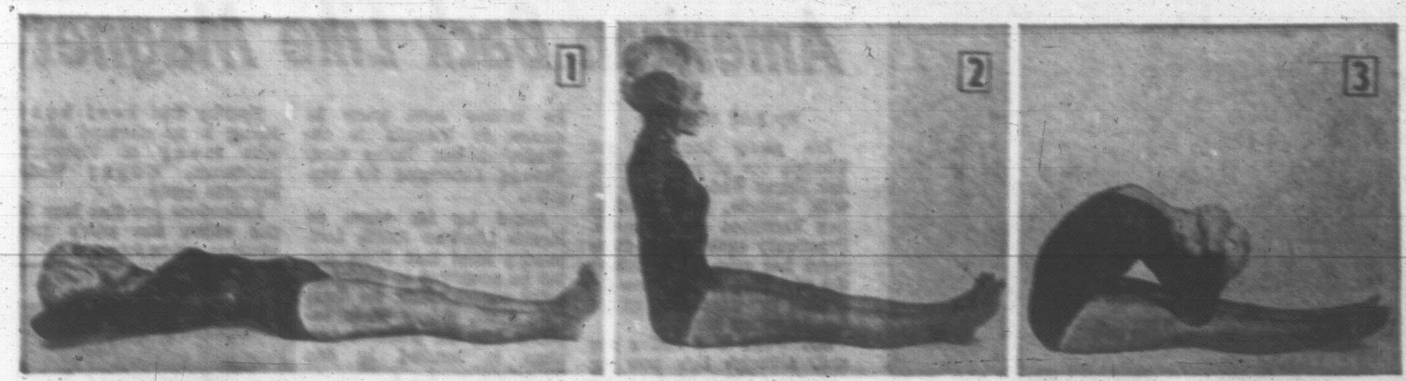
WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN



THIS EXERCISE WILL KEEP STOMACH MUSCLES WELL UNDER CONTROL

A protruding abdomen probably ruins more silhouettes than any other figure defect. This is due in part to careless posture and failure to recondition with exercise after pregnancy. Also, in everyday life we do not use the abdominal muscles very strenuously. The masculine appearance is also often sabotaged by the "Bay Window." Strengthen your abdominal wall and improve your figure with this exercise! Lie on the floor on your back. Bend your elbows and clasp your hands behind your head. Keep your arms in this position throughout the exercise. Raise your trunk and touch your elbows to your knees, or come as close as you can. Slowly lower trunk. Keep your legs straight throughout the exercise. Continue.

COOKING CAN BE FUN — By MARY MOORE

Less Tenderizing Time Could Spell Disaster

Moore

Question: We bought a half carcass of supposed to be two-year-old beef. No matter how careful I am I cannot make that meat good. What I would like to know is how to make the T-bone steaks eatable.—Mrs. J.D.C.

Question: I bought frozen imported lamb loins and following your idea asked our butcher to cut them on his electric saw into chops. He did it willingly. I had about 30. I fried four and they were tough. How can I make them tender?—Maida M.

Answer (to both Mrs. J. D. C. and Maida M.): I have had the same experience. So after your letters arrived I bought frozen T-bone steaks and frozen loin of lamb (sawn into chops) and worked on them both to see if I could tenderize them.

TO TENDERIZE FROZEN STEAKS AND CHOPS

Arrange steaks or chops on platter (not cardboard boat in which they were packaged). Sprinkle top surface with meat tenderizer to just coat them and let stand two hours. Turn over and repeat.

Repeat this procedure—that is, sprinkle both sides twice, letting them stand two hours between sprinklings, starting 8½ hours before mealtime. Mine were tender, moist and good—but I am quite sure that shorter tenderizing time will not do the trick.

Other readers who have frozen meat on hand that is tough should have it sliced about one inch thick and tenderize as above, for the meat tenderizer will not penetrate deep into roast-size cuts.

Question: I buy one package of wieners every week because my kids like them and they are cheap. They are having a party and I refuse to serve them as hot dogs. Could you give me some idea to make them different for this party?—Mabelle N.

Answer: Try—

DIPPY WIENERS

Half pound process cheese, cut up, ¼ cup apple juice (or white wine for adults), 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, about 20 wieners.

In top of double boiler combine cheese, juice, mustard and Worcestershire sauce and stir over boiling water until smoothly blended and hot.

Cut wieners into ¾" pieces, add, and heat through.

Underarm Darts Can Be Changed to Fit

Dear Mrs. Farmer:

Will you please tell me how you can determine by a pattern whether the underarm dart needs lowering or raising? I know this should be done before cutting. — Mrs. I. F.

Dear Mrs. I. F.:

I consider this one of the most important measurements to take before cutting, because if the end of the dart doesn't point directly to the fullest part of the bust, you will have an improperly fitted bodice. Measure yourself, beginning at the centre of your shoulder (between the neck and the end of your shoulder) to the tip of your bust. Now measure your pattern in the same place and compare the two measurements. If the dart is too low, simply relocate the point of the dart and use the original markings for the dart at the underarm; your darts will have more of an angle.

If the darts need to be lowered, you should lower the side darts as I have described before. Darts directly under the bust need only have the top marks changed; the marks at the waistline can remain the same. In our sewing classes, many of our students "discover" for the first time that their "store bought" clothes do not fit properly. After their first lesson, they become aware of this very important measurement.

Dear Eunice:

I made a lovely dress this summer that had four deep unpressed pleats in the skirt. When it came back from my cleaners, the pleats were sharply pressed in, and I can't get that lovely unpressed look no matter how I try. What should a cleaner be told about pressing garments that are out of the norm?—Mrs. H. B.

Dear Mrs. H. B.:

Your letter came at a great time for me, because I have a similar dress and was just preparing to send it to be cleaned. I talked to my cleaners about this, and they told me we should specify "rolled pleats." This also would apply to hems when you desire them to have a "rolled look."

Whenever you have any detail that requires special attention, be sure to let them know when you take it. Fashions are so changeable that what is right today is wrong tomorrow; you can't blame the poor presser.

In her booklet, "Twenty Questions," Eunice Farmer answers questions readers most often ask about sewing. If you would like a copy, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

Victoria Culture Futile Unless Sidewalks Safe

By BOB MITCHELL
Uvic Correspondent

"If you can't walk down the streets of Victoria without being assaulted, then you have nothing," Mayor Hugh Stephen told a group of students Thursday.

Speaking to members of University of Victoria's Craigdarroch College at their first evening event of the year, the Mayor said "you can build all the McPherson Theatres you want, but you will still have nothing if you can't walk the streets in safety."

ENVIRONMENT

He said the City Council must always strive to provide a proper environment for the people to live in.

"I'm a luckier mayor than Daley," he commented during a reference to recent Chicago riots.

He told the students at the meeting that in a few years the problems of the urban population explosion would be theirs.

"By 1980 six-tenths of Canadians will be living in urban centres," he said.

THREE CROWDED CITIES

"By 1990 one-third of the population will live in three cities: Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal."

The mayor pointed out that city government is the oldest form of government man has known.

But he added that city and municipal governments are also very vulnerable when they become caught up in conflicts with the provincial and federal governments. The B.C. Municipalities Act, an act of the legislature, is a prime example of local government's dependence on a higher level of government for their very existence, he said.

Cities will, however, play an increasingly important role in Canada's future, the mayor believes.

"It may not be too fanciful to see the country structured on regional divisions, such as the Prairies and the Maritimes, but being administered by city-states," he said.

"I've said this before and I'll say it again. Victoria was here before British Columbia was founded, and it will still be here long after B.C. has ceased to exist."

Mayor Stephen examined some of the difficulties that will face Victoria as its population continues to expand.

Victoria will have to find a swifter, more efficient manner of administration than is presently in operation, he said.

At present, Victoria, like most other cities, is administered by a city manager, while policy is set by the city council. The main disadvantage of this system is that it is open to conflicts that can arise between the manager and the aldermen due to overlaps of jurisdiction.

The mayor praised the more streamlined municipal party and caucus system of urban government, now in use in Montreal under Mayor Jean Drapeau.

He said he often envies the caucus system enjoyed by party leaders like Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau, whereby dissident MLAs and MPs can be forced to adhere to cabinet policy.

The mayor's leadership of city council is "implied" rather than "actual," for he is only one man among eight other aldermen.

POLITICS ABSENT

He stressed that party politics are absent from municipal affairs.

"I've seen Socred mayors at the UBMC get up and criticize the government most bitterly," he said.

Mayor Stephen told the students his office door is always open to the public.

"You can talk to me at city hall whether you have an appointment or not," he said.

He said on one occasion last year an elderly man had asked to speak to him in private and then had whispered into his ear: "The chief of police is a communist!"

New Centre Planned For Retarded Adults

COURTENAY — A scheme for the care and training of retarded adults is being launched in the Comox Valley.

Bevan Lodge, in the once prosperous mining community of Bevan, located between Courtenay and Cumberland, will soon be converted into a boarding home and training centre for retarded adults.

Applicants are being screened and Bevan Lodge is expected to receive the first of its 70 residents in November.

The lodge will be administered by a board of directors known as the Bevan Lodge Association. Represented on the board will be the Beaufort Association for Retarded Children and the Courtenay Mental Health Society.

After the project was announced, Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said:

"There should be no suggestion that this is an attempt to transfer some existing provincial financial responsibility to the local community.

"The idea is just one more extension of the principle that, regardless of financial responsibility, good social services are not only born in the community, but are supported in their voluntary aspects in the community.

"This is really the whole story behind Bevan Lodge."

Officials of the health service department say the lodge is based on a new concept of treatment now gaining momentum in Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Retarded residents live as a group in a family-like atmosphere. They are enabled to relate to others and to communicate and develop relationships that are difficult to establish in an institutional setting.

Before the Magistrate

Nancy Balogh packed her suitcase Sept. 15 and set fire to her house at 2739 Winster, court was told Friday.

Then she picked up a case of beer and went outside to wait for firemen to arrive.

"It seems that it was a matter of spite," said Magistrate William Ostler when he placed Mrs. Balogh on an 18-month suspended sentence after she pleaded guilty to a charge of arson.

Strongly advising the woman to seek help in patching up her marriage, the magistrate said: "You may be foolish and sinful, madam, but you're sure not dull."

Court was told damage to the house she owned jointly with her husband totalled between $2,000 and $2,500.

Saying she appeared to have had a seamy past and a stormy present, Magistrate Ostler said her aim in arson was neither gain nor fraud, simply spite.

Donald Ryan, 20, of 710 Snowdrop, was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Ryan was parked in a car in the Brite Spot drive-in on Quadra Saturday night and threw a beer bottle out of his car, hitting two others.

When the driver of another car pulled up in front, Ryan got out and kicked the door. He then opened the door of the other car, threw a hamburger at the driver and then hit him, police said.

Ryan told the magistrate the other driver had threatened him with a wrench.

"I can't understand why people who go to drive-ins don't go to eat — it seems to be the last thing they do," said Magistrate Ostler.

"And then when you did have something to eat you threw it at your assailant," he told Ryan.

Benjamin Ruff, 1536 Belcher, was fined $150 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. Court was told he took a box of drills, three padlocks and a measuring tape from Woodward's Thursday.

Magistrate Ostler told the accused he was another one of "those sticky-fingered people who'd rather take a chance of getting a criminal record than pay a few cents."

"The shops are fairly seething with people who take things," he added.

Keith Wolfe, of no fixed address, was remanded to Monday for sentence after he pleaded guilty to charges of theft and causing a disturbance.

Court was told he took a suitcase and clothing worth $27 from a downtown hotel Wednesday and was apprehended Thursday drunk and bothering pedestrians on Government Street.

Prosecutor Stolte said the accused had "a lengthy criminal record" which was being forwarded by mail.

Alfred Johnny, 3853 East Sooke Road, was fined $350 after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was also fined $50 on a charge of not having a driver's licence.

Court was told he drove in an erratic manner on Sooke Road early Friday. Mr. Stolte said he had been fined in May on a charge of not having a licence.

Also fined $350 for impaired driving was Adrian Batterbury, 1324 David Street. Court was told he was observed speeding on Cranmore Avenue Sept. 24 and failed to stop at two stop signs.

Terrance Landry was fined $100 on a charge of dangerous driving. Police said he was observed driving at excessive speeds on the Pat Bay Highway June 5. At one point he was noted at speeds ranging from 100 to 110 m.p.h.

Kenn J. Graham, 1329 Stanley, was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was under suspension. Court was told he was found driving on Burnside Road Aug. 12.

Cave-In Toll Higher

LUENEN, West Germany (AP)—The death toll from a cave-in in a Ruhr district coal mine Friday rose to 12 today. Hope dimmed for three men still trapped 2,600 feet underground.

Rescue workers, already doubtful the three could be saved, said new cave-ins during the night probably buried them.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BARNES — In loving memory of my dear husband, E. J. (Ted) Barnes, who passed away October 5, 1968.
God's Eternal light shines bright,
You are one of his own,
[illegible]
The promise is not in Vain
Loved and sadly missed by his wife Madge.

DOBBIE—In loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana, Ethel [illegible], who left us so suddenly on October 3, 1965.
Beyond the gates our loved one Finds happiness and rest
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.
—So sadly missed by her daughter Kay, son-in-law Rod and grandchildren.

GRAHAME — The memory of all the kindness and sympathy shown to us by our many friends, relatives and business associates will be with us for many years. We want you all to know we are more grateful than mere words can express to all of you who did so much to help us through this sad time, and great loss. —Dawne Grahame and Family.

Opening lead—♥ Q

It seems that he was in a perfectly normal three no-trump contract. Everyone else made three or four odd. He went down three tricks.

He won the heart lead, led a diamond to dummy and finessed the jack. So did most of the other players. The only difference is that when he called for the jack, East produced the 10. Our unfortunate friend returned to his hand, led a second diamond and called for dummy's nine.

"What a beautiful play East made!" was our comment.

"Beautiful, nothing!" he groaned!" "A really good player might have made that brilliant falsecard. In fact if I had been playing against an expert I would have suspected that bit of skullduggery but I was playing against Jonesy."

"Jonesy?" We knew Jonesy well. He was not only the worst player in that group, he might well be the worst player in the world.

"It was Jonesy all right. Furthermore, it was a typical play for him. When I called for the nine of diamonds he produced a heart. His partner asked, 'No diamonds?' He replied 'No diamonds.' Further questioning finally got him to search among his remaining cards and he found his queen."

"You finally have our sympathy. In addition to make things really bad for you, when Jonesy started to revoke he played a card in the suit that was going to hurt you most. After all, Jonesy never returns his partner's suit when he can find some other lead."

10-MILE POINT
UNUSUAL—ATTRACTIVE

This attractive home, built with a high regard for Japanese architecture also uses the best functionalism of Western architecture to produce better living because — it is located in the 2nd best area (Uplands is first) — the lot is large, 74x220 — it's treed, offering you a natural park of your own. The privacy extends also to the home. The living room is peninsular with a separate entrance (how many times have you crossed through a living room or dining room to get to another room — A living area should not serve as a passageway). Between the living room and the large dining room is a free standing stone fireplace — serving both rooms and it soars to the full height of the open beamed roof. The wall between the dining room, and kitchen is translucent and has a Japanese design. The lighting from either room through the panelling adds a most interesting feature to these rooms. The kitchen has black walnut cabinets that only Tech Designed Homes would produce. This is a room that most ladies will not be able to resist. The bedrooms are large, 2 have feature walls and special lighting and there are two full bathrooms. In addition, there is a large rumpus room finished in yellow cedar with a floor to ceiling fireplace. There are many more features. The price is $39,500 and there is a 5½ per cent mortgage available. B. Price, 385-2458.

Lab Shortage Hampers Work

Canada must have more technical research facilities if the country is to hold its own in scientific and industrial competition.

Many applied scientists will be forced to leave the country if more institutions for research are not organized within the next few years.

This was the theme of the annual report last week of the National Research Council in Ottawa.

And it was a theme reiterated this week by Dr. John Duffus, head of the department of physics at Royal Roads Military College in Colwood.

Emphasis over the past 10 years in Canada has been on pure science and research, with little emphasis on applied sciences.

In fact, said Dr. Duffus, "applied sciences are generally in bad shape in Canada."

"We're not doing things here as others countries are."

In the United States, for example, research done by private industrial laboratories far outweighs that done by government labs.

APPROACH REVERSED

Canada has reversed the approach by assigning the bias of research grants to government facilities such as the National Research Council and Defense Research Board.

"In Canada we just don't have these private labs," Dr. Duffus said.

"The emphasis has been on pure research in government and universities. If we are going to have a country which is more competitive and original in its research, we will have to have more applied science facilities."

Canadian universities are full of graduate students working in fields other than pure science and there will be no place to employ them in this country with present facilities.

The National Research Council said recently Canada would have 1,100 PhD graduates by 1971, most of whom will be looking for jobs in industrial research.

"Private laboratories just don't exist in Canada," Dr. Duffus said.

"The government is going to have to supply industrial reasearch facilities. They will have to develop them and universities will have to develop applied science institutes.

"Otherwise there won't be anything for the graduates to do. They will go to the United States," Dr. Duffus said.

PARTIAL SOLUTION

Part of the solution, he said, lies in improving communications between industry, government and the universities.

These three main agencies of research must help each other and cooperate with each other in use of facilities and sharing of material.

A national foundation with just this purpose already exists—the Canadian Organization for Joint Research.

The foundation held its first meeting in Ottawa this week. Dr. Duffus was one of two scientists from western Canada attending.

The main objective of COJR is to tell various researchers where they can find information or assistance in their work. The foundation hopes to streamline references between government facilities and those of industry and the universities.

One conclusion arising out of the meeting in Ottawa was that Canada is not going to follow the American pattern of massive research projects conducted by industry. There just aren't the facilities here.

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT

Instead, concentration of research is going to have to go on with all laboratory facilities co-operating with each other.

More technical facilities are going to have to be set up in universities to look into things industry would explore in the United States.

This has already begun, said R. Duffus, with the cyclotron nuclear accelerator at the University of British Columbia campus in conjunction with the five major western universities.

Another such project is the planned marine biology centre hoped for at the University of Victoria campus.

Such constrated institutes would have scientists of all disciplines working with engineers and mathematicians. A particular technological problem could be tackled by a team of applied scientists to aid industry.

In fact, Dr. Duffus said, a group has organized itself at Royal Roads to do much the same thing. The group has not settled on a problem to apply its energies to so far, he said.

Hospital To Reduce Paper Work

Royal Jubilee Hospital will install an electronic ordering system in the purchasing department on a trial basis.

A hospital spokesman said the system would be installed in conjunction with a hospital supplier to cut down on paper work.

It will transmit purchasing data by telephone using programmed computer cards, containing all necessary purchasing information. If successful, the system will eliminate purchase orders, receiving slips and most of the routine clerical work.

The hospital may also convert to the metric system of measuring. A committee has been set up to study the system's feasibility.

More than 300 hospitals in Canada have converted to metric measuring and in May, 1967 the Ontario Hospital Association recommended it for diagnosis, care and treatment.

The hospital will also adopt the 24-hour clock Jan. 1. The time system, which does not distinguish between a.m. or p.m., runs from one to 24 hours.

Hospital officials hope to alleviate a great deal of confusion and ease the co-ordination of hospital functions and activities. The system will also be adaptable to computer processes.

The 24-hour clock is used by the military, railroads and communication companies. The Jubilee clocks will have a decal showing the 24 hour clock face inside the existing 12 figures.

Cod 'Farms' Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Friday research has shown that the Alaska black cod can be grown rapidly in captivity as a food fish by feeding it ground-up dogfish.

The dogfish is a species of shark that is considered a nuisance to fishermen since it attacks valuable salmon.

Juvenile Guilty of Break-Ins

A 15-year-old juvenile who pleaded guilty Friday to three charges of breaking and entering and theft and one charge of theft under $50, will be sentenced Oct. 15.

He was the third juvenile to plead before Magistrate William Ostler within a week. At least seven young persons were arrested two weeks ago following police investigation of several city break-ins.

Three boys, two age 15 and one 16 were raised from juvenile court to central criminal court for disposition of the charges.

Court was told the youth broke into a fish boat, a Cook street fish and shop and Lewis Grocery, 1022 Cook Street, between Sept. 17 and 21. Other juveniles were with him at the time.

Det. Joseph Barlow said 85 rounds of ammunition and a .32 Colt revolver were taken from the boat, and 25 six-packs of pop, 24 cartons of cigarettes, and a number of cigars and chocolate bars were taken from the two stores.

When the youth was arrested Sept. 21 he was found intoxicated in Bastion Square and had 70 rounds of ammunition in his possession. The detective said $72.36 worth of the stolen articles had been recovered at 858 Heywood Avenue, a house he described as a "headquarters" for the juveniles.

On Sept. 22 he said the youth stole a pair of "Beatle boots" worth $12 from a downtown store. The boy is an escapee from Brannan Lake school for boys, he told the court.

Another juvenile, age 16, who pleaded guilty last week to three charges of theft, one of breaking and entering and theft and possession of an offensive weapon was sentenced to nine to eighteen months in the Young Offenders Unit.

After reading what he termed a "disturbing pre-sentence report" Magistrate Ostler noted that the probation officer spoke of "an attitude of friendly defiance" on the part of the youth. He said it seemed to be a contradiction of terms.

He told the juvenile it was up to him how long he stayed in the correctional institute depending on how he behaved and responded to the programs.

He said he hated "to see a boy like you ... who hasn't chosen to be a good citizen."

The third juvenile, who was also to be sentenced Friday, was remanded until Wednesday as the probation officer had not finished a pre-sentence report.

B.C. Journal Announced

A new journal to promote B.C. on an academic level, will be published by the provincial museum.

"It will be technical in nature and will mainly interest scientists, students and serious hobbyists, according to museum director Dr. Clifford Carl.

Articles will be restricted to subjects dealing with the Pacific northwest. They will include historical subjects and studies dealing with animals, plants, sociology and archaeology, he said.

Local Jaycee Secures High Nomination

Brian Small of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has been nominated for the outstanding Jaycee senator of the year award.

The international award, put up by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, goes to the best senator of the 8,600 in the international organization. There are 500,000 Jaycees in the world.

Mr. Small is the only Canadian nominee for the prize, which is offered in recognition of outstanding achievement and personal contribution of a Jaycee senator to his community and the orgainzation.

He will be judged at the international award competitions in Mar Del Plata, Argentina, Nov. 10 to 20. Past-president George Robbins will represent the Victoria chamber.

The prize going with the award is a gold chain of office similar to a mayoralty chain.

Mr. Small was chairman of the Jaycee exhibition last May and is organizing the exhibition for next year. Age 34, he has been a Jaycee since 1957.

THREE TIMES

He has been president of the Vancouver Island district, director and vice-president of the Victoria chamber three times and vice-president of the B.C. and Yukon division.

In May, he won the trophy for outstanding Jaycee in B.C. and the Yukon.

'Just a Small Greenhouse?' Now Let's Think a Minute

Tips for Home Gardeners

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

As fall approaches many home gardeners decide to build a small greenhouse.

Whether it will be of the lean-to type against a house or a garage wall, or an even span roof in the open, will depend on facilities available and the purpose for which the house is intended.

While public libraries contain plenty of books on design and layout, there is very little operational data that applies to this part of the continent.

Ease of operation is an important factor for the amateur who cannot be in attendance all hours of the day and night, and there are certain construction features that influence ease of operation.

The first consideration is size. Most amateurs will say they require "just a small place," but a small house is difficult to heat in winter, and just as difficult to keep at a low enough temperature in summer.

All greenhouses have a definite heat loss factor. Heat is lost through radiation of cold from the glass, from the joints between the individual panes of glass, and from the low insulation value of glass compared to wood or brick.

This means that every hour of the day and night a certain number of cubic feet of heated air is going to be lost or rapidly cooled, and it stands to reason that the greater the volume of air enclosed by the structure the less effect the losses will have on the inside temperature.

CHECK BYLAWS

The size of an amateur greenhouse that may be built is controlled by local bylaws, and varies from 100 to 150 square feet of floor area, which means a house 8 ft. x 12 ft. or 10 ft. x 15ft.

It is therefore wise to build to the maximum allowed in order to obtain reasonable heating efficiency. While it may seem a large house to begin with, you will wish it was twice as large after a year or two of operation.

The next important decision is whether the building should be of wood and glass or wood and plastic film.

Plastic houses require less wood in the construction, but must have adequate bracing against wind and carefully made joints, rounded edges, and no projections that could puncture the covering.

While the initial cost may be cheaper than for wood and glass, at least part of the covering (the roof) will have to be replaced every year unless the heavy grades of greenhouse plastic are used.

These heavy films are often more expensive than second-hand greenhouse glass, and require a tractor, a winch, or half a dozen men, to stretch them before nailing.

While construction costs are lower for plastic film, heating and ventilating a plastic house poses problems that more than offset the saving.

AIR FLOWS

Plastic allows air to flow freely either outwards or inwards so that temperatures can only be maintained with an automatically controlled heating system.

Although air passes through plastic, moisture vapor will not pass through. This results in high humidity and severe condensation on the inner surface which makes ventilation and air circulation an important factor for success with the plants.

The air leaking between the panes of glass in a glasshouse tends to promote air circulation, but there are no leaks in plastic film therefore the air tends to become stagnant.

This results in hot air at roof level and colder air at plant level, which is far from ideal in a plant structure. Circulating fans that do not produce a draught on the plants have been designed to overcome this problem.

Ventilation is more important in a small greenhouse than high temperatures. Most small structures have vents that are totally inadequate.

At least one-quarter, preferrably one-third, of the total roof area of a small house should be devoted to ventilators.

Large roof vents, around 36 inches wide and 24 to 27 inches deep, should be placed opposite each other on each side of the ridge.

This placement allows wind to blow straight through the two openings and suck out the hot or stale air. When the roof vents are staggered each side of the ridge, a draught is forced down on warm plants and troubles start mounting.

A door is usually placed in one end of the building, but this has little effect in lowering summer temperatures unless a large ventilator is placed in the opposite end to provide a through passage for outside air.

These ventilating requirements apply to both plastic covered and glass construction.

When plants are to be grown at ground level it is necessary to have the glass or plastic right to the bottom of the structure. But where benches are used it is better to have the lower wall of wood inside and outside with sawdust between for insulation.

COST REDUCED

This construction gives much higher temperatures at floor level thereby reducing the cost of heating.

For good growing conditions the structure must be in the open and free of all shadow from trees or other buildings.

In this area, protection from the north and northeast is desirable in winter. This may be obtained from a stand of tall trees or the wall of a building.

When the structure is butted against a north wall, extra ventilators will be needed to compensate for the lack of through ventilation.

WEEK'S WORK

As leaves of gladioli lose their green color, the corms should be lifted for winter storage indoors.

Cool nights will take greenhouse temperatures down to 35 deg. F. so give a little night heat if more warmth is desired.

Reduce watering on greenhouse plants and also house plants which do not make growth at this time. Ventilation is needed.

Sow a few Grand Rapids lettuce seed in greenhouse. Prick out a two-inch spacing into flat. Makes good eating by late December.

Remove all runners from strawberry plants and clean between rows.

Sow dwarf broad beans in sunny, sheltered spot. They will germinate this month, grow two or three inches before winter, and make an early start next year.

Set out raspberries, strawberries, other small fruits, using bonemeal and compost.

If deciding to pick all tomatoes, do so carefully with stem attached. Wrap perfect fruits, separately in paper. Will ripen slowly in cool place for use in December. Inspect often.

While late potatoes still have green foliage, leave the tubers in ground to continue growing to size during good fall weather.

Continue planting, transplanting and weeding whenever soil is suitable for working.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. When could I expect a Tulip-tree to bloom? I have one now six feet tall, planted three years ago, but no flowers yet. Thank you for all your help. — K.T.A., Saanich.

A. If your tree is liriodendron, with broad leaves cut off bluntly at one end, now turning a bright yellow, you may have to wait several more years.

I have never seen this tree flowering, though have one eight feet high, and there are many planted on Douglas Street on boulevard north from about Burnside, on the east-side.

Easterners use the name Tulip-tree for Magnolia soulangeana which blooms early in life. These leaves are thick, dark green, now beginning to turn brown before falling.

Spot in New Archives Needed For Early Stamps of Province

Stamp News

By ROBERT G. OLIPHANT

In today's column, and in a few forthcoming columns, I will describe some of the interesting stamps and letters which are in the possession of the Provincial Archives.

Housed in a black stock book is a small, but impressive collection of the postage stamps of British Columbia and Vancouver Island (1860-71).

The highlights of this collection:

—a single ungummed 2½p rose imperf. (No. 1); never put into use.

—two mint blocks of 24 of the 2½p rose perf. 14 (No. 2). Description: each block is perforated into 36 subjects, 6x6. The upper two and the lower two rows are printed with the stamp design, and across both of the middle two rows is the rose colored inscription: "Postage two pence halfpenny."

—A strip of three of same.

—A mint five-cent rose imperf. (No. 3). V—a fine used single of same.

—A crisp mint single (3 margins) of the ten-cent blue imperf. (No. 4).

—A mint block of 13 of the five-cent rose perf. 14 (No. 5); a number of them adhering together.

—1867-71 overprints, all in crisp mint condition.

Two covers are also included in the collection. One is a small white cover which bears two of the 3p blue adhesives of 1865 (No. 7). They are postmarked with a black oval cancel. The envelope is addressed to "Mrs. O'Reilly, Rock Bay, Victoria." A small circular postmark on the reverse reads: "New Westminster, B.C., May 30, 1865." The flap is sealed with a blob of red, carbon spotted sealing wax. It is impressed with an oval seal which features a three ball-pointed crown, enclosed within a buckle.

The other white cover, which is dated Oct. 23, 1866, is also stamped with a pair of the 3p blue stamps, but these are torn. The address reads: "Mrs. O'Reilly, New Westminster, B.C." The envelope is sealed with red sealing wax, which is embossed with a square seal. It encloses a crest, of which, a harp, a lion and a crown are visible in the design.

Note: the numbers in brackets are those of Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue.

Unfortunately, these items are not on exhibit, but I trust that room will be set aside to display them in the new archives building, which is yet to be completed.

On Oct. 8, Israel will honor "Tabira," their national stamp exhibition with a IL. 1.00 stamp, and a IL. 1.50 souvenir sheet. The stamp will feature details from the Lion's Gate, which is in the Old City Wall in Jerusalem. The souvenir sheet will depict the Wall itself, and will show the IL. 1.00 stamp on the right half portion of the sheet.

Israel will release another stamp on Oct. 8, and it will bear a portrait of the Zionist writer and historian Abraham Mapu (1808-67), the author of the epic novel "Love of Zion." (Value: IL. 0.30.)

Papua and New Guinea will issue four colorful shell definitives on Oct. 30. The shells, featured on attractive backgrounds are from the coral reefs of Papua and New Guinea. These stamps were printed by photogravure, in sheets of 50, by Helio Courvoisier of Switzerland. Values: 3c, 10c, 15c, 40c and $1. A third and final group of five shell definitives will be issued in Jan., 1969.

From Nov. 1 to Nov. 9, EFIMEX '68, the international stamp exhibition, will be held in Mexico City. To publicize this event, Mexico will release a five-peso souvenir sheet on No. 1. I believe that there will be 2,000 frames at this exhibition.

Oct. 3, Malta released three distinctive Christmas stamps. They feature shepherds in a field being awakened by an angel, with the Star of Bethlehem beaming in the background (1d); the Child Jesus resting in a manger, with the Star overhead, and Joseph, Mary and a shepherd looking down at Him (8d); the Three Wise Men: Melchior, Kaspar and Balthasar following the Star, and bearing gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh (1s 4d).

These stamps are of an irregular pentagon shape; photogravure printed on Maltese cross watermarked paper, by Harrison & Sons Ltd., and designed by Chev. E. V. Cremona.

Last week, I described the Norfolk Island five-cent Christmas stamp. The issue date has been changed from Oct. 23 to Oct. 24.

NEXT WEEK: new B.I.O.T. definitives, Australian booklet stamps, Mauritius—Part One an[illegible], and other delights.

'And Then There's The Real Alaska'

"How to see the real Alaska!" is the title of the State of Alaska's new 24-page travel brochure.

Included in the folder are sections on each of Alaska's major regions, detailed maps, an invitation from Governor Walter J. Hickel, and background on Alaska's geography, transportation, people, sports, activities, economy, and special events.

Several dozen full-color photographs are featured in the brochure which is available from the Alaska Travel Division, Pouch E, Juneau, Alaska 99801.

The tone for the booklet is set in Governor Hickel's opening remarks:

"There are two Alaskas in this world. One is the Alaska of cartoons and old movies: a great icebox of a place, where old prospectors stumble onto giant veins of gold, and everyone lives in snow igloos.

"And then there's the real Alaska. A land of incredible beauty, with a rich past and a fabulous future. A place where life isn't limited to a nine to five world and people are glad to be alive. America's last frontier, where you can walk in minutes from modern city streets into the magnificent hush of the forest."

Rain Hits Harvest

OTTAWA (CP) — Cool, wet weather on the Prairies from mid-August to mid-September cut Canada's estimated 1968 wheat harvest by more than 20,000,000 bushels to a still-healthy 627,327,000 bushels, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My wife is always coming up with home remedies. The one I'm writing about is ice cubes, for our old dog, Sammy. Several times in the last few weeks, he has had a swelling on his right shoulder. He limps around like he was in pain. My wife wraps an ice pack on it and holds it on there for a while and the swelling goes down and pain disappears. We have no questions as Sammy's doing fine with her good care. Just wanted to pass along this tip to help other animals in pain.—L. M.

COMMENT: The "cold shoulder" is recognized by medical authorities as having definite therapeutic benefit. The cold is somewhat of a shock at first, but then the anti-inflammatory effect sets in and relief follows.

Preferable to packing with ice, is gentle massage, with ice cubes, for up to 10 minutes at a time. This frosty fingered massage may provide relief of ailments from arthritis to pruritis.

But relief of pain or even (temporary) reduction of swelling is not synonymous with cure. Any recurrent swelling, such as afflicts Sammy, certainly calls for a thorough examination and accurate diagnosis. For best long-term results, better let the doctor determine what Sammy's future treatment should be.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My son has, after many failures, succeeded in keeping a pet horned toad. He has trained Spiney to eat mealworms and termite ants. Now he's worried about winter coming on and whether Spiney has to hibernate, and if he does, whether or not he can live through it? He is (the lizard, of course) fat and sassy and the picture of good health now.—I. M.

DEAR I.M.: As long as Spiney maintains his interest in food, there's no need to hasten his hibernation. Chances are, though, that he will become increasingly sluggish and eat less. If this begins to occur in spite of a maintained daytime temperature of 75 degrees or so, better go along with nature and allow his hibernation to proceed. Drop the temperature approximately 30 degrees or so in a few days and keep him cool (but protected) during the winter months. Try reversing the process in the spring. Spiney's chances of survival are better than most horned lizards as he apparently has some blubber to bank on during his long, deep sleep.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Last week my neighbor's dog kept me and Schnaps (my doxie) awake all night with her sneezing. During the day, I noticed she had a drippy nose and eyes. She was all right this week, but I don't know whether she got taken to the doctor or whether she got over it herself. It made me wonder, though, if Schnaps started to sneeze a lot how would I know whether it was just an allergy or due to a grass weed up her nose?—N. N.

DEAR N. N.: Probably you wouldn't know for sure. But should Schnaps start sneezing, and then keep it up for more than a few minutes, an examination is indicated. Most dogs' severe sneezing spells are the result of a weed such as a fixtail becoming lodged up in the nose. Drippy eyes and nose may be caused by allergies, but these attacks are not only usually less frequent, but sneezing, if any, is comparatively subdued.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I don't know just where I read about giving a cat an enema for constipation but I'm sorry I ever did. I tried giving my cat one and she hasn't forgiven me yet. And my wounds haven't healed yet, either. If you ever tell people to give a cat an enema, don't. It's too hard on everybody. Very sincerely, —J. J.

COMMENT: Right. This is not a recommended do-it-yourself project. But a constipated cat can't be neglected, either. If oral laxatives including liquid or jellied petrolatum or the recommended granular type don't work, check with your veterinarian without delay. It just may be an enema is indicated but, if so, he will volunteer to handle the details.

CAUTION: Male cats may appear to be constipated when in reality they are straining as a result of an obstruction in the urinary tract. To avoid uremic (urine) poisoning, and death, early relief is essential. For this reason always contact the doctor at once if a male cat strains or shows signs of obstruction in any department.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Fenian Invasions Became Farces

By BOB BOWMAN

After the American revolutionary war (the Americans call it "the War of Independence") there were many tough soldiers in the U.S. without anything to do. Leaders of the Irish independence movement persuaded them to become "Fenians" and capture Canada.

The plan was trade Canada to Britain for the independence of Ireland. There was a great deal of sympathy in the U.S. for Ireland (no, Bing Crosby had not begun singing then) and the Fenians raised millions of dollars intended to support an army of 30,000 men.

Perhaps the greatest weakness of the Fenians was that few of them were willing to be ordinary soldiers, and there were far too many generals, colonels, and other high-ranking officers. Nevertheless, the movement caused considerable alarm in Canada in 1864 and helped to bring about Confederation.

The Fenians did invade several places along the border, the most serious being Niagara in 1866, but they were defeated easily. Most of them probably thought they wouldn't have to do any real fighting because Canada wanted to be "liberated from Britain." They lost heart when shooting began!

The final Fenian raid was across the southern border of Manitoba on Oct. 5, 1871. The force of 30 men was led by two generals, O'Neill and O'Donoghue. The latter had had been Louis Riel's chief assistant in the Red River uprising.

The raiders captured the Hudson's Bay Company trading post and were loading a wagon with plunder when 23 U.S. cavalrymen came chasing after them. The Fenians took to flight but most of them including the two "generals" were captured and taken back to the U.S. where they were tried and acquitted.

Although the incident seems almost comical now it caused a great deal of excitement then, including considerable spy activity. The militia in Manitoba had been mobilized for several days to resist an attack.

Other events on Oct. 5:

1786 — Captain Vancouver using Nootka as a base explored north to 56:44.

1813 — U.S. troops defeated British-Canadian force at Moraviantown (near London, Ont.) and Indian Chief Tecumseh was killed.

1835 — Citizens of St. Andrew's, N.B., met to get railway to Quebec.

1871 — First sod turned for P.E.I. Railway.

1903 — Alberta College (Methodist) founded at Edmonton.

Toronto Transplant Expected

TORONTO (CP) — Boyd McAuley, executive director of Toronto Western Hospital, says the hospital may possibly perform a heart transplant soon.

Mr. McAuley said in an interview heart specialists at the hospital have among their patients several possible candidates for a transplant.

He said he believes testing of tissue types and blood groups of these patients already has been done so that doctors could tell which one would be the best match for the donors.

Matching of tissue and blood is important to reduce the risk of rejection of the new heart by the patient's defence system against foreign substances.

Canada has had five heart transplants, all in Montreal. Three of the patients survive.

Rationing Coming Scientist Warns

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Dr. W. A. Jenkins, president of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College here, says food rationing could begin in Canada in the foreseeable future.

Dr. Jenkins said in an address to a service club that the world population is increasing at a geometric—doubling—rate, while food production increases at an arithmetical rate of only two per cent annually.

He said the world population will double to six billion by the year 2000 and will redouble by the year 2020.

The rate of starvation is getting progressively worse and, he says, the only hope for increasing food production is more scientific achievements, technological improvements, and advances in marketing processes.

"Agriculture will become the prestige profession and the demand for agriculturalists at home and abroad will increase."

The 1968 graduates from his college were each offered about four jobs, and next year's 400 graduates will have 2,400 jobs to choose from, he predicts.

Countries with a large percentage of their populations involved in agriculture are the backward countries, Dr. Jenkins said.

"The nation's standard of living is inversely proportional to the percentage of men required to produce food."

He said the United States only has seven per cent of its population in agriculture and Canada has 10 per cent, while China uses 87 per cent of its population to produce food.

Powell Says Wallace Man Of Courage

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, former New York congressman, said Wednesday he respects George Wallace, independent party presidential candidate, "because he's got guts."

"This may come as a shock to my 'soul brothers,'" Powell said, "but Wallace is the only one of the bunch that's got guts."

Powell's talk to about 1,500 students at Washington State University was sponsored by the school's student political union.

The deposed congressman said Vice-President Hubert Humphrey "would have to divorce himself completely from President Johnson" before he would support Humphrey. He also said Humphrey should say he would end the Vietnam war immediately if elected, "otherwise I will support comedian Dick Gregory for president."

YOUNGEST DELEGATE at the B.C. Liberal convention in Penticton, Gina Janak, 12, caused an uproar and a vote on the floor of the convention when she presented her credentials Friday. An attempt to have her ousted was nullified when delegates voted, 216 to 209, not to restrict delegates to persons over the age of 16. Gina, a Grade 8 Tsawwassen student, has signed up 19 adults to membership since she [illegible] months ago. She was the first delegate selected by the Delta group.

McGeer Solid Favorite To Head B.C. Liberals

Members Given Larger Role

Times News Services

PENTICTON—Vancouver MLA Dr. Pat McGeer held a commanding lead here this afternoon as delegates cast ballots to select a new leader for the B.C. Liberal party.

Dr. McGeer's supporters gave their 41-year-old choice a likely 70 per cent win over fellow Vancouver MLA Garde Gardom, 44, his only opponent.

Both candidates represent urban-rich Vancouver-Point Grey in the legislature but they stand at the fore of a party with a total of only six seats—behind the 32 Socreds and 17 New Democrats.

But whoever wins will carry with him a new party constitution that the provincial executive hopes will democratize the party and give it a healthier chance when Premier Bennett decides to take another fling at the polls.

McGEER

1,500 AT MEETING

Lawrence Jolivet, outgoing provincial president, said today the 1,500 delegates, guests and spectators at the convention are evidence of the new and vital spirit the new leader will have behind him.

Mr. Jolivet said the convention is "the largest the Liberals have had since British Columbian entered Confederation."

He declined to comment on who he thought would succeed 42-year-old Ray Perrault in the leadership. Mr. Perrault resigned after sweeping national NDP leader T. C. Douglas out of the federal Burnaby-Seymour riding in June.

A McGeer campaigner said "We're extremely confident. We've detected some slippage during the last 24 hours, but we expected this since we went into the convention with a pretty substantial majority of delegates behind us."

STILL HOPEFUL

But a spokesman for Mr. Gardom, a lawyer who upset former Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the 1966 provincial election, was still hopeful, predicting the winning majority would be 52 to 55 per cent — for Mr. Gardom.

One of the province's leading Liberals confided that while it "certainly" looks like Dr. McGeer would win, "it is a real race."

"Gardom has been working very, very hard," he said and added indications that Mr. Gardom had entered the race merely as token competition were "simply not true."

Dr. McGeer, director of the Kinsmen Laboratory of Neurological Research at UBC, was first elected to the legislature in a 1962 byelection.

CROWD 'SIGNIFICANT'

Allan Cox, winner of the Oak Bay byelection this summer, exulted in the turnout at the convention. "The fact that there are overflow delegations from all areas — not just Vancouver

Northern Justice Attacked

PENTICTON (CP) — A Prince George lawyer told a British Columbia Liberal party convention Friday that administration of justice in northern parts of the province "stinks."

Delegate Alan Bate, who said he practises criminal law, was speaking during a convention session on human rights.

"The administration of justice in many areas of this province stinks," said Mr. Bate. "I can tell you I would not like to be an Indian person living in parts of B.C."

Mr. Bate said he has the greatest respect for the majority of policemen, but they tend to take sides when it comes to legal or criminal problems involving the Indian population.

JUST SOCIETY

"I'm afraid we'll content ourselves with phrases such as the just society instead of reality," said the lawyer. "I'm afraid there really is no just society in matters such as this."

Mr. Bate said appointment of full-time county prosecutors across the province would go a long way to resolving injustices. He said no one but fully qualified persons should be allowed to handle prosecutions on serious criminal charges.

Another lawyer, John Bouck of Vancouver, said the same general principles should apply in civil law as in criminal. He said archaic court procedures bog down the courts with "traps, difficulties and pitfalls."

He said one of the most obvious inequalities in civil law is the fact that in British Columbia, the crown in the person of the provincial government cannot be sued by private citizens.

Lawyer John Caldwell of Campbell River, said now that the government has enacted medicare, it should give serious consideration to "eligicare" — legal aid services.

UMUAHIA — Two Canadian members of Parliament are preparing to leave this beleaguered town and fly back to Canada to report on what they consider is the desperate situation confronting besieged Biafra.

"I now feel that our (Canadian) major effort should be in the international field to bring about a ceasefire and see that codes of international behavior are observed," said Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood).

Mr. Brewin and David MacDonald (PC — Egmont) arrived here this week on a personal fact-finding mission to see whether Canada can make a greater contribution to the precarious flow of relief supplies (mainly food and medicine) that comes in every night to the Biafrans' single remaining makeshift airstrip.

But after talks with senior Biafran leaders and officials and a tour of refugee camps and the food distribution centres, they feel the situation is so desperate that there should be immediate international action to stop the fighting.

Direct Report

They said they will report directly to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

As Biafran troops fight a stubborn holding action against advancing Nigerian forces, the government of Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu is making a desperate appeal to the world community to stop what he calls acts of genocide.

Canada is one of the key nations on which the Biafrans are counting for help. In a statement published here Friday, the Biafra international friendship committee said: "We salute the governments of Canada, France and Zambia for their recent move to take the matter to the United Nations."

Support Lacking

(Canadian delegates at the UN have been trying to have the Nigerian-Biafran situation brought before the General Assembly but External Affairs Minister Sharp told the Commons recently that it is hard to find countries to support the proposal.

The problem, he said, hinged on finding a way to discuss the humanitarian aspects of the civil war without intervening in political affairs. Canada sent Maj.-Gen. W. A. Milroy to serve on a four-man international team investigating Biafran charges of genocide.

Morale remains remarkably high in this capital, the only major town that remains in Biafran hands. But there is sharp fighting at Okigwi, about 30 miles to the north-east, and Ikot Ekpene, to the south, as the Nigerians press their "final offensive" in an attempt to cut Biafra in two.

There is no doubt that the Biafrans are prepared to fight to the last man. If Umuahia falls, the Biafrans will take to the bush and harass the

Laing To Go In Shakeup?

OTTAWA (CP) — Rumors of a spring cabinet shakeup are circulating on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be dissatisfied with the performance of some of his ministers and, informants said Friday, is already canvassing means of bringing some new faces into his administration.

A cabinet shuffle could be started by the departure of two veteran ministers—Solicitor-General George McIlraith and Works Minister Arthur Laing.

Canada Requests France To Team Up in Space Work

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp Friday made specific proposals to Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France for Canadian-French co-operation in space research.

Sharp, speaking later to reporters, said this co-operation could include space communications, among other things.

MAY SHARE RESEARCH

"We have facilities which we could use in common and we could share our experiences in technological research," said Sharp, who said Debre had taken the Canadian proposal under consideration.

The ministers also discussed in general terms the prospects for cultural co-operation, the most appropriate course for the West to take on the Czechoslovakian problem, and the efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

The General Assembly heard a plea from Czechoslovakia's acting foreign minister to let his country's future be determined within the Soviet-dominated Eastern European Communist bloc.

Vaclav Pleskot appealed for understanding of Czechoslovakia's situation. The 125-member assembly was asked to "do nothing that would be in conflict with the wish of the government of Czechoslovakia looking toward a settlement of the present situation on the basis of the Moscow talks."

Full airing of the Czechoslovak situation at the UN is not likely to be stopped by Pleskot's appeal.

WIRE BRIEFS

Second Prison Riot

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Prison guards used tear gas to quell an uprising by 300 convicts and then marched the inmates back to their cells. The rebellion lasted about two hours. It was the second outburst in four days at South Carolina's main penitentiary.

Violence Flares

NEW YORK (UPI) — New violence flared in New York's embattled schools Friday and there was a threat of a renewal of the teachers' strike which closed down classes for the first three weeks of the fall term.

'Liberation' Force Threatens Mexico

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Gunfighting in Mexico City took two more lives Friday—a passerby and then the sniper who shot him—and a letter signed by a group calling itself the "Army of Liberation" threatened a "large military operation" against the government.

Police meanwhile announced that four persons, one of them a Canadian, were arrested as being among "foreign elements" and local guerrillas who supported students in their fight against the government.

A Canadian embassy spokesman Friday night confirmed that a Canadian had been detained for questioning, but declined to identify him. Police identified him as Otto Hans Zoeller, 32, but gave no hometown.

The embassy spokesman said no charges had been laid against him.

In Friday night's incident, the sniper, firing from an apartment building across from the foreign ministry headquarters, killed a 35-year-old passerby with a shot in the head and wounded a 21-year-old man in the arm. Witnesses said the sniper apparently was aiming at a soldier.

Army marksmen returned the fire and a few minutes later the sniper was carried out dead.

The statement of the Liberation Army was distributed Friday, but was dated Sept. 28, four days before the big gunfight Wednesday between troops and snipers that left at least 29 persons dead.

Referring to the Olympic Games scheduled to open in the Mexican capital next Saturday, it said:

"We decline all responsibility for what could happen to those who come to a country that, in fact, finds itself in full civil war."

It recommended that "the foreign public not come to the Olympics because, although under no circumstances will athletes be attacked, it will be necessary to carry out a large military operation against the government in the inaugural act and others later."

Oil Firm Takeover Hinted by Junta

LIMA (AP)—The military leaders who overthrew the Peruvian government nullified Friday night a disputed contract with a United States oil firm and said government officials responsible for it would be "brought to justice."

The U.S. diplomatic mission remained in the country, but a state department spokesman in Washington said the uncertainty brought about by the coup had caused a suspension of U.S.-Peru diplomatic relations. He said the suspension was not the same as a formal break in relations.

The military leaders did not name the officials it considered responsible for the contract with International Petroleum Corp., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Ousted President Fernando Belaunde Terry helped draw up the agreement which gave back to the government oil fields in northern Peru that had been operated by IPC since 1924.

SEE DOLLAR LEAK

He was criticized by opposition members of parliament who said the contract made no provision for hundreds of millions of dollars IPC had taken from the country in resources.

The military leaders used the oil dispute as a pretext for taking power Thursday. Observers believe Gen. Juan Velasco, the army chief of staff who heads the "revolutionary government," is considering a complete takeover of the firm's assets.

In New York, a spokesman for Standard Oil said a satisfactory contract had been reached with the Belaunde government and no money was owed outside the contract.

Belaunde, in exile in Buenos Aires, said he would travel Sunday to Chile or Bolivia, countries bordering Peru, and await a call "to go back and fight."

Asked about charges of corruption in his regime, Belaunde said:

"I am willing to return to my country and submit myself to a trial to verify my assets. I can say emphatically that I came out of the government poorer than I went in."

In Washington, the U.S. government and other Western hemisphere nations held talks on recognition of the new military regime.

B.C. EMPLOYEES SHUN UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — People employed by the B.C. government were told Friday they are "working stiffs who are not earning the money they should be."

R. W. McMaster, a liquor Control Board employee, also told the opening session of the Government Employees Association convention that the association should change its name.

He said the word "association" has brought nothing in the last 25 years and the word "union" should be incorporated in its place.

However, a resolution that would have changed the name to the union of B.C. provincial employees was defeated 52-48.

A second blow to the militants came when a bid to delete a section of the organization's constitution was turned down.

The section instructs members to: "co-operate with the government in establishing and maintaining the highest degree of efficiency and service to the public, free from political and personal patronage and discrimination."

"This is a company union clause," BCGEA executive member O. A. Pederson told delegates.

"It has been mis-used time and time again by our employers, the provincial government.

"Let's be loyal eight hours a day and be paid for it and outside of that let's be union people and fight for our rights."

But when the convention voted on the resolution, which the resolutions committee urged be rejected, it was defeated.

"We were a trade union for just about 10 minutes there," commented one delegate.

The resolutions committee recommended non-concurrence on the first 12 resolutions placed before the convention.

Among those defeated was one which would allow calling of special convention sessions in the event BCGEA branches approve such a convention call by a 60 per cent vote.

R. L. Lavigne, a delegate from the Essondale branch, told the convention he was appearing at his first convention after a nine-year absence.

Mr. Lavigne, who backed the motion for special convention sessions, said: "It's like old-home week coming back here.

"I see the same old reactionaries who are opposed to any change, being backed by a few young people they have trained."

He said excuses that special emergency sessions could not be called were "stupid" and said he and others were prepared to put up delegates to those special sessions and arrange accommodations.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, OCT. 5, 1968—PAGE 23

Blanshard Elementary, set in the Rose-Blanshard reclamation area, may well be closer to the school of the future than any in Greater Victoria. But North Ward, a hang-over from the past, offered a kind of security to its young inmates. A child's world is small, and even though they bring promise of better housing, it is an unsetling thing to watch the bulldozers systematically demolishing that world.

I asked a grade four girl if she liked her new school. "Not as much as North Ward," she told me. An older boy, answered the same question, with a vigorous 'Yes!' He had completed the transition.

However they feel about the change, it is plain that Principal John R. Robertson's charges, kindergarten through grade 7, have come to a good place.

Its 10 classrooms are standard for a modern school—large, bright and airy, with flat-topped desks that make for flexible seating plans.

There's the well-appointed gymnasium which North Ward never had. It doubles as an auditorium. One remedial room and one 'special' room guarantee skilled help for the child who needs it in extra measure.

Blanshard's library, large and uncluttered, was full of sunshine when we looked in on librarian Mrs. Grace Hamlyn. She was busy at one of the shelves, non higher than a child's reach, that line the room, and her fingers lingered on the bright, new book-jackets.

Such books, she told me, coax children to read: Blanshard's reading average in the school's first month works out to well over two books per student.

I had already noted a stuffed and scrawny bald eagle in the principal's office. Other birds — a pelican and a loon among them—graced the library. These venerable fowl were bestowed on North Ward from its feathered overflow by the Provincial Museum at the turn of the century. They are souvenirs fetched over from the old dump.

We come now to the core of the school, the open area where the shape of the future emerges more clearly than anywhere else in this fine and well-staffed plant.

The open area is a room so large that four or more classes (old-vocabulary term for a new idea) can occupy it without the slightest crowding.

At Blanshard, colts of grades four and five crop in this communal pasture. Those are the pivotel years between little kid and grade-sixer hurrying toward adolescence.

In the open area, the sharp outlines of the grades tend to blur. Grade four students of superior ability are not left to the boredom of work that offers them no challenge. You'll find these learning with the grade fives, or forging ahead at their own pace.

When we stopped in, students of four 'Bases' were busy with arithmetic. Here's one boy, plugging along somewhat behind the calss average, but not badgered because his level of accomplishment is lower.

And over here is a young whizz who eats mathematics down like candy. He's already 35 textbook pages ahead of his peers, and working so intently that a visitor draws only the barest glance.

Peter Haylett of Strawberry Vale is co-ordinator of bases. He drifts from one to another, ready with help where needed. He, his principal and the other teachers I met strike me as very keen. The challenge at Blanshard is not all to the students.

Mr. Robertson has been sitting cross legged on the floor, half a dozen kids around him. They are working with what look like flash-cards. He gets up now, and we stroll along a bright corridor toward the foyer with its paper flowers and its 'welcome' sign.

"You know," I said, thinking aloud, "when they're grown, I expect this bunch will make some changes of their own in their community.

"Yes," said John Robertson, principal of the new breed, "Yes, I believe they will."

HEAD START for University of Victoria Sailing Club membership drive was assured when frosh queen Maureen Wills, 18, gave the campaign a push. The first-year physical ed student isn't dressed for sailing but then her sailboat is grounded among compus displays by other clubs which also are seeking members. But with less attractive bait.

Student Rating of Profs 'Not Objective Project'

BOB HIGINBOTHAM
. . . why the fuss?

By BOB MITCHELL
Uvic Correspondent

Two Uvic professors have washed their hands of any responsibility for the student "anti-calendar."

Psychologists Dr. Pam Duncan and Dr. Edward Tryk said the recently-published student evaluation of faculty members was based on non-objective reporting.

In a letter to Uvic's student newspaper, The Martlet, the psychologists said they helped prepare an objective questionnaire and suggested guidelines for interpreting answers.

While the questionnaire submitted to sudents followed the psychologists' recommendations, "the manner in which evaluations were reported in the guidebook did not," the letter states.

The psychologists say inclusion of statements by individual students and the failure to report the number of students who answered each question were instances of non-objective reporting.

"What we're really objecting to here is that the Guidebook editors, with their printed acknowledgement, made it look like we were endorsing the final product when in fact we certainly were not."

Guidebook Editor Bob Higinbotham, who said he didn't know what the fuss was about, said the editors of the book did not feel obligated to go along with all the psychologists recommendations.

"We got the best evaluations from the subjective comments," he added.

PROTESTERS FOLD TENTS AND SILENTLY STEAL AWAY

By ALAN WHITE

Students called a halt to their tent-in on the University of Victoria campus late Friday after deciding they hadn't made their point.

Few of their fellows knew what it was all about and even fewer seemed to care.

About 25 students moved into tents Sunday night to publicize what they termed a lack of low-cost housing. The original eight tents were joined by five more by Thursday.

Only two signs — one reading Housing not Bylaws, the other taking Oak Bay to task for permitting only two boarders per home — indicated what the tents stood for.

One of the protesters complained that most students passed the site in front of the Student Union Building and merely said, "Tents, that's interesting."

Very few of the nearly 5,000 students on campus stopped to ask what was happening, he said.

OFF TO TALKS

Most of those participating in the tent-in decided to strike canvas and head for Vancouver for a weekend conference of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDU) at the city hall there.

This morning, the only tent still standing was the supply tent. One student arrived at about 9:30 to clear out stoves and food and take the tent down. The campus was nearly deserted at the time.

The SDU meeting in Vancouver was called by branches at Simon Fraser University and the University of British Columbia.

The organization was formed last April at Simon Fraser during a period of student upset to foster student power aims in the universities.

It has since spread to other western Canadian campuses. The branch at Uvic is apparently unorganized this year.

$4-$5 Cost Per Home If Hospital Vote 'Yes'

Information Drive To Start Next Week

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The $9.3 million hospital construction vote scheduled for Oct. 26 will cost the average home-owner $4 to $5 a year if approved.

Executive secretary to the Regional Hospital District Board, William Long, said today that details of the massive construction program had proved more difficult to work out than at first thought.

"But by next week a full information campaign should be under way to explain just what the people are voting for," he said.

In the meantime the Times has learned that the $9.3 million being voted on will be pushed closer to $11 million when federal grants are received from Ottawa.

Mr. Long stressed the federal grants do not change the local voting picture or the amount to be raised. Of the $9.3 million in the bylaw the provincial government pays 60 per cent, the district 40 per cent.

"Basically the people throughout the entire district are being asked to approve the expenditure of one mill— or $400,000 — annually for the construction of extended care beds," Mr. Long said.

"It is impossible, of course, to give a precise figure, but it would be safe to say that the annual cost to the average home owner will run between $4 and $5 a year."

The funds raised by a "yes" vote and federal grants will be spent on new construction, renovation of existing hospitals, new equipment, planning for an acute care hospital to be built some time in the future, and land acquisition.

New Construction $8 Million

Final division of the funds has yet to be decided but the approximate division will be as follows:

- New construction for extended care beds $8 million.
- Renovations and new construction for existing hospitals slightly more than $1 million.
- Planning for a new acute care hospital, $250,000.
- Land Acquisition, $150,000.
- New equipment for existing hospitals, $1.4 million.

With various government grants and hospital contributions the total bill to be paid if the referendum is approved will be $10,681,000. But federal government grants of $1,444,000 reduce that figure to $9,247,000 to which is added $53,000 for contingencies to produce the $9.3 million to be voted on by the people.

When it comes to a detailed breakdown on what will be spent where regional district officials admit that as yet they do not know.

"What we are asking on Oct. 26 is that the people give us permission to spend $9.3 million to update and upgrade existing hospitals and build new extended care beds to relieve a serious bed shortage," says North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming.

"No plans have yet been drawn, no details on how many beds should go where or how much existing hospitals should get, have yet been finalized," Mayor Cumming added.

"We were faced with a choice of going to the people this year or delaying the entire program for another 12 months — and such a delay would be disastrous.

"What we are asking on Oct. 26 is that the people give us permission to launch a construction program within the framework of the $9.3 million. And I can assure them that they will be well informed on the subsequent steps to be taken."

Mayor Cumming admitted that the lack of detailed planning was causing some concern on the north end of the Saanich Peninsula.

"The people out here are quite worried and more than a little fearful that if they go for this bylaw they will be left high and dry when it comes to hospital needs," he said. "It is a fear we must try and overcome before Oct. 26."

200-Bed Extended Care Hospital

At the last meeting of the regional hospital district board plans for construction were advanced by the board's sub-committee on priorities.

The first followed closely the recommendations of the Agnew Peckham report on hospitals and health services. The second was advanced by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and resulted in the same number of extended care beds to be built but also in different distribution.

Recommendation number one suggested:

- A new 200 extended care bed hospital to replace Mount St. Mary.
- A new 200-bed extended care bed hospital on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.
- A new building to house 150 extended care beds at the Gorge Road Hospital.
- And 20 extended care beds for the Lady Minto Hospital, Ganges.

When presented to Mr. Loffmark the minister countered with the suggestion that the plan neglected development of Rest Haven Hospital near Sidney.

The priorities committee suggested that the number of beds planned for Mount St. Mary and St. Mary's Priory be reduced by 50 beds on each project and that a 100 bed extended care unit plus a 50-bed acute care unit be built in the School District 63 area, presumably at Rest Haven.

The suggestion brought the rebuke from regional board chairman Hugh Curtis that he "was sorry the minister had brought forward this suggestion on the eve of the referendum."

The sub-committee on priorities took a more positive view by endorsing the minister's suggestion.

"The sub-committee on priorities, when considering this new development, recognized that it was the request from the minister that we co-operate in establishing a pilot plant in this neighborhood which he stated would have close and sympathetic surveillance from his department.

"Under these circumstances the committee on priorities might be justified in making a recommendation at this time to the effect that we approve of this experiment."

But the regional board didn't feel that way. Led by Mayor Hugh Stephen it voted merely to receive the report and the various recommendations but to take no positive action on either.

WEATHER? EVEN DUCKS HEAD SOUTH

Victorians who enjoyed the recent balmy weather will exchange sunglasses for oil-skins next week.

The benevolent ridge of high pressure that was shielding the area has moved away and weather conditions over the next week will be "unsettled," the weatherman said today.

Showers are expected Sunday and Monday with a general clearing Tuesday, but Wednesday will bring more rain.

Vaccine Here For Newest Flu

Limited supplies of a new vaccine against Hong Kong flu are available in Canada on a priority basis.

This was disclosed in Victoria Friday by Dr. T. J. Bailey, assistant medical health officer.

He advised local residents who feel themselves in less than robust health to contact their own doctors for individual protection.

"Young healthy fit adults should be fairly backwards about coming forward," he said.

Dr. Bailey was commenting on reports from the United States that American health experts and drug companies are rushing plans and production of a new vaccine against Hong Kong flu, a variant of the usual kind.

The new flu is believed to be different enough that vaccines effective against the usual A2 type of flu virus would be almost worthless against the newcomer.

A heavy bout of the new flu is expected to strike North America this winter. It was identified in Hong Kong and Macao in July where it struck 500,000 people.

Although 26 deaths were reported from Hong Kong, it is not regarded as "killer" although it has been widespread in numbers of persons struck by it.

Dr. Bailey said there have been "lots of reports" of people with flu in Victoria. The type of flu they have has not yet been classified to see if it is the Hong Kong kind. This process takes time and there must be enough "flus" to make a summary.

The rate of flu striking people is so erratic that it was difficult to say at this time whether it is out of line.

He also said that because Hong Kong flu is a new strain, a variation on a known kind of flu virus, existing vaccines will have some general effect against the newcomer but no specific effect.

"The laboratory sources of these vaccines are working to prepare a new component which will be specific against the new flu," he said.

"It is being done in Canada and limited supplies are now available—in very small quantities."

Asked how severe the Hong Kong flu is, Dr. Bailey said "at the moment it seems to be mild. But we have no guarantee it will remain mild."

Innocent Ones Urged to Fight

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson urged motorists who receive traffic violation notices to fight "if you think you are not guilty."

Early public reaction to the new system, in which there are no fines for minor violations, has been "very encouraging," he said Friday, but reminded drivers that an accumulation of demerit points can lead to licence suspension.

A driver who thinks demerits for an alleged offence are unjustified "should seriously consider entering a dispute."

If a dispute is not lodged with the court in seven days after notice of offence is received, the report is sent to the B.C. motor vehicles branch and forms part of a driver's record.

Ask The Times

Q. How long does an American citizen have to be resident in Canada to marry a Canadian citizen, where do you go for a licence and can a female obtain a licence?—B.G.

A. According to the Vital Statistics Department, there is no required "period of residence" as such. American citizens wishing to marry Canadians may apply at any time. Once application has been made, the waiting period is about two weeks if banns are published or three clear days in the case of a civil ceremony. Licence application may be made in the Division of Vital Statistics, west wing, main building, Legislative Buildings, by a man or woman. The Department of Immigration points out that in order to reside in Canada, application for "landed immigrant" status must be made, preferably at the port of entry into the country.

UVIC POLITICAL FORUM

Yippie Leader Invited

Hippies, yippies, new-leftists and possibly a member of Seattle's Black Panthers will address Uvic's Political Science Forum in the next few months.

Not least among them is Mark Rudd, leader of the student revolt at Columbia University during April and May.

He is scheduled to speak later this month, and will be followed shortly by Jerry Rubins, national leader of the Yippie Party, which leaped to international renown during the Democratic Party's August convention in Chicago.

Originally billed to speak early in October was Realist magazine editor Paul Krassner. Forum spokesman Keith Thompson said Krassner's engagement has been postponed to November due to his detention in the United States by the House Committee on Unamerican Activities.

The forum will start the new term off with a bang in January when Herbert Marcuse, leader of the New Left in California, arrives on campus.

Justice Minister John Turner has promised to speak if he is on the west coast during the new year.

The Forum also hopes to bring in representatives of the Seattle Black Panthers, but that engagement will depend on whether the Panthers can persuade border officials to let them into Canada, Mr. Thompson said.

YOUNGEST DELEGATE at the B.C. Liberal convention in Penticton, Gina Janak, 12, caused an uproar and a vote on the floor of the convention when she presented her credentials Friday. An attempt to have her ousted was nullified when delegates voted 216 to 209, not to restrict delegates to persons over the age of 16. Gina, a Grade 8 Tsawwassen student, has signed up 19 adults to membership since she became a member eight months ago. She was the first delegate selected by the Delta group.

Northern Justice Attacked

PENTICTON (CP) — A Prince George lawyer told a British Columbia Liberal party convention Friday that administration of justice in northern parts of the province "stinks."

Delegate Alan Bate, who said he practises criminal law, was speaking during a convention session on human rights.

"The administration of justice in many areas of this province stinks," said Mr. Bate. "I can tell you I would not like to be an Indian person living in parts of B.C."

Mr. Bate said he has the greatest respect for the majority of policemen, but they tend to take sides when it comes to legal or criminal problems involving the Indian population.

JUST SOCIETY

"I'm afraid we'll content ourselves with phrases such as the just society instead of reality," said the lawyer. "I'm afraid there really is no just society in matters such as this."

Mr. Bate said appointment of full-time county prosecutors across the province would go a long way to resolving injustices. He said no one but fully qualified persons should be allowed to handle prosecutions on serious criminal charges.

Another lawyer, John Bouck of Vancouver, said the same general principles should apply in civil law as in criminal. He said archaic court procedures bog down the courts with "traps, difficulties and pitfalls."

He said one of the most obvious inequalities in civil law is the fact that in British Columbia, the crown in the person of the provincial government cannot be sued by private citizens.

Lawyer John Caldwell of Campbell River, said now that the government has enacted medicare, it should give serious consideration to "legicare" — legal aid services.

PENTICTON—Vancouver MLA Dr. Pat McGeer held a commanding lead here this afternoon as delegates cast ballots to select a new leader for the B.C. Liberal party.

Dr. McGeer's supporters gave their 41-year-old choice a likely 70 per cent win over fellow Vancouver MLA Garde Gardom, 44, his only opponent.

Both candidates represent urban-rich Vancouver-Point Grey in the legislature but they stand at the fore of a party with a total of only six seats—behind the 32 Socreds and 17 New Democrats.

McGEER
. . . wide margin

But whoever wins will carry with him a new party constitution that the provincial executive hopes will democratize the party and give it a healthier chance when Premier Bennett decides to take another fling at the polls.

1,500 AT MEETING

Lawrence Jolivet, outgoing provincial president, said today the 1,500 delegates, guests and spectators at the convention are evidence of the new and vital spirit the new leader will have behind him.

Mr. Jolivet said the convention is "the largest the Liberals have had since British Columbian entered Confederation."

He declined to comment on who he thought would succeed 42-year-old Ray Perrault in the leadership. Mr. Perrault resigned after sweeping national NDP leader T. C. Douglas out of the federal Burnaby-Seymour riding in June.

A McGeer campaigner said "We're extremely confident. We've detected some slippage during the last 24 hours, but we expected this since we went into the convention with a pretty substantial majority of delegates behind us."

STILL HOPEFUL

But a spokesman for Mr. Gardom, a lawyer who upset former Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the 1966 provincial election, was still hopeful, predicting the winning majority would be 52 to 55 per cent — for Mr. Gardom.

One of the province's leading Liberals confided that while it "certainly" looks like Dr. McGeer would win, "it is a real race."

"Gardom has been working very, very hard," he said and added indications that Mr. Gardom had entered the race merely as token competition were "simply not true."

Dr. McGeer, director of the Kinsmen Laboratory of Neurological Research at UBC, was first elected to the legislature in a 1962 byelection.

CROWD "SIGNIFICANT"

Allan Cox, winner of the Oak Bay byelection this summer, exulted in the turnout at the convention. "The fact that there are overflow delegations from all areas — not just Vancouver

Laing To Go In Shakeup?

OTTAWA (CP) — Rumors of a spring cabinet shakeup are circulating on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be dissatisfied with the performance of some of his ministers and, informants said Friday, is already canvassing means of bringing some new faces into his administration.

A cabinet shuffle could be started by the departure of two veteran ministers—Solicitor-General George McIlraith and Works Minister Arthur Laing.

Canada Requests France To Team Up in Space Work

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp Friday made specific proposals to Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France for Canadian-French co-operation in space research.

Sharp, speaking later to reporters, said this co-operation could include space communications, among other things.

MAY SHARE RESEARCH

"We have facilities which we could use in common and we could share our experiences in technological research," said Sharp, who said Debre had taken the Canadian proposal under consideration.

The ministers also discussed, in general terms, the prospects for cultural co-operation, the most appropriate course for the West to take on the Czechoslovakian problem, and the efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

The General Assembly heard a plea from Czechoslovakia's acting foreign minister to let his country's future be determined within the Soviet-dominated Eastern European Communist bloc.

Vaclav Pleskot appealed for understanding of Czechoslovakia's situation. The 125-member assembly was asked to "do nothing that would be in conflict with the wish of the government of Czechoslovakia looking toward a settlement of the present situation on the basis of the Moscow talks."

Full airing of the Czechoslovak situation at the UN is not likely to be stopped by Pleskot's appeal.

Homers Give Cardinals Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Tim McCarver and Orlando Cepeda each lashed a three-run homer and led St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-3 victory over Detroit Tigers today in the World Series, giving the Cardinals a 2-1 lead in games.

Lou Brock ran the Tigers dizzy with three stolen bases, tying a record, and stroked three singles in the Cards' 13-hit attack on a long string of Tiger pitchers.

With St. Louis are Bob Gibson, the 17-strikeout hero of the opener, ready to face 31-game winner Denny McLain in another showdown battle Sunday, the victory moved the National League champs into command.

Oil Firm Takeover Hinted by Junta

LIMA (AP)—The military leaders who overthrew the Peruvian government nullified Friday night a disputed contract with a United States oil firm and said government officials responsible for it would be "brought to justice."

The U.S. diplomatic mission remained in the country, but a state department spokesman in Washington said the uncertainty brought about by the coup had caused a suspension of U.S.-Peru diplomatic relations. He said the suspension was not the same as a formal break in relations.

The military leaders did not name the officials it considered responsible for the contract with International Petroleum Corp., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Ousted President Fernando Belaunde Terry helped draw up the agreement which gave back to the government oil fields in northern Peru that had been operated by IPC since 1924.

SEE DOLLAR LEAK

He was criticized by opposition members of parliament who said the contract made no provision for hundreds of millions of dollars IPC had taken from the country in resources.

The military leaders used the oil dispute as a pretext for taking power Thursday. Observers believe Gen. Juan Velasco, the army chief of staff who heads the "revolutionary government," is considering a complete takeover of the firm's assets.

In New York, a spokesman for Standard Oil said a satisfactory contract had been reached with the Belaunde government and no money was owed outside the contract.

Belaunde, in exile in Buenos Aires, said he would travel Sunday to Chile or Bolivia, countries bordering Peru, and await a call "to go back and fight."

Asked about charges of corruption in his regime, Belaunde said:

"I am willing to return to my country and submit myself to a trial to verify my assets. I can say emphatically that I came out of the government poorer than I went in."

In Washington, the U.S. government and other Western hemisphere nations held talks on recognition of the new military regime.

'Liberation' Force Threatens Mexico

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Gunfighting in Mexico City took two more lives Friday—a passerby and then the sniper who shot him—and a letter signed by a group calling itself the "Army of Liberation" threatened a "large military operation" against the government.

Police meanwhile announced that four persons, one of them a Canadian, were arrested as being among "foreign elements" and local guerrillas who supported students in their fight against the government.

A Canadian embassy spokesman Friday night confirmed that a Canadian had been detained for questioning, but declined to identify him. Police identified him as Otto Hans Zoeller, 32, but gave no hometown.

The embassy spokesman said no charges had been laid against him.

In Friday night's incident, the sniper, firing from an apartment building across from the foreign ministry headquarters, killed a 35-year-old passerby with a shot in the head and wounded a 21-year-old man in the arm. Witnesses said the sniper apparently was aiming at a soldier.

Army marksmen returned the fire and a few minutes later the sniper was carried out dead.

The statement of the Liberation Army was distributed Friday, but was dated Sept. 28, four days before the big gunfight Wednesday between troops and snipers that left at least 29 persons dead.

Referring to the Olympic Games scheduled to open in the Mexican capital next Saturday, it said:

"We decline all responsibility for what could happen to those who come to a country that, in fact, finds itself in full civil war."

It recommended that "the foreign public not come to the Olympics because, although under no circumstances will athletes be attacked, it will be necessary to carry out a large military operation against the government in the inaugural act and others later."

B.C. EMPLOYEES SHUN UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — People employed by the B.C. government were told Friday they are "working stiffs who are not earning the money they should be."

R. W. McMaster, a liquor Control Board employee, also told the opening session of the Government Employees Association convention that the association should change its name.

He said the word "association" has brought nothing in the last 25 years and the word "union" should be incorporated in its place.

However, a resolution that would have changed the name to the union of B.C. provincial employees was defeated 51-48.

A second blow to the militants came when a bid to delete a section of the organization's constitution was turned down.

The section instructs members to: "co-operate with the government in establishing and maintaining the highest degree of efficiency and service to the public, free from political and personal patronage and discrimination."

"This is a company union clause," BCGEA executive member O. A. Pederson told delegates.

"It has been mis-used time and time again by our employers, the provincial government.

"Let's be loyal eight hours a day and be paid for it and outside of that let's be union people and fight for our rights."

But when the convention voted on the resolution, which the resolutions committee urged be rejected, it was defeated.

"We were a trade union for just about 10 minutes there," commented one delegate.

The resolutions committee recommended non-concurrence on the first 12 resolutions placed before the convention.

Among those defeated was one which would allow calling of special convention sessions in the event BCGEA branches approve such a convention call by a 60 per cent vote.

R. L. Lavigne, a delegate from the Essondale branch, told the convention he was appearing at his first convention after a nine-year absence.

Mr. Lavigne, who backed the motion for special convention sessions, said: "It's like old-home week coming back here.

"I see the same old reactionaries who are opposed to any change, being backed by a few young people they have trained."

He said excuses that special emergency sessions could not be called were "stupid" and said he and others were prepared to put up delegates to these special sessions and arrange accommodations.

Cliches Avoided On 'Kafkaesque' Hotel Empress

NO PASSPORT, A DISCOVERY OF CANADA, by Eugene Cloutier. Translated by Joyce Marshall. Oxford University Press, $3.95.

Reviewed by Joan Coldwell.

A French-Canadian takes a look at Canada. But for once it is not a political look, not obtrusively so anyway.

Eugene Cloutier, a novelist and broadcaster, simply travelled the land from coast to coast and recorded what he saw and heard, attempting with his pen something of what Roloff Beny achieved with the camera. Two volumes of his impressions were published in French in 1967; this English translation is an abridgement of that work.

M. Cloutier never lets us forget that he is French-Canadian, though. There is a tedious harping on the lack of gourmet restaurants in the west, a constant nostalgia for Quebec as a culinary mecca.

On the other hand, one of the most interesting aspects of the book is the way the author noses out small French settlements, such as Domremy, Saskatchewan, and the parish of St. Sacrement, Vancouver, discovering to his own surprise that "anyone who applied himself to it could travel from Vancouver to Halifax without leaving French-Canadian milieux."

As good a test as any for a travel writer is what he has to say about Victoria, especially when he stays at the Empress.

Made for 'Wrinkled Queens'?

Here M. Cloutier avoids most of the cliches and the sentimentality. He speculates wonderingly on the origin of the "unbelievably high-backed armchairs . . . conceived to hold old wrinkled queens or the witches of Salem" in the "Kafkaesque corridors" of the hotel; he describes a Mothers' Day dinner there, with devastatingly accurate comment on the waitresses, and chooses to catch the atmosphere of Victoria society by telling of a man who had nurtured an ambition to retire here "and still had not managed to convince himself that his dream was now a reality."

Part of the author's route covers familiar territory and what he has to say about such places as Banff and the Rockies is what most of us have said at one time or another. But he also takes us to unusual places, just as representative of Canada; what stays in my mind most of all is his tour of the vast abattoirs near St. Boniface, a scene for a novel surely or a Marienbad kind of film.

M. Cloutier has interesting things to say about people he meets, as diverse as the young Indian Mr. Wednesday in the Yukon and the millionaire patron of the arts who heads Intercontinental Packers.

'Pass By. Little Gods at Work.'

One begins to sense the truth of his remark that "this country is a paradise of personalities" where "the practice of the exceptional" is natural and commonplace. "Every day I had been told fantastic stories in the tone used to describe banal incidents to which one attaches no importance." Very apt, but the final flourish, flattering though it is, spoils the illusion: "One might place signs at every instant: "Pass by. Little Gods at Work."

Let us hope that came off better in the French. There are times, indeed, where the translation lets this book down, unfortunately worst of all in the opening pages.

This is not a great travel book; there is bound to be something artificial about setting out with paper and pencil to research and annotate, and the author certainly does not carry out his claim of "seeing others live without being seen."

But it is interesting, amusing and informative and its conclusions about the national identity and the provincial failing of narcissism are worth thinking about.

Imperialist With a Heart Who Hated His Sworn Duty

REMEMBER BUTLER by Edward McCourt. McClelland Stewart, 276 pages, $6.50.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Edward McCourt, the author of Remember Butler, is professor of English at the University of Saskatchewan. He has written a number of novels and books about the Canadian West.

In this work he turns his attention to the life of Sir William Butler, the Victorian soldier and writer, who lived from 1838 to 1910. A very human figure emerges out of the outlines of what might at first appear to be a typical 19th Century imperialist.

For Canadians, the most interesting section of the biography is apt to be that dealing with Butler's years in Canada. As intelligence officer with Colonel Wolseley during the first Riel Rebellion of 1869-70, Butler seems to have fallen in love with Western Canada from the moment he arrived in the Red River Settlement. He saw in the vast unpopulated areas of the prairies an answer to the problems of overpopulation and undernourishment plaguing Europe and particularly his native Ireland.

LOVE FOR SPACES

Butler spent only a few years as a young man in Western Canada, but from those years came a number of important results. From his report on conditions in the West, commissioned by the Canadian Government, came the founding of the North-West Mounted Police.

His adventures and travels are recorded in two remarkable books, The Great Lone Land and The Wild North Land. In both he reveals his love for the great open spaces of the west, his admiration for the natives who lived with dignity and freedom in a climate often cruel, and much of his own penchant for the active life which his magnificent physique made possible.

William Butler may have desired to remain in Canada, but as a career soldier he could find few opportunities in the emerging nation.

LIKED ENEMY

He had already served with the British Army in India. He went on to serve in Africa, in the Ashanti and Zulu Wars; he also fought in the Sudan, where he organized the Nile River Flotilla in 1885 in an attempt to save General Gordon at Khartoum. Later in 1898 he became commander-in-chief of the British Forces in South Africa, but his sympathy for the Boers caused him to relinquish the position and return to Britain.

Beneath this outline of action, McCourt creates a fully rounded character, warm and humane. Butler was opposed to the imperialism he was sworn as a soldier to uphold; he was aghast at the poverty and suffering of the natives of India and Africa who were often the victims of that imperialism.

MILITARY REFORMER

Butler was also a military reformer, discontented with the established procedures of buying commissions and profiteering on war supplies. He fought a running battle with the establishment over questions of training and armament. He seldom won any victories, but history has vindicated his judgment.

Remember Butler is a well written, attractive book. It contains many illustrations, some of them from Butler's own works; others are reproductions of his wife's paintings, for Butler was married to Elizabeth Thompson, one of the most popular artists of the Victorian age. When she married Butler, she was already an established painter of military subjects.

McCourt shows little nostalgia for an age that is past. Inevitably, however, many readers will be led to make a contrast between the many opportunities open to a young man in the 19th Century and the vastly different situation facing the youth of the 20th.

Veering Back and Forth From Pomposity to Whimsy

THE STORIES OF ERIC LINKLATER, MacMillan, $5.95.

This new book of Eric Linklater's published short stories makes uneven but frequently entertaining reading.

Twice, in his preface, the author assures the reader that he will find great variety in the selection, but the stories tend to fall into two main categories. "Kind Kitty" and "Joy as it Flies" are set in Edinburgh and Dublin respectively and rely heavily, as do many of the stories on local color. They make fairly entertaining reading, even if all the characters are not totally believable. Other stories in the collection reflect Linklater's preoccupation with fairy tale and myth.

WITTY ACCOUNT

"Sealskin Trousers" is a witty account of the disturbing effects of a Silkie, a type of merman, upon the life of a Scottish college girl. The difficulty with many of these near-fairy tales is that Linklater's style seems peculiarly inappropriate for this genre.

He veers so suddenly from pomposity to whimsy and back again that one is constantly rereading sentences to catch their meaning. In "God likes them Plain," however, he successfully presents an original fairy tale with great wit and simplicity. Unfortunately, in most of the stories, the whimsy tends to outweigh the wit, though this will not deter Linklater's more staunch admirers.—G.T.

Divining a Tedious Array of Dreams

Reviewed by Lionel Adey

Mr. Kelsey is an Episcopalian priest with considerable first-hand knowledge of the teachings of Jung. He maintains a counselling clinic at his church. His object in writing this book is to awaken the interest of his fellow-Christians in the religious and therapeutic value of dreams.

To this end, he gives a detailed history of the significance of dreams in Old and New testaments and throughout the Christian era. The book concludes with a discussion of the Freudian and Jungian views of dreaming, and some sensibly cautious advice upon interpretation.

The author's thesis, though acceptable enough in pre-medieval times, before the rationalistic philosophy of Aristotle had been officially endorsed by the Roman church, is startlingly out of fashion today.

UNSEEN AGENCY

It is that the numerous well-authenticated cases of dreams of present or future events, of which the subject could not have known, are evidence of an unseen agency which thus communicates in symbolic form with men. In these days when the believer in any form of religion has difficulty in persuading the humanist to listen, let alone to agree, such a case is not to be maintained without a great deal of evidence.

A great deal of evidence is given, but is not well-handled. The long survey of dreams in biblical and Christian times is tediously repetitive and in places quite fragmentary. One has no sense of a coherent argument moving towards a conclusion.

PROPHETIC DREAM

This is a pity, as some of the modern episodes, the prophetic dreams of an American general during the last war, or the intuitive leaps of Einstein, are informative as well as convincing. The book is badly in need of better organization.

This is a work of learning, not one of those gossipy books which seek to establish by a multitude of modern anecdotes that can act as warnings or portents. Certainly there is need of a sound body of theory to account for such phenomena, which are difficult to reconcile with the rather superficial materialism widely current today.

Unfortunately, one feels that Mr. Kelsey has not succeeded in presenting a coherent theory because he has set out not to discover or to explore meanings but to state a conviction quite early on and to confirm it over and over again. He has learned enough, but thought too little.

Frank Talk on Bicultural 'Sucker's Game'

AN OPTION FOR QUEBEC, by Rene Levesque, McClelland and Stewart Ltd., 128 pages, $2.95.

Reviewed by Alan Forrest

Few western Canadians are likely to be seduced by the powerful oratory or vivid writings of moderate separatist Rene Levesque.

But it is difficult not to be entranced.

As one French-Canadian remarked: "Most of us do not agree with Monsieur Levesque but we like to listen to him."

Similarly An Option for Quebec makes fascinating reading even if his highly-charged exhortations about Quebec "rights" leave the reader unconvinced.

An Option for Quebec, translated from the original French, is only half the effort of Levesque (pronounced Levek). But it is the interesting half. The rest of the 128 pages are devoted to quotations from other sources which Levesque has selected to back up his arguments.

Always arguing from a whirlpool of emotion, Levesque uses language as rugged as it is frank.

Prime Minister Trudeau's plan for bicultural rights across Canada?

"It's a sucker's game," says Mr. Levesque.

No matter what language rights are granted to them, the young people are going to learn English so they can make large salaries in an English-speaking province.

Pockets of French-Canadians outside Quebec are victims of "galloping assimilation," he says.

The real action is in Quebec where French can become the working language of the province by provincial government decree.

This is the core of the French fact in Canada, he says. The French Canadians are different from other minority groups not because of their numbers or because of historical rights, but by virtue of their control over a provincial government.

. . . easily entrances

Canada would have to deal with the Chinese fact, if Chinese-Canadians controlled the British Columbia government, and with Ukrainians if they were in charge in Manitoba.

But they don't.

French Canadians run Quebec and the rest of Canada must come to terms with this fact, he says.

And the terms will be pretty steep.

KEEP CLOSE TIES

But (expressive Levesque shrug) Quebec is willing to be reasonable.

It's all open to negotiation starting with the threat of separation and ending with political and linguistic sovereignty for Quebec but retaining close economic ties with the rest of Canada.

Mr. Levesque's biggest problem is trying to answer charges that Quebec would lose more money than it would gain if it opted out of federal cost-sharing programs.

His arguments on this score are frantic but none too convincing.

He concludes that Quebec could get along without Canada just as much as British Columbia could.

But while he feels Quebec separation is logical he finds Premier Bennett's hints that B.C. could pull out any time is "a pose as amusing as it is profitable."

Love in Bar or Barge

SELECTED POEMS, 1956-1968, by Leonard Cohen: McClelland & Stewart: Cloth $5.95, Paper $2.50. Reviewed by Donna Smyth.

Leonard Cohen makes poems, novels, films, and the hit parade. As a writer, he seems to have captured that most elusive chimera on the Canadian scene—commercial success and popularity.

His two novels, especially The Beautiful Losers (1966), have both shocked and delighted his audience with their verbal fecundity and with their lyrical, satirical obsession with sex. Those readers who object to his prose listen with dignified impunity to lovely folk-songs such as Suzanne Takes You Down. Even the National Film Board of Canada has gotten into the act by producing a documentary film about the man and his work.

Finally, Cohen's poetry, previously published in four slim volumes, seems to appeal to a surprisingly diversified audience who award him the accolades of "cool, with it, and swinging."

Just how and why he swings is a matter of personal taste but part of the answer may lie in this volume of Selected Poems, 1956-1968. In addition to 20 new poems, the selection includes some of his earlier works, beginning with Let Us Compare Mythologies and ending with Parasites of Heaven. The collection thus offers the advantage of viewing Cohen's variety of moods and styles as part of the development of the whole man. The general impression is one of quiet, personal charm expressed through the simplicity and condensation of the lyric voice.

More directly than most contemporary poets, Cohen seems to be talking with the reader; the poet is confessing his humanity and somehow waiting for the response:

like mirrors in a movie palace lobby consulted only on the day out
like a nymphomaniac who
brotherhood
I wait
for each one of you to confess

The apparently casual conversational tone and diction belie a tight control of form ranging through songs and ballads to free verse. Quite frequently, Cohen, like Auden, will play form against content, as in Ballad:

My lady was found mutilated
in a Mountain Street
boarding house
My lady was a tall slender
love
like one of Tennyson's girls,
and you always imagined
her erect on a thoroughbred
in someone's private forest.
But there she was naked on an old bed, knife
slashes across her breasts,
legs badly cut up:
Dead two days.

Also apparent here is the intensity of experience, often raw and painful, balanced with a wry irony which is characteristic of Cohen's attitude to life and art.

Several of the poems spring from the poet's attempts to understand and come to terms with his background as a Jewish writer born in Montreal. The haunting burden of Belsen and Dachau, the collective wisdom and suffering of 2,000 years weigh upon him yet form an integral part of his awareness. The search for order and meaning outside his traditional faith is more evident in the prose poem, Lines From My Grandfather's Journal:

Prayer makes speech a ceremony. To observe this ritual in the absence of arks, altars, a listening sky; this is a rich discipline.

The discipline of form, the ritual of poetry seem to replace the lost priesthood, and Cohen celebrates at the altar of human rather than divine love:

You have the lovers,
they are nameless, their histories only for each other
and you have the room, the bed and the windows.
Pretend it is a ritual.

Love is the movement of people toward one another in a hotel-room, a bar, or a barge on the river with the secret of salvation in Suzanne. The poet "studies to describe the lover he cannot become" and the message on the wall is:

Maria
please find me
I am almost thirty.

COHEN

CHITTY CHITTY, BANG BANG, THE MAGICAL CAR, by Ian Fleming. Pan Books, 1968, 153 pp., sketches. $1.10.

The late Ian Fleming was clearly a man of versatile imagination. This book brings together the three fine tales he wrote about an old sports car with real character.

Purists will complain that this 8-litre, 12-cylinder Paragon Panther bears no resemblance to the three real Chitty Bang Bangs of the early 1920's. (One of those fabulous English cars had a 300-h.p., 23-litre Maybach aircraft engine and could go 113 mph. However, Fleming's Chitty can fly, and does other ingenious things, by way of rewarding the Pott family for having restored her.

A splendid book for 8-10-year-old boys, if they can get it away from father.—R.G.L.

BLUES UPSET

Nats Rate Look

By The Canadian Press

If the National Hockey League ever expands again, a candidate for membership might be Canada's national team.

The nationals showed pro class Friday night, beating St. Louis Blues 3-1 to sweep a two-game exhibition series against the NHL club, Stanley Cup finalists last season.

The Blues, beaten 5-4 by the nationals Wednesday, yanked veteran goalie Jacques Plante with 20 seconds left in Friday's game in an attempt to beat the pesky Canadians.

But the move backfired when Gerry Pinder slapped the puck into the empty net. Bob Birdsell, a rookie, fired the winner late in the game past Plante, who is making a comeback with St. Louis after a sparkling career with Montreal Canadiens.

Defenceman Gary Young got Canada's other goal. Larry Keenan scored for St. Louis.

WIN FOR NHL

In other pre-season exhibition games involving NHL teams, New York Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Kitchener, Ont., Oakland Seals and Los Angeles Kings tied 1-1 at Kingston, Ont., Detroit Red Wings trimmed Minnesota North Stars 5-2 at Duluth, Minn., Montreal Canadiens crushed Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League 9-3 at Cleveland, and Philadelphia Flyers trounced Quebec Aces of the AHL 7-1 at Halifax.

Oakland's pre-season undefeated skein remained intact with the tie against Los Angeles. The Seals now have won six and tied three.

Ted Hampson gave Oakland the tie with a late goal and Eddie Joyal was the Kings' scorer.

Rod Gilbert, Ron Stewart and Wayne Rivers were the New York scorers in the game played before 5,500 Kitchener fans. Ken Wharram scored a third-period goal for Chicago, spoiling a shutout bid by Ed Giacomin who blocked 29 shots in the New York nets.

BEAT NORTH STARS

Detroit rapped across four goals in the third period to beat the North Stars who had to face a barrage of 53 shots from the Red Wings. Detroit scorers were Pete Mahovlich, Nick Libbett, Pete Stemkowski, Frank Mahovlich and Bruce MacGregor.

Andre Boudrias and Milan Marcetta scored for Minnesota. Marcetta's goal came on a second-period penalty shot after Red Wings goalie Roger Crozier was injured, not seriously. Roy Edwards, his replacement, was the victim of Marcetta's goal.

Mickey Redmond and Ralph Backstrom each scored three goals to pace the Canadiens.

VAUGHAN TRAPP . . . easy winner

Vaughan Breezes To Victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, a Canadian pro golf tour competitor this year, Friday shot a two-under-par 70 for a winning total of 138 in the British Columbia assistant pro tournament.

Trapp, assistant to his father Paul at Victoria Golf Club, carded three birdies and an eagle as he defeated Doug Reid of Vancouver Club by four strokes. Trapp shot 68 Thursday.

In third place was Ron Willey of Vancouver Marine Drive with 74-72—146. Reid had rounds of 70-72 on the Capilano course, playing short and hit by light rain Friday afternoon.

Trapp's eagle three came on the 445-yard 10th hole. He hit the green with his second shot and holed a 20-foot putt.

Gerry Chatelain placed fourth with 76-71—147. Laurie Lyons of Capilano was co-leader with Trapp Friday at 70 with an eagle three on the 453-yard first hole but placed fifth with a total of 148.

U.S. Retains World Honors

MELBOURNE (AP) — The United States today retained the women's world amateur golf championship, finishing the 72-hole event with a total of 616, five shots ahead of Australia. France, with 222, was third.

Sweden was fourth with 638 and Canada fifth with 643.

Best individual score was posted by France's Catherine Lacoste, whose four-round aggregate of 307 was one stroke better than Marea Hickey of Australia.

The U.S. team successfully defended the Espirito Santo Trophy it won two years ago in Mexico.

Each team of the 24 competing countries had three members and the two aggregates counted toward the championship.

GIRL WITHDRAWS

Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., and Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., each shot an 81 today. Gayle Hitchens Borthwick of Ancaster, Ont., who had shot an 80 Friday, withdrew after the 14th hole because of illness in the final round.

Shelley Hamlin of the U.S. finished in third place in the individual placings with a 309 total. Jane Bastanchury of the U.S. was fourth with 312.

Miss Palmer had a total of 321 for the best Canadian aggregate. She shot a 78 in the opening round and 81s in each of the three following rounds.

Mrs. Moore finished at 85-83-79-81—328. Mrs. Borthwick was 80-85-80 in the three rounds she played.

TO MINNESOTA

Tigers Chase Lions

By The Associated Press

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, two baseball teams, have chased Detroit Lions out of town, but it will be up to another National Football League team, Minnesota Vikings, to stop the Lions.

And that's something Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers couldn't do.

The Lions-Vikings game originally was scheduled to be played in Detroit Sunday, but because of the World Series it will be played at Minnesota.

So, the home-field advantage switches to the Vikings, but they will need more than that to stop a Detroit team which, after being smashed by Dallas in the season opener, trounced Chicago 42-0 and upset Green Bay 23-17.

FIRST-PLACE TIE

The two victories moved Detroit in a first-place tie in the Central Division with Minnesota, which lost to Chicago after beating Atlanta Falcons and Green Bay.

In other NFL action, Pittsburgh, 0-3, is at Cleveland tonight, while on Sunday Green Bay, 1-2, is at Atlanta, 0-3; Chicago, 1-2, is at Baltimore, 3-0; San Francisco, 2-1, is at Los Angeles, 3-0; Dallas, 3-0, is at St. Louis, 1-2; New Orleans, 1-2, is at New York 3-0, and Philadelphia, 0-3, is at Washington, 1-2.

LUCCI RETURNS

Detroit's defence, which intercepted eight Chicago passes and then stopped Green Bay's machine-like attack, will be made even stronger with the expected return of linebacker Mike Lucci. Bill Munson will again quarterback the Lions. Gary Cuozzo, who relieved Joe Kapp, a former quarterback with British Columbia Lions, and hit on all of four of his passes against Chicago, probably will see more action at quarterback for Minnesota.

JETS PLAY TONIGHT

In the American League, Curley Johnson, kicking specialist for the New York Jets, will learn how the other half lives tonight.

Because of an injury to Pete Lammons, Johnson will be starting at tight end in addition to handling his regular kicking chores when the Jets meet San Diego Chargers in one of two AFL games scheduled tonight. In the other, Kansas City Chiefs play the Bills at Buffalo.

Sunday's schedule has Cincinnati at Denver, Boston at Oakland and Miami at Houston.

Matlin With Pilots

SEATTLE (AP)—Lew Matlin, general manager of the Pacific Coast League Vancouver Mounties since 1964, was named director of stadium operations by the new Seattle Pilots of the American Baseball League.

Richmond Rider Barred for Life

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Racing Commission has suspended jockey Bill Skuse for life, it was reported Friday.

The commission acted on the recommendation of the Exhibition Park board of stewards, which had found Skuse guilty of seven violations of racing rules following an investigation earlier this month into alleged race-fixing.

Skuse, 29, of suburban Richmond, was not present at the hour-long hearing.

J. A. Carr, lawyer for Skuse, had received instructions to plead guilty to the violations.

Commission chairman Glen McDonald said Skuse has the right to apply for reinstatement at any time.

The commission is to hear next week a similar appeal by jockey Dennis Terry against a five-year suspension recommended by the stewards.

Stars Trip Vikings In Opening Battle

All-stars packed a little too much scoring punch for University of Victoria Vikings at the Sports Centre Friday night and grabbed a 7-5 decision in the exhibition battle that opened another Vancouver Island Hockey League season.

In the annual tussle between the previous season's league champions and an all-star club selected from other clubs in the circuit, Vikings stepped into a 3-2 lead in the opening period before 1,242 fans.

All-stars stepped up the tempo of their attack to move ahead 5-4 in the second session and were holding a slim, 6-5 edge in the final minute.

GAMBLE FAILS

Viking coach Joe Iannarelli went gambling, lifting goalie Wayne Hodgson for an extra attacker. Joe saw the gamble fail and hopes of a tie go out the window when Len Desjardins hit the open Viking net with 19 seconds remaining.

Dave Stones and Keith Lawrence each counted twice for all-stars, who also got singles from Desjardins and Wayne Anderson.

Defenceman Stan Ruzicka, with two tallies, Paul Bion, Glyn Harper and Bill Westover scored for the university crew.

Juveniles Cutting Into Second Half

With playoff spots hanging in the balance, competition in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League is likely to become more intense as teams enter the second half of the schedule on Sunday.

First-place Chew Excavating Hornets take on cellar-dwelling Rams at Nanaimo while Oak Bay Farmer Construction greets Cowichan Timbermen in Carnarvon Park.

Oak Bay coach Jack Bryan is discounting a 53-0 defeat Timbermen suffered at the hands of Hornets in the last game. Bryan believes the defending champions are better than the score indicates.

Plagued by fumbles, Bryan has concentrated on teaching his players to hang onto the ball during this week's practice. Farmers have enjoyed a statistical edge in almost every game so far, but fumbles have cost the team vital points.

Both games start at 2 p.m.

AFTER 37 YEARS with American League baseball club as player and coach, Frank Crosetti has resigned coaching position with New York Yankees. Claremont Rolls Along; Tyees Loom as Threat

Who's going to challenge Claremont for the Inter-High School Soccer League championship?

Claremont, rolling along with five straight victories, could learn the answer Monday afternoon when Mount View plays Victoria High.

The high-flying Cs kept their unbeaten streak intact Friday by cruising past Belmont 6-1 while the Vic High Tyees were moving into a second-place deadlock with defending-champion Mount View Hornets with a 2-1 conquest of Esquimalt Dockers.

In Friday's other match, Mount Douglas and Oak Bay battled to a 2-2 draw.

Hornets were idle Friday while the Tyees matched the Mount View record of four wins in five starts and stepped up as a major threat to replace Mount View as league champion.

Just how serious that threat will become may be indicated Monday at 4 p.m. when the Tyees tangle with the Hornets on the Victoria High grounds.

However, Claremont still appears the club to beat and the Cs were never in trouble Friday although winless Belmont stayed in contention until the second half, trailing by only a 2-0 margin at the intermission.

Ross Clegue rapped in three goals for Claremont, Glen Robinson added two goals and Ted Clark scored once. Robinson and Clegue each counted once on a penalty shot and that was the method Steve Taylor used to get Belmont on the scoreboard.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Although controlling play most of the way, the Tyees were forced to come from behind against the Dockers after George Pakos scored for Esquimalt after five minutes.

Dean Stokes got Vic High even midway in the second half and John Craveiro fired the winner 10 minutes later.

John Hunter and Peter Mason made it a personal duel at Carnarvon Park. Mason gave Oak Bay a 1-1 lead, Hunter scored twice to get Mount Douglas in front and Mason came back to knot the count at 2-2 about 10 minutes from the end.

	P	W	L	D	F	A	Pts.

'Bellies Advance Against Olympics

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A three-goal output from young Ken Winaski Friday night gave New Westminster Salmonbellies a 7-3 victory over Portland Adanacs and a berth in the National Lacrosse Association final.

Winaski, one of a number of juniors brought in by New Westminster in a rebuilding program last year, had a standout night in leading Salmonbellies to the win.

New Westminster, which finished in last place last year, took the best-of-seven western final 4-2.

Salmonbellies open the NLA final against Detroit Olympics here tonight. Remaining games will be Oct. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 14, all games except the last will be played in New Westminster. The seventh game will be in Vancouver.

Ian Ball, Wayne Goss, Paul Parnell and Mickey Lynch completed New Westminster scoring. Fred Usselman, Bill Bradley and John Allee replied for Portland as Westminster outshot the Adanacs 59-35.

Nats Rate Look

By The Canadian Press

If the National Hockey League ever expands again, a candidate for membership might be Canada's national team.

The nationals showed pro class Friday night, beating St. Louis Blues 3-1 to sweep a two-game exhibition series against the NHL club, Stanley Cup finalists last season.

The Blues, beaten 5-4 by the nationals Wednesday, yanked veteran goalie Jacques Plante with 30 seconds left in Friday's game in an attempt to beat the pesky Canadians.

But the move backfired when Gerry Pinder slapped the puck into the empty net. Bob Birdsell, a rookie, fired the winner late in the game past Plante, who is making a comeback with St. Louis after a sparkling career with Montreal Canadiens.

Defenceman Gary Young got Canada's other goal. Larry Keenan scored for St. Louis.

WIN FOR NHL

In other pre-season exhibition games involving NHL teams, New York Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Kitchener, Ont., Oakland Seals and Los Angeles Kings tied 1-1 at Kingston, Ont., Detroit Red Wings trimmed Minnesota North Stars 5-2 at Duluth, Minn., Montreal Canadiens crushed Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League 9-3 at Cleveland, and Philadelphia Flyers trounced Quebec Aces of the AHL 7-1 at Halifax.

Oakland's pre-season undefeated skein remained intact with the tie against Los Angeles. The Seals now have won six and tied three.

Ted Hampson gave Oakland the tie with a late goal and Eddie Joyal was the Kings' scorer.

Rod Gilbert, Ron Stewart and Wayne Rivers were the New York scorers in the game played before 5,500 Kitchener fans. Ken Wharram scored a third-period goal for Chicago, spoiling a shutout bid by Ed Giacomin who blocked 29 shots in the New York nets.

BEAT NORTH STARS

Detroit rapped across four goals in the third period to beat the North Stars who had to face a barrage of 53 shots from the Red Wings. Detroit scorers were Pete Mahovlich, Nick Libbett, Pete Stemkowski, Frank Mahovlich and Bruce McGregor.

Andre Boudrias and Milan Marcetta scored for Minnesota. Marcetta's goal came on a second-period penalty shot after Red Wings goalie Roger Crozier was injured, not seriously. Roy Edwards, his replacement, was the victim of Marcetta's goal.

Mickey Redmond and Ralph Backstrom each scored three goals to pace the Canadiens.

Vaughan Breezes To Victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, a Canadian pro golf tour competitor this year, Friday shot a two-under-par 70 for a winning total of 138 in the British Columbia assistant pro tournament.

Trapp, assistant to his father Paul at Victoria Golf Club, carded three birdies and an eagle as he defeated Doug Reid of Vancouver Club by four strokes. Trapp shot 68 Thursday.

In third place was Ron Willey of Vancouver Marine Drive with 74-72—146. Reid had rounds of 70-72 on the Capilano course, playing short and hit by light rain Friday afternoon.

Trapp's eagle three came on the 445-yard 10th hole. He hit the green with his second shot and holed a 20-foot putt.

Gerry Chatelain placed fourth with 76-71—147. Laurie Lyons of Capilano was co-leader with Trapp Friday at 70 with an eagle three on the 453-yard first hole but placed fifth with a total of 149.

U.S. Retains World Honors

MELBOURNE (AP) — The United States today retained the women's world amateur golf championship, finishing the 72-hole event with a total of 616, five shots ahead of Australia. France, with 222, was third.

Sweden was fourth with 638 and Canada fifth with 643.

Best individual score was posted by France's Catherina Lacoste, whose four-round aggregate of 307 was one stroke better than Marea Hickey of Australia.

The U.S. team successfully defended the Espirito Santo Trophy it won two years ago in Mexico.

Each team of the 14 competing countries had three members and the two aggregates counted toward the championship.

GIRL WITHDRAWS

Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., and Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., each shot an 81 today. Gayle Hitchens Borthwick of Ancaster, Ont., who had shot an 80 Friday, withdrew after the 14th hole because of illness in the final round.

Shelley Hamlin of the U.S. finished in third place in the individual placings with a 309 total. Jane Bastanchury of the U.S. was fourth with 312.

Miss Palmer had a total of 321 for the best Canadian aggregate. She shot a 78 in the opening round and 81s in each of the three following rounds.

Mrs. Moore finished at 85-83-79-81—328. Mrs. Borthwick was 80-85-80 in the three rounds she played.

TO MINNESOTA

Tigers Chase Lions

By The Associated Press

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, two baseball teams, have chased Detroit Lions out of town, but it will be up to another National Football League team, Minnesota Vikings, to stop the Lions.

And that's something Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers couldn't do.

The Lions-Vikings game originally was scheduled to be played in Detroit Sunday, but because of the World Series it will be played at Minnesota.

So, the home-field advantage switches to the Vikings, but they will need more than that to stop a Detroit team which, after being smashed by Dallas in the season opener, trounced Chicago 42-0 and upset Green Bay 23-17.

FIRST-PLACE TIE

The two victories moved Detroit in a first-place tie in the Central Division with Minnesota, which lost to Chicago after beating Atlanta Falcons and Green Bay.

In other NFL action, Pittsburgh, 0-3, is at Cleveland tonight, while on Sunday Green Bay, 1-2, is at Atlanta, 0-3; Chicago, 1-2, is at Baltimore, 3-0; San Francisco, 2-1, is at Los Angeles, 3-0; Dallas, 3-0, is at St. Louis, 1-2; New Orleans, 1-2, is at New York 3-0, and Philadelphia, 0-3, is at Washington, 1-2.

LUCCI RETURNS

Detroit's defence, which intercepted eight Chicago passes and then stopped Green Bay's machine-like attack, will be made even stronger with the expected return of linebacker Mike Lucci. Bill Munson will again quarterback the Lions. Gary Cuozzo, who relieved Joe Kapp, a former quarterback with British Columbia Lions, and hit on all of four of his passes against Chicago, probably will see more action at quarterback for Minnesota.

JETS PLAY TONIGHT

In the American League, Curley Johnson, kicking specialist for the New York Jets, will learn how the other half lives tonight.

Because of an injury to Pete Lammons, Johnson will be starting at tight end in addition to handling his regular kicking chores when the Jets meet San Diego Chargers in one of two AFL games scheduled tonight. In the other, Kansas City Chiefs play the Bills at Buffalo.

Sunday's schedule has Cincinnati at Denver, Boston at Oakland and Miami at Houston.

AFTER 37 YEARS with American League baseball club as player and coach, Frank Crosetti has resigned coaching position with New York Yankees. Crosetti, 58, was Yankee shortstop from 1932 until 1948, when he became a coach. He was member of 23 of 29 pennant-winning Yankee teams and played in record 122 World Series games.

Claremont Rolls Along; Tyees Loom as Threat

Who's going to challenge Claremont for the Inter-High School Soccer League championship?

Claremont, rolling along with five straight victories, could learn the answer Monday afternoon when Mount View plays Victoria High.

The high-flying Cs kept their unbeaten streak intact Friday by cruising past Belmont 6-1 while the Vic High Tyees were moving into a second-place deadlock with defending-champion Mount View Hornets with a 2-1 conquest of Esquimalt Dockers.

In Friday's other match, Mount Douglas and Oak Bay battled to a 2-2 draw.

Hornets were idle Friday while the Tyees matched the Mount View record of four wins in five starts and stepped up as a major threat to replace Mount View as league champion.

Just how serious that threat will become may be indicated Monday at 4 p.m. when the Tyees tangle with the Hornets on the Victoria High grounds.

However, Claremont still appears the club to beat and the Cs were never in trouble Friday although winless Belmont stayed in contention until the second half, trailing by only a 2-0 margin at the intermission.

Ross Clague rapped in three goals for Claremont, Glen Robinson added two goals and Ted Clark scored once. Robinson and Clague each counted once on a penalty shot and that was the method Steve Taylor used to get Belmont on the scoreboard.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Although controlling play most of the way, the Tyees were forced to come from behind against the Dockers after George Palos scored for Esquimalt after five minutes.

Dean Stokes got Vic High even midway in the second half and John Craveiro fired the winner 10 minutes later.

John Hunter and Peter Mason made it a personal duel at Carnarvon Park. Mason gave Oak Bay a 1-1 lead. Hunter scored twice to get Mount Douglas in front and Mason came back to knot the count at 2-2 about 10 minutes from the end.

	P	W	L	D	F	A	Pts.

Next matches: Monday at 4 p.m.—Belmont vs Mt. Douglas at Carnarvon Park, Mount View at Victoria, and Esquimalt vs Claremont at Lochside Park.

'Bellies Advance Against Olympics

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A three-goal output from young Ken Winaoski Friday night gave New Westminster Salmonbellies a 7-3 victory over Portland Adanacs and a berth in the National Lacrosse Association final.

Winaoski, one of a number of juniors brought in by New Westminster in a rebuilding program last year, had a standout night in leading Salmonbellies to the win.

New Westminster, which finished in last place last year, took the best-of-seven western final 4-2.

Salmonbellies open the NLA final against Detroit Olympics here tonight. Remaining games will be Oct. 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 14, all games except the last will be played in New Westminster. The seventh game will be in Vancouver.

Ian Bell, Wayne Goss, Paul Parnell and Mickey Lynch completed New Westminster scoring. Fred Usselman, Bill Bradley and John Allee replied for Portland as Westminster outshot the Adanacs 58-35.

Eight-Game Tour Awaits Nationals

OSLO (AP)—Canada's national hockey team will play eight international games in Scandinavia next month.

The Canadians will play four games in Sweden, two in Finland and two in Norway.

Richmond Rider Barred for Life

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Racing Commission has suspended jockey Bill Skuse for life, it was reported Friday.

The commission acted on the recommendation of the Exhibition Park board of stewards, which had found Skuse guilty of seven violations of racing rules following an investigation earlier this month into alleged race fixing.

Skuse, 29, of suburban Richmond, was not present at the hour-long hearing.

J. A. Carr, lawyer for Skuse, had received instructions to plead guilty to the violations.

Commission chairman Glen McDonald said Skuse has the right to apply for reinstatement at any time.

The commission is to hear next week a similar appeal by jockey Dennis Terry against a five-year suspension recommended by the stewards.

Stars Trip Vikings In Opening Battle

All-stars packed a little too much scoring punch for University of Victoria Vikings at the Sports Centre Friday night and grabbed a 7-5 decision in the exhibition battle that opened another Vancouver Island Hockey League season.

In the annual tussle between the previous season's league champions and an all-star club selected from other clubs in the circuit, Vikings stepped into a 3-2 lead in the opening period before 1,242 fans.

All-stars stepped up the tempo of their attack to move ahead 5-4 in the second session and were holding a slim, 6-5 edge in the final minute.

GAMBLE FAILS

Viking coach Joe Iannarelli went gambling, lifting goalie Wayne Hodgson for an extra attacker. Joe saw the gamble fail and hopes of a tie go out the window when Len Desjardins hit the open Viking net with 19 seconds remaining.

Dave Stones and Keith Lawrence each counted twice for all-stars, who also got singles from Desjardins and Wayne Anderson.

Defenceman Stan Rusicka, with two tallies, Paul Bion, Glyn Harper and Bill Westover scored for the university crew.

Juveniles Cutting Into Second Half

With playoff spots hanging in the balance, competition in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League is likely to become more intense as teams enter the second half of the schedule on Sunday.

First-place Chew Excavating Hornets take on cellar-dwelling Rams at Nanaimo while Oak Bay Farmer Construction greets Cowichan Timbermen in Carnarvon Park.

Oak Bay coach Jack Bryan is discounting a 53-0 defeat Timbermen suffered at the hands of Hornets in the last game. Bryan believes the defending champions are better than the score indicates.

Plagued by fumbles, Bryan has concentrated on teaching his players to hang onto the ball during this week's practice. Farmers have enjoyed a statistical edge in almost every game so far, but fumbles have cost the team vital points.

Both games start at 2 p.m.
